Alert Merchant Traps Check Passers

Alert action by an Arlington Heights camera shop owner resulted in apprehension last week of two persons police charged with cashing fraudulent checks both here and in Des Plaines, with a strong possibility other northwest suburbs also may be involved.

Raymond Powell Jr., 32, and Marguerite Gaither, 31, both of Chicago, were scheduled for preliminary arraignment late this week in Chicago, where they were taken by local authorities.

Arlington Heights police picked up the pair late last Wednesday afternoon on Dunton st. near the Arlington Heights Camera shop where owner Herb Ternow of Skokie said they tried to cash an $85 check he believed to be fraudulent.

Ternow had notified the police after he compared the check with a list of stolen checks furnished to merchants by law enforcement agencies.

Officers said neither of the Negroes would give their right name at first, and identification papers in their possession were stolen.

In a bag carried by Gaither, police found articles of women's clothing which had been purchased earlier at the Emerald Shop in Arlington Heights with an $85 check made out on the same company, the Ace Transformer co. In the corner of the check were the typed in words, "Christmas Bonus."

Police said they recovered a receipt from Svoboda's in Des Plaines, which the woman was trying to tear up as police arrested them. The receipt was for $17.63 and dated Dec. 26, Tuesday. The store owner later said it was for merchandise purchased with another $85 check on the Ace Transformer co.

Arlington Heights police checked with Alex Kasmer, owner of the company on which the checks were drawn, and he told them the checks were probably among ones stolen in 1959. The Gaither woman admitted, police said, that she had served a term in the Cook county jail that same year for check forgery.

Kasmer told police that on Wednesday, Dec. 27 the day police apprehended the couple, he had received about 15 calls from merchants trying to verify the validity of the checks.

No estimate of the number of checks actually casned by the couple, or by others who might have been working with them, was available, but police speculated others would turn up in this area as they were placed for deposit. The checks were made payable to "Robert Kelly."

Powell and the Gaither woman were split up and held over night in the Mt. Prospect and Arlington Heights jails, then taken to Chicago to await trial Thursday.

STUART R. PADDOCK

Did you ever make a resolution when starting on a trip to keep a diary of each day's happenings? We did — our resolution lasted just five days. However, to make use of the "recordings" for those five days, we are referring to that diary — short as it may be.

We are using a new car. Our first surprise was the automatic ring that is heard when my wife over-stepped the 65 mph speed.

She had obeyed the low speed for the first 500 miles. Then she discovered she could no longer "cheat" on the speed she was driving. (Those Illinois toll roads tend to cause her to break the speed resolution that she makes when we start on a long trip.)

By the time we reached Evansville, we said goodbye to winter and welcomed the green grass of springtime.

It was in Huntsville, Ala., that a bell boy proudly told us that "the hotel was paid for! It took 32 years to do this and now they can buy new furnishings." They are needed.

When we buy eggs at home we take what is handed us, but signs along the way mentioned: Cage eggs, Yard eggs. If we were a farmer we would know what they mean.

At home, signs in the fishing country read just "Fish Bait." Down here it is "lizards, minnows and pink worms." Is it the color of southern soil that makes the "red worms from back home" pink in Alabama?

In the efforts of highway departments to by-pass large towns, the motorist on a rainy, dark night has difficulty finding a hotel with a garage. A friend admonished us against thievery when he saw our heavily loaded car. So we hunted for hotels and we found three — Terre Haute, Huntsville, Alabama, and Augusta, Georgia, and all a long, but intriguing, way apart.

The last day of the diary, Saturday, reads "passed through four states, Indiana, Kentucky, Tennessee and Alabama. After two days of constant rain, we found sunshine :' Augusta, Georgia — a total of 1095 miles and the first 1000 mile checkup."

We are spending a month in Beaufort, South Carolina. We doubt if there is any town in the south of similar size with more antebellum homes — real mansions of three or more floors.

We will have something to tell our readers next week about the Beaufort country. It was captured early in the war by the North in 1861 and used as a base for blockading southern harbors. The southern mansions built by the affluent cotton producers survived the war.

We have taken several days to open all our Christmas greeting cards. We appreciate the sentiments expressed, but the stamps that originally came from distant parts of the country lent an added interest.

The postal service was certainly kept busy keeping up with anniversaries during 1961.

Conservation and our great out-of-doors were celebrated through: "Fifth World Forestry Congress"; "Campfire Girls 1910-1960"; "Range Conservation — The Trail Boss"; "Frederick Remington, Artist of the West, 1861-1961."

Liberty and Independence were championed by: "Sun Yat-Sen Anniversary Republic of China 1911-1961"; Garibaldi, Italian Unification; Gustaf Mannheim, Liberator of Finland; "Give Me Liberty or Give Me Death" commemorating Patrick Henry; "Those Who Deny Freedom to Others Deserve It Not for Themselves, from A. Lincoln"; "Mexican Independence 1810-1960."

It was recalled that Workmen's Compensation originated in Wisconsin with the anniversary from 1911 to 1961. And lastly, "Echo I" was celebrated as "Communications for Peace."

PARK NEEDS TO BE AIRED

Referendum Study Slated

Community leaders and representatives of village organizations in Arlington Heights are scheduled to meet with the board of commissioners of the Arlington Heights park district tonight, Thursday, to discuss offering a public referendum next October for park improvements and construction of an artificial ice skating rink.

The skating rink, major improvements to the Recreation park swimming pool, construction of a fieldhouse and tennis courts in Hasbrook park, and additional parking facilities for Pioneer park are the major propositions anticipated for 1962 by the park district.

DURING 1961, the district continued to provide a wide variety of recreational facilities, and the village board has helped widen the district's boundaries by requiring areas which annex to the village to annex to the park district also.

This winter, the park district took the initiative in asking the village board for permission to provide lights and a warming house for ice skating facilities at Douglas and Olive streets in the northern part of the village, and its request was approved.

The proposal to provide an artificial rink, at an estimated cost of $200,000 was first put forth late in 1960 in a study prepared by McFadzean, Every and Associates, a park and recreation planning firm in Winnetka.

AFTER STUDY, the board decided this fall to consider a public referendum but delayed action until now in order to avoid conflict with the sewer bond referendum.

An artificial ice skating rink, the board believes, would be in keeping with increased interest in ice skating and would materially lengthen the skating season, now dependent upon the weather.

An average season now is about 20 days, but an artificial ice rink could be used for perhaps 60 days between November and March, tripling the season.

MAJOR expense of such a rink would be the initial cost, since upkeep is less per day than natural ice rinks. Approximate cost of a suitable refrigeration unit would be $75,000, and properly functioning and designed multi - purpose locker, skate rental, office, concession, and maintenance building would add another $75,000.

The report indicates the best place for such a rink would be in Recreation park, east of the swimming pool and wading pool in the area which presently is a lawn. At this location, the multi-purpose building could be located east of the existing tennis courts and south of the rink area where it could serve as a warming room and concession stand in the winter, and recreation headquarters in the summer.

The skating rink base could, in summer, be used for other sports requiring a hard surface.

COST OF the project could be repaid either through taxation, which with an assessed valuation of $82 million in the district, would amount to about 18 cents per $1,000 assessed valuation. This assumes a levy of $15,000 a year for 20 years.

An alternate or possibly conjunctive method of repaying principal and interest would be through charging admission to the rink, the same as admission is charged to the swimming pool in the summer. The planning report states that this is common practice.

If repayment of principal and interest, and annual operating costs of $20,000 were to be met solely through admission charges, it would require an average attendance of 570 persons daily at an average fee of 50 cents for the season.

At tonight's meeting, the board will ask for comments and suggestions from representatives attending.

Board Slates 1st Meeting

The Arlington Heights village board will hold its first meeting of 1962 Monday at 8 p.m. in the village hall. Meetings usually are held the first and third Mondays in the month, but because of the New Year's holiday, January meetings will be the second and fourth Mondays.

Four-Way Stop

The Belmont-Park st. intersection in south-central Arlington Heights has been made a four-way stop for autos. The change was effective last Friday.

DECIDING FACTOR in whether to go ice skating in Arlington Heights this winter has been the weather, and if this season is average, skaters like Jim Gunderson (foreground) will have a season of about 20 days. A bond referendum being considered by the park district would, among other things, provide for an artificial ice skating rink, which would triple the length of the season in winters to come.

DeRiemer Quits Post As Finance Director

Thomas A. DeRiemer, Arlington Heights village finance director, has resigned, effective January 25 and will begin new managerial duties for the township of Wayne, N. J., on February 1.

DeRiemer, who came to Arlington Heights more than two years ago, turned in his resignation to Village Manager L. A. Hanson last week.

In his new post in Wayne he will have the title of business administrator with duties comparable to those of a village manager in Illinois. Wayne is a town remarkably similar to Arlington Heights, with an almost identical record of growth and a similar economy, about 20 miles northwest of New York City.

DERIEMER'S POST in Arlington Heights paid $8,476. His new post will represent a substantial salary increase, as well as a significant professional promotion.

"This is a fine opportunity for Tom," Hanson said, "and although I'm sorry to see him go, it's good to see him move ahead in his profession. He's well-qualified and conscientious, and he's done a good job in Arlington Heights."

Hanson added that he knew DeRiemer would be moving up to a manager's job someday, so the resignation did not come as too much of a surprise.

During his tenure in Arlington Heights, DeRiemer has instituted modern accounting procedures in the finance department and put into effect practices which have drawn high praise in professional circles.

THE TOWN of Wayne, with a population of about 29,000, operates with a strong mayor elected separately from the town council. He has appointive powers and the business administrator (or township manager) is directly responsible to him.

DeRiemer will be the first business administrator the town has ever had, since it only last fall adopted the new form of government by public referendum.

Until a new finance director is hired for Arlington Heights, Ray Dietrich, village treasurer, will assume DeRiemer's duties after January 25.

DeRIEMER'S wife and three children will remain in Arlington Heights at their home at 1219 N. Race ave., until their house is sold and a new one located in Wayne.

The 31-year-old DeRiemer is a graduate of San Diego State college and completed a one-year public affairs internship on a $1,000 scholarship from the Coro Foundation of San Francisco. He attended Naval Officer Candidate school and served three years as a Naval line officer, then attended Northwestern university law school for one year.

You Can Bet . . .

Future Holds 'Sure Things'

by JIM DAVIES

Nothing in this world certain except death and taxes?

Maybe, but along with many others we'd be willing to bet a dollar or two that during 1962 — a number of things definitely, positively, inexorably, will happen. For sure.

Can you imagine a year, for instance, in which an aged recluse living in a slum section of a major city doesn't die, leaving hidden in the stuffing of his dirty mattress a wad of crumpled grimy $20 bills totaling up to $158,000?

OR A YEAR in which at least one nondescript dog doesn' trail his former owners across deserts and mountains, weathering raging floods and blinding snowstorms, doggedly ignoring hunger and thirst, outmaneuvering tollway traffic, and finally ending up three weeks later whining on the family's front porch in some small West Coast town?

And who can doubt that at least once during 1962, a politician won't discover that the words he spoke so glibly the night before looked a little brash in the paper next morning, and bellow loudly and longly that he'd been misquoted?

Death and taxes?

As uncertain as Midweast weather when compared with the probability that Jack Paar will blast newspapers, that Joseph Welch will discover that Comsymps have infiltrated the Daughters of the American Revolution, that Jimmy Hoffa will hire more cons to head up local unions, that sobbing $100,000 a year executives will weep over the high cost of overhead.

AND NO one can seriously believe that 12 months will go by without a multi-million dollar scandal in some Chicago governmental body.

It's inevitable, too, that someone will escape from a county jail using a piece of soap he's whittled to look like a pistol and painted with black shoe polish, that a college basketball player will be accused of having a tie-in with the gambling world that a small boy will write to the president volunteering to ride the first rocket to the moon, that all Hollywood movies will have happy endings and all popular novels a sex escapade every 42 pages.

These eventualities we can expect as a matter of course. For more serious glimpses of 1962, we refer you to this issue of the Herald, where various stories will examine possible developments in Arlington Heights in such fields as taxes, annexation, schools, and parks.

Motorist Is Fined $93; 31 Tickets

Motorists with a stack of overdue Arlington Heights parking tickets should take warning from the experience last week of a motorist who was assessed $93 in fines and court costs by Police Magistrate Robert Buckley.

Frank Lyons Jr., 956 N. Race Arlington Heights, was arrested by village police on a warrant charging him with 31 overtime parking violations. He was released on $40 bond pending his appearance in police court last Wednesday afternoon.

Chief of Police L. W. Calderwood said motorists who take overtime parking tickets lightly should be aware that they may be next in court. Calderwood said stiff fines should be assessed violators who do not pay their tickets promptly.

Seek Nominations For Service Award

Organizations and individuals have less than a week to submit nominations of candidates for the 1961 Distinguished Service Award, to be presented by the Arlington Heights Jaycees to the man between 21 and 35 years of age deemed most deserving of recognition for his contribution to the community, leadership ability, and personal or business progress.

The recipient need not be a member of the Junior Chamber of Commerce. Nominations should be sent to Jaycees, P.O. Box 1, Arlington Heights. Nominators should include their name, address and telephone number so further information about their candidate can be secured, if necessary.

The presentation banquet will be held sometime during the first two weeks in February. Selection of the winner will be made by a panel of Arlington Heights residents over 35 years of age.

Community Life

Eye Development Council for Village

Formation of a community development council in Arlington Heights will be discussed by representatives of villlage organizations at a meeting scheduled for January 17 at 8 p.m. at the Arlington Heights Federal Savings and Loan building.

Proposal of the project by Arlington Heights Jaycees is a direct outgrowth of the group's recently completed community development survey, which indicated some of the areas in which village residents are particularly interested.

WHAT IS meant by community development?

"Name anything in the non-official area of community life and it is included," says Donald Sweeney, Jaycee president, in a letter sent to village organizations.

"Basically," he continued, "it is a belief of Arlington Heights Jaycees that our village, in the process of growing into a community of 40 to 70 thousand persons within ten years, is now ready for a clearing house for civic development."

Sweeney said a free interchange of ideas and problems among all organizations of the community will make the effort of each group more substantial, while affording more widespread publicity and support by all groups for the benefit of the community.

AS PRESENTLY conceived, the council would be composed of one regular and one alternate representative from each local organization, preferably drawn from the group's executive board.

As a starter, the Jaycees indicated possible areas of action which might interest particular organizations as:

—Construction of a community center.

—Working for an "All American City" award.

—Beautifying the vast railroad frontage.

—Rehabilitating the central business district.

—Fostering clean industrial development on the fringes.

—Organizing a combined United Fund of Arlington Heights.

—Developing an annual fall festival to carry on the spirit of the 125th anniversary celebration.

—Restricting solicitations not in the local public interest.

—Sponsorship of a local tennis tournament.

Burks Gets Nod from GOP Committeemen

State Rep. Marion E. Burks of Evanston was given the nod Tuesday by Republican slatemakers who have been seeking for nearly a month to agree on a candidate to succeed Congresswoman Marguerite Stitt Church.

Mrs. Church, also of Evanston, announced December 7 that she would not be a candidate for re-election. She has served six terms in Congress.

Burks, 49, won a preferential vote of 10 township committeemen and the committeeman of Chicago's 50th ward at a meeting Tuesday in West Dundee. The committeeman represented townships comprising the 13th congressional district.

OTHER congressional aspirants receiving votes were State Sen. John A. Graham of Barrington, who withdrew his name from consideration in an effort to "preserve party unity," and Austin L. Wyman Jr. of Northbrook.

MARION E. BURKS

The committeemen were also faced with throwing organization support to a candidate for GOP state central committee, but unanimously voted not to make an endorsement.

The "no vote" policy was conceded to be a moral victory for Alexander MacArthur of Barrington, who is currently in contention for the central committee post as well as the job of Palatine township committeeman.

OTHER announced candidates for Congress from the 13th district are as follows: Robert A. Dwyer of Winnetka, William R. Kearney of Skokie, Donald Rumsfeld of Glenview, Wyman of Northbrook.

Potential candidates for central committee in addition to MacArthur are David Brown of New Trier township, Ralph Church of Evanston, Roland Moore of Skokie, and Joseph Novotny of the 50th ward.

Jesse Lehman Jr., Schaumburg township committeeman, told Paddock Publications Wednesday that his organization is supporting the candidacies of both MacArthur and Robert Atcher, Schaumburg village president who is being considered as a candidate for trustee of the Metropolitan Sanitary District.

"What's more, we'll see to it that they're elected," Lehman said.

ON THE FIRST round of voting Tuesday, Evanston, New Trier and Wheeling townships supported Burks, Palatine and Schaumburg townships sided with Graham, and Northfield voted for Wyman.

The townships of Barrington, Elk Grove, Hanover and Niles passed their votes.

Following Graham's withdrawal, a second vote was taken. Hanover and Schaumburg joined Evanston, New Trier and Wheeling in backing Burks, and Northfield went for Wyman. The others passed.

the HARRIS huddle

As the man said, "Off with the old love, on with the new." What does '62 hold for me and you? Didn't mean for it to rhyme, but it turned out that way.

It can be a beautiful year for all of us if we will but set our aims and goals on a higher plane and try to be better people. Let us all try to look for the good instead of the bad in people; let us treat others as we want to be treated. Simplicity of living is such an easy way to live and yet we all have a tendency to want to live among frustrations and confusion. Sure this is rather corny, but actually, when you get right down to it, what isn't? There are enough problems, enough suffering in this world without our making more for ourselves.

Let us all resolve to be better people, and it will be an easier and much better way to live. Here's to health, wealth and prosperity in 1962!

Eye Development Council for Village

Formation of a community development council in Arlington Heights will be discussed by representatives of villlage organizations at a meeting scheduled for January 17 at 8 p.m. at the Arlington Heights Federal Savings and Loan building.

Proposal of the project by Arlington Heights Jaycees is a direct outgrowth of the group's recently completed community development survey, which indicated some of the areas in which village residents are particularly interested.

WHAT IS meant by community development?

"Name anything in the nonofficial area of community life and it is included," says Donald Sweeney, Jaycee president, in a letter sent to village organizations.

"Basically," he continued, "it is a belief of Arlington Heights Jaycees that our village, in the process of growing into a community of 40 to 70 thousand persons within ten years, is now ready for a clearing house for civic development."

Sweeney said a free interchange of ideas and problems among all organizations of the community will make the effort of each group more substantial, while affording more widespread publicity and support by all groups for the benefit of the community.

AS PRESENTLY conceived, the council would be composed of one regular and one alternate representative from each local organization, preferably drawn from the group's executive board.

As a starter, the Jaycees indicated possible areas of action which might interest particular organizations as:

—Construction of a community center.

—Working for an "All American City" award.

—Beautifying the vast railroad frontage.

—Rehabilitating the central business district.

—Fostering clean industrial development on the fringes.

—Organizing a combined United Fund of Arlington Heights.

—Developing an annual fall festival to carry on the spirit of the 125th anniversary celebration.

—Restricting solicitations not in the local public interest.

—Sponsorship of a local tennis tournament.

Year-End Figures Indicate City's Economy on Upswing

Year-end figures compiled by the search and statistics division of the Chicago Association of Commerce and Industry indicate that the economy of Metropolitan Chicago is on a rise that will continue at least through the first half of 1962.

"Although total figures for 1960 and 1961 are nearly identical, they do not tell the whole story," feels DeVer Sholes, the association's research director.

"As a result of the 1960-61 recession, the last six months of 1960 were characterized by a downward spiraling of the economy with the low point being reached in February of this year.

"SINCE THAT point the economy already has risen to the early 1960 high and should continue to rise through 1962," he continued.

Estimated gross sales of products manufactured in metropolitan Chicago in 1961 amounted to $24.26 billion for all types of manufacturing, which may be compared with $24.195 bil ion in 1960.

The increase in sales is partially due to increased output and partly to a small increase in prices.

Of the 20 major categories, the largest in 1961 was food and related products manufactures, which amounted to $3.998 billion compared with $3.862 billion in 1960.

PRIMARY METAL industries, which include steel mill products, and forge and foundry products, dropped from first place to second among the major industry groups.

Gross sales in metals came to $3.901 billion, a decline from the $4.026 billion recorded in 1960.

Other major categories with over a billion dollars in sales include electrical machinery, $2.7 billion; chemicals and related products, $1.76 billion; printing and publishing, $1.685 billion; fabricated metals industries, $2.233 billion;

NON-ELECTRICAL machinery, $2.146 billion; petroleum and coal products, $1.074 billion; and transportation equipment, $1.024 billion.

The remaining major industrial groups exceeding $100 million in 1961 were, in order of size, apparel; instruments; pulp and paper products; stone, clay, and glass products; furniture and fixtures; leather and leather goods; textile mill products; lumber and mill products.

Estimates of manufacturers' sales are preliminary and are based on approximately 10 months' operation in 1961. Revision may be necessary in some categories as later figures become available.

However, 1961 sales set another all-time record, exceeding 1960 by a small margin. (B8

County Okays Huge Budget

The Cook county board of commissioners last Friday, Dec. 29, approved a record 1962 budget over the objections of two Republican minority members.

The vote was 11-2 on the subject, with commissioners Charles F. Chaplin of Northbrook and Jerry Dolezal of Cicero casting the dissenting votes.

Tow other GOP members of the board, Fred A. Fulle of Des Plaines and John Mackler Jr., of Chicago Heights, were absent. The fifth Republican commissioner, William N. Erickson of Evanston, voted with the Democratic majority.

THE COUNTY'S corporate budget of $84,542,516 was $6,753,757 more than the previous year's former record budget.

The GOP objectors criticized the budget requests of the State's Attorney's office, the zoning administrator, coroner and board of health in addition to the increase from $4½ million to $11½ million in the budget of the county hospital over 10 years time while the number of hospital beds has remained stationary at 3400.

The county board had previously announced a $6 million tax abatement on the 1961 tax levy which figures out to a savings of about 5.9 cents per $100 assessed valuation on individual's tax bills. (B8

PAUL COLLINS, president of Arlington Heights Federal Savings and Loan Assn., pins airline stewardess wings on Miss Ingrid Kristensen, a former employee of the association who recently graduated from the United Airlines stewardess training school on Algonquin rd. south of Arlington Heights. Miss Kristensen, a native of Denmark, came to this country in April, 1960, to work at the savings and loan firm. She honored Collins upo ncompleting stewardess training by asking him to pin on her wings.

Moose Lodge Holds Party

Newly formed Prospect Heights Moose lodge 660 held its first annual Christmas party December 16 at the lodge headquarters at 1 N. Elmhurst rd.

With barely a week for preparation, Ed Mauter and his crew, assisted by the ladies of the Moose auxiliary, accomplished a difficult task as all was in readiness for more than 300 parents and children who attended.

The party was presided over by Santa, who gave presents to the small fry. There were refreshments for everyone, and musical background for the Christmas carols was provided by Doug Dean, Marvin Schaeffer, and Clarence Petersen.

THE MOOSE Lodge is looking forward to a highly successful 1962. In the planning stage for late this winter is a club lounge for use by members and guests.

Chairman Bob Gillespie and his entertainment committee are proceeding with plans for the first lodge dance, which will take place Saturday, Jan. 20, at the Carpenter's hall, White and Oakton sts., Des Plaines. Dancing will be to the music of The Keynotes.

A cordial invitation is extended to all. Especially welcome will be non-members of the Moose. Those who haven't gotten tickets in advance may purchase them at the dance, and a solid evening of fun is guaranteed, it was announced. (B8

Area Skiers 'Take to Hills'

It's That Time Of Year Again

by BILL HOGATE

Snow is on the ground! It's that time of year again when a young man's (and young woman's) fancy turns to the age-old sport of skiing.

The beginners have broken out their barrel slats, and the professionals in the area have been busily waxing up their sleek wood or metal skis in preparation for what promises to be an excellent skiing season.

Actually over 75,000 Chicago area residents are skiers, and with each Christmas and the subsequent gifts of skis, more skiers join their ranks.

Perhaps one of the best skiers in the Arlington Heights area is 23-year-old Dick Brodnan. Until he moved to Kansas City recently, Brodnan was one of the leading contenders in the annual Norge ski meet at Fox River Grove.

Dick's younger brother, Dave, a 19-year-old sophomore at Loyola, has also been an impressive skier for the past eight years. He told Paddock Publications that he planned to enter the Norge ski meet this year if he is in town.

DICK ATTENDED St. Lawrence college in upper New York state, where, as a freshman, he skied on the varsity team. The school was located 18 miles south of the Canadian border.

He has been metered in the North American, New York state championship, and national championships. Brother Dave has also taken home a number of honors, but has been skiing primarily recreationally for the past two years.

Martin Wingsness, 240 Hatlen ave., Mt. Prospect, is another well-known skier in the area. He has been skiing for the past 25 years, and has been a captain of the Norge skiing team.

In his earlier years he was one of the top skiers and jumpers in the midwest.

Today he and his wife and daughter ski for the fun of it at a number of skiing areas in the midwest. They just returned from Ishpeming, Mich., last weekend, and plan to ski at a new tow at Slinger, Wis., this coming weekend.

WINGSNESS is a model maker for the Cook Technical center in Morton Grove. The Wingsness' daughter is Mrs. Alan Grosshauser of Des Plaines.

Among the ranks of the many amateur skiers in the area is the Dick Platt family, 806 W. Kennicott, Arlington Heights.

Dick, his wife, and three children are all avid skiers. The oldest child, Jeff, 13, has been skiing for the past three years. Karen, 12, and Terrence, 7, have been skiing for about a year.

The Platts have been skiing at Wilmot ski lodge, one of the most popular ski tows in the Chicago area. Wilmot ski hills is located northwest of Antioch, on the Wisconsin-Illinois border in Wilmot, Wis.

A number of local skiers go to Wilmot where there are three ski lifts and 10 rope tows. One of the big attractions at the ski hills is the snow-making machine.

The machine operates every night when he temperatures are below 27 degrees, which assures skiing on most days from December through March.

MANY LOCAL skiers who are just starting out, rent their skis and boots from Wilmot's ski shop. Rental on skis runs from $2 to $5, and boots run $2 a pair for the day.

Wilmont is open Saturdays and Sundays from 9:30 a. m. to dusk, and the ski operation is open Wednesday evenings from 7 p. m. to 11 p. m.

So far, Dick Platt is the only member of his family who has attempted skiing on the main slope at Wilmot. His wife and the children have been skiing on the smaller slopes, but Jeff vows that he will take a crack at the big hill in the very near future.

The Platts own their skiing equipment. "The kids just got their first skiing boots this Christmas," Mrs. Platt commented. "Before that they used their galoshes."

Skiis can cost anywhere from $15 to $100, and more. Boots run anywhere from about $8 for the cheapest to about $50 a pair for a deluxe style. Poles can run from $4 on up.

Mrs. Platt thinks that skiing is marvelous exercise for her children. She feels that it is strenuous but relaxing. "I have few fears about my children skiing," she said.

PLATT IS A mold maker for a plastic firm.

Sixteen year-old Dick Westergaard, a junior at Prospect high school, is one of the avid teenagers who has taken to skis.

Westergaard has skied at Majestic Hills, Wis., near lake Geneva; Chestnut Hills, near Hanover; and Iron Mt., Mich. He skis about 10 to 12 times a season, and has been skiing for the past three years.

Westergaard usually goes skiing with his next door neighbor, Ted Benda, who is currently skiing at Winter Park, Fla., or with other teenage friends of his.

Another family group which enjoys skiing in the area is the Wollert Ellertsons, 908 E. Euclid, Arlington Heights.

Ellertson, whose father was born in Norway, has been skiing since childhood. As a child he skied quite a lot in Fox River Grove.

THE THREE children, Dennis, 14, Karen, 12, and Kevin, 9, are all skiers. Dennis is able to master just about every hill at Wilmot ski hills.

In fact, Dennis is able to jump from the "C" ski jump at Fox River Grove, which is about 15 feet from the ground at the bottom of the jump.

Mrs. Ellertson feels confident in the skiing ability of her children. She explained that the only accident that the family has sustained was when she sprained her finger.

The Ellertsons have just signed up for the free Chicago Tribune ski classes which will be conducted near Lyons this year. Ellertson is a sales engineer at Sauerman Brothers in Bellwood.

The John Shaad family, 636 S. Highland, Arlington Heights, is yet another skiing family. Shaad is a member of the Norge ski club, and his wife was a ski queen at one of the meets several years ago.

The Shaads do not ski too much any more, but they are hopeful that their children will take up the sport in the near future. Mrs. Shaad's father is from Norway, and has won a number of jumping prizes in the past.

THE LARRY Stockings of Arlington Heights are also accomplished weekend skiers. Thirteen year-old Charley has been skiing for about three years, and his brother Jerry, 11, has been skiing for about two years.

The Stockings have just moved into a new house, so they have not had a chance to ski too much this year. They have been out about six times so far.

Over the New Year's holiday, the Stockings went skiing at Birch Haven ski hills in Baraboo, Wis. They also visit Wilmot regularly, and have visited Boyne Mt., Mich., and Cliff Ridge skiing area near Marquette, Mich.

One of the most interesting families enjoying the sport is the George Stephan family, 606 Can-Dota, Mt. Prospect. All nine members of the family are avid skiers, and recently returned from a skiing holiday in Colorado.

The list of suburban skiers is endless. Many are extremely accomplished. Others are just occasional skiers who try a gentle slope once or twice a year.

Just about everyone interviewed agreed, however, that skiing is a vigorous but relaxing sport which more people should become interested in.

THE ADVICE is almost unanimous for those who have not yet tried skiing. Skiers suggest that novices sign up for skiing lessons, either private or free. They also suggest that newcomers to the sport rent their equipment until they are sure that they like skiing.

MRS. JOHN SHAAD, 636 S. Highland, Arlington Heights, is pictured here as ski queen for the annual Norge ski meet in 1946. The Norge ski meet is an annual tournament held on the third Sunday of January in Fox River Grove.

GETTING READY for a take off on skis are (from l. to r.) Jeff Platt, 13; Karen Platt, 12; and Terrance Platt, 7. The Platts are avid weekend skiers. Jeff has been skiing for about three years, and Karen and Terrance have been skiing for about a year. Mr. and Mrs. Dick Platt are also skiers.

TV COMPETITION

by ED LANDWEHR

Doesn't it irk you to find two and three good TV programs on at the same time?

This doesn't just happen by coincidence. Blame it on competition between the networks. They're all trying to pull the biggest audience for their advertisers, and one won't let the other get ahead if it can possibly be helped. TV programming is keen competition.

Now, this isn't bad. The result is that the vast public gets what it wants most, although it might sometimes hit at the same time.

And this competitive spirit exists among TV service organizations, too. We're all trying to do the finest job, the quickest and easiest way to hold down the costs to the public. LANDWEHR TV, 218 N. Dunton, Arlington Heights has steadily grown with this competitive spirit. Phone CLearbrook 5-0700 and see why more and more of the local folks are calling us for TV, radio and general electronic services.

Area Skiers 'Take to Hills'

It's That Time Of Year Again

by BILL HOGATE

Snow is on the ground! It's that time of year again when a young man's (and young woman's) fancy turns to the age-old sport of skiing.

The beginners have broken out their barrel slats, and the professionals in the area have been busily waxing up their sleek wood or metal skis in preparation for what promises to be an excellent skiing season.

Actually over 75,000 Chicago area residents are skiers, and with each Christmas and the subsequent gifts of skis, more skiers join their ranks.

Perhaps one of the best skiers in the Arlington Heights area is 23-year-old Dick Brodnan. Until he moved to Kansas City recently, Brodnan was one of the leading contenders in the annual Norge ski meet at Fox River Grove.

Dick's younger brother, Dave, a 19-year-old sophomore at Loyola, has also been an impressive skier for the past eight years. He told Paddock Publications that he planned to enter the Norge ski meet this year if he is in town.

DICK ATTENDED St. Lawrence college in upper New York state, where, as a freshman, he skied on the varsity team. The school was located 18 miles south of the Canadian border.

He has been metered in the North American, New York state championship, and national championships. Brother Dave has also taken home a number of honors, but has been skiing primarily recreationally for the past two years.

Martin Wingsness, 240 Hatlen ave., Mt. Prospect, is another well-known skier in the area. He has been skiing for the past 25 years, and has been a captain of the Norge skiing team.

In his earlier years he was one of the top skiers and jumpers in the midwest.

Today he and his wife and daughter ski for the fun of it at a number of skiing areas in the midwest. They just returned from Ishpeming, Mich., last weekend, and plan to ski at a new tow at Slinger, Wis., this coming weekend.

WINGSNESS is a model maker for the Cook Technical center in Morton Grove. The Wingsness' daughter is Mrs. Alan Grosshauser of Des Plaines.

Among the ranks of the many amateur skiers in the area is the Dick Platt family, 806 W. Kennicott, Arlington Heights.

Dick, his wife, and three children are all avid skiers. The oldest child, Jeff, 13, has been skiing for the past three years. Karen, 12, and Terrence, 7, have been skiing for about a year.

The Platts have been skiing at Wilmot ski lodge, one of the most popular ski tows in the Chicago area. Wilmot ski hills is located northwest of Antioch, on the Wisconsin-Illinois border in Wilmot, Wis.

A number of local skiers go to Wilmot where there are three ski lifts and 10 rope tows. One of the big attractions at the ski hills is the snow-making machine.

The machine operates every night when he temperatures are below 27 degrees, which assures skiing on most days from December through March.

MANY LOCAL skiers who are just starting out, rent their skis and boots from Wilmot's ski shop. Rental on skis runs from $2 to $5, and boots run $2 a pair for the day.

Wilmont is open Saturdays and Sundays from 9:30 a. m. to dusk, and the ski operation is open Wednesday evenings from 7 p. m. to 11 p. m.

So far, Dick Platt is the only member of his family who has attempted skiing on the main slope at Wilmot. His wife and the children have been skiing on the smaller slopes, but Jeff vows that he will take a crack at the big hill in the very near future.

The Platts own their skiing equipment. "The kids just got their first skiing boots this Christmas," Mrs. Platt commented. "Before that they used their galoshes."

Skiis can cost anywhere from $15 to $100, and more. Boots run anywhere from about $8 for the cheapest to about $50 a pair for a deluxe style. Poles can run from $4 on up.

Mrs. Platt thinks that skiing is marvelous exercise for her children. She feels that it is strenuous but relaxing. "I have few fears about my children skiing," she said.

PLATT IS A mold maker for a plastic firm.

Sixteen year-old Dick Westergaard, a junior at Prospect high school, is one of the avid teenagers who has taken to skis.

Westergaard has skied at Majestic Hills, Wis., near lake Geneva; Chestnut Hills, near Hanover; and Iron Mt., Mich. He skis about 10 to 12 times a season, and has been skiing for the past three years.

Westergaard usually goes skiing with his next door neighbor, Ted Benda, who is currently skiing at Winter Park, Fla., or with other teenage friends of his.

Another family group which enjoys skiing in the area is the Wollert Ellertsons, 908 E. Euclid, Arlington Heights.

Ellertson, whose father was born in Norway, has been skiing since childhood. As a child he skied quite a lot in Fox River Grove.

THE THREE children, Dennis, 14, Karen, 12, and Kevin, 9, are all skiers. Dennis is able to master just about every hill at Wilmot ski hills.

In fact, Dennis is able to jump from the "C" ski jump at Fox River Grove, which is about 15 feet from the ground at the bottom of the jump.

Mrs. Ellertson feels confident in the skiing ability of her children. She explained that the only accident that the family has sustained was when she sprained her finger.

The Ellertsons have just signed up for the free Chicago Tribune ski classes which will be conducted near Lyons this year. Ellertson is a sales engineer at Sauerman Brothers in Bellwood.

The John Shaad family, 636 S. Highland, Arlington Heights, is yet another skiing family. Shaad is a member of the Norge ski club, and his wife was a ski queen at one of the meets several years ago.

The Shaads do not ski too much any more, but they are hopeful that their children will take up the sport in the near future. Mrs. Shaad's father is from Norway, and has won a number of jumping prizes in the past.

THE LARRY Stockings of Arlington Heights are also accomplished weekend skiers. Thirteen year-old Charley has been skiing for about three years, and his brother Jerry, 11, has been skiing for about two years.

The Stockings have just moved into a new house, so they have not had a chance to ski too much this year. They have been out about six times so far.

Over the New Year's holiday, the Stockings went skiing at Birch Haven ski hills in Baraboo, Wis. They also visit Wilmot regularly, and have visited Boyne Mt., Mich., and Cliff Ridge skiing area near Marquette, Mich.

One of the most interesting families enjoying the sport is the George Stephan family, 606 Can-Dota, Mt. Prospect. All nine members of the family are avid skiers, and recently returned from a skiing holiday in Colorado.

The list of suburban skiers is endless. Many are extremely accomplished. Others are just occasional skiers who try a gentle slope once or twice a year.

Just about everyone interviewed agreed, however, that skiing is a vigorous but relaxing sport which more people should become interested in.

THE ADVICE is almost unanimous for those who have not yet tried skiing. Skiers suggest that novices sign up for skiing lessons, either private or free. They also suggest that newcomers to the sport rent their equipment until they are sure that they like skiing.

GETTING READY for a take off on skis are (from l. to r.) Jeff Platt, 13; Karen Platt, 12; and Terrance Platt, 7. The Platts are avid weekend skiers. Jeff has been skiing for about three years, and Karen and Terrance have been skiing for about a year. Mr. and Mrs. Dick Platt are also skiers.

TV COMPETITION

by ED LANDWEHR

Doesn't it irk you to find two and three good TV programs on at the same time?

This doesn't just happen by coincidence. Blame it on competition between the networks. They're all trying to pull the biggest audience for their advertisers, and one won't let the other get ahead if it can possibly be helped. TV programming is keen competition.

Now, this isn't bad. The result is that the vast public gets what it wants most, although it might sometimes hit at the same time.

And this competitive spirit exists among TV service organizations, too. We're all trying to do the finest job, the quickest and easiest way to hold down the costs to the public. LANDWEHR TV, 218 N. Dunton, Arlington Heights has steadily grown with this competitive spirit. Phone CLearbrook 5-0700 and see why more and more of the local folks are calling us for TV, radio and general electronic services.

Community Blends Gaiety and Reverence to Welcome '62

That crazy, mixed-up 1961, the year that looked the same upside down or right side up, is history. In farewelling a year that didn't know which end was up local folk did not serve upside down cake, stand on their heads or burn candles from the bottom up. Instead they welcomed 1962 at home parties and church services, blending gaiety and reverence into a prayerful wish for a truly good new year.

Sidelights

Of Arlington Heights

Dorothy Meyer, CL 3-2298 Elsie Jedd, CL 3-5982

At the fourth annual neighborhood New Year's eve party on the 1200 block of N. Mitchell, Mr. and Mrs. Don Graff hosted 14 celebrants in the home of neighbors with a just-right basement recreation. The Graffs, their guests and the Thomas Obermayer home at 1212 N. Mitchell provided a hospitable welcome to 1962.

The infant new year shared the spotlight with two other New Year's eve "babies" at a neighborhood cooperative party Sunday night in the home of Mr. Mrs. Howard Garrison, 1108 W. Miner. The traditional holiday get-together has long been in the planning stage with committees working on every phase of the fun session that included all 18 couples of the 1000 and 1100 blocks of W. Miner.

HIGHLIGHTING the entertainment was the presentation of "gag" gifts for the two birthday children, Al Otto and Mrs. Hal Bloss, honored annually at the holiday block party. Also as always, enthusiastic plans for a repeat next New Year's eve ended this New Year's eve celebration.

At 627 S. Ridge another as-per-custom New Year's eve party united 12 neighborhood couples who like to welcome the new year with old friends. Hosts this year were Mr. and Mrs. Gaylord Watland.

Although this is hardly the season for tornadoes, an unprecedented number of "twisters" went through town during the holiday week as the younger set did their share of entertaining. At all of the teenagers' parties "The Twist" was the thing and "old timers" over 30 who have survived a twist session marvelled, "Only a teen could take it every night in the week."

At Mary Lou Hogate's Twist party a week ago Wednesday night 90 names appeared in her guest book, a guest book being the only way to accurately count an open-house, ultra-mobile gang of twister. The dance, refreshments and holiday greetings were prime ingredients of the just-right session at 517 S. Dunton.

THURSDAY night the Charles Howard home at 738 S. Walnut was open to an estimated 100 guests of the Howards' daughter, Pat. Again The Twist took over the entertainment detail; Pat's hostess duties were shared by Judy Boehner.

There were reports of a twister in Scarsdale Friday night and Saturday night it swivelled over to 704 W. George where adults echoed gratitude not only for the kids' durability but for their consistent mannerliness that each parent-host commented upon. Bonnie Luster was the hostess at Saturday night's open house where the "uncountables" were estimated to number about 100.

Winding it up in more ways than one was Cheri Carroll's New Year's eve open house at 646 S. Vail with another 100, or perhaps the same 100 local youngsters twisting the upside down year out on its ear. Midnight refreshments and a final dance to start 1962 climaxed the evening.

Cheri's brother Steve, a junior at Emporia State college, ended his holiday vacation at home yesterday when he returned to the Emporia, Kan. campus.

FORMER Arlington Heights residents, the James McNamara family now of Westfield, N. J., enjoyed a between-the-holidays visit here with local friends and former neighbors. They were house guests of the Newell Crocketts, 802 S. Chestnut, and the Arthur Nyquists, 714 S. Mitchell, and from Wednesday until Saturday had gay reunions with the rest of the gang who were their neighbors until July of last year.

The Crockett family spent the Christmas weekend in Ft. Madison, Iowa with the senior Crocketts and other relatives in the area.

The Earl Snodgrass family celebrated Christmas in Ohioview, Pa. with Mrs. Snodgrass' parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Dornburg. They left here a week ago Saturday midst the super-abundance of that white stuff which caused the trip to take five hours longer than usual. The return trip last Wednesday, begun as the snow caught up to Pennsylvania, was tricky, too, but the time between was wonderful.

THE TRADITIONAL Christmas Eve family get-together in the Earl Pelland home, 45 S. Salem, this year included Mrs. Pelland's aunt, Mrs. Minnie Gustafson of Hibbing, Minn., who ended her holiday visit last Wednesday. All the other Christmas Eve guests were "overnighters" too, in cozy accordance with a family custom. They were Mrs. Pelland's aunts and uncles, the Wilfred Kindrys and Jerry Zuros, and the senior Pellands, all of Chicago.

Mr. and Mrs. Martin Richards of snowless Perrinton, Mich. arrived last Thursday for a holiday visit with Mr. Richard's sister and family, the John O'Berrys, 733 S. Mitchell. They left here Sunday, reacquainted with all the joys of a white holiday season.

Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Alkire and Karen returned Friday afternoon from a post-Christmas trip to New York City where Mr. Alkire attended to business matters and his girls enjoyed the city's sights which were super-beautiful for the holidays. The weather too, added to their pleasure; there was much less snow and many more degrees of temperature.

THE HOWARD Hansen family got the jump on the big pre-Christmas snow and left S. Mitchell a week ago Friday, arriving on schedule at the Minneapolis home of Mrs. Hansen's parents, the R. E. Harlins. The holiday weekend reunited them with all their Minnesota relatives and they returned here the day after Christmas.

Monday, Bob returned more than a little reluctantly to William Penn college in Oscaloosa, Iowa. He was traveling while the Rose Bowl game was in progress, a terrible fate for a dyed-in-the wool Minnesota fan. The outcome of the game brightened his disposition considerably, as it did all Minnesota rooters.

All but one of L. J. Luber's seven brothers and sisters reunited Christmas day at the home of their parents in Highland, Ill. A California brother was unable to make the family circle complete, but all 20 of the senior Lubers' grandchildren were present and pretty well filled the void.

The Arlington Heights Lubers, 844 S. Dunton, left here in the pre-Christmas snowstorm a week ago Saturday to join the others who came from other parts of the state and from Kentucky. They returned last Tuesday.

New Year's eve Mr. and Mrs. Luber were among a group of local couples who dined together at The Evergreens in Dundee, then returned here to the Robert Pomeroy home, 103 E. Orchard, for the welcome to 1962.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Riley, 738 S. Mitchell, hosted two groups of local friends during the two holiday weekends. On the pre-Christmas Saturday evening, 16 guests enjoyed cocktails and a buffet to herald the hospitality season. A block party Friday night brought 32 neighborhood friends together in the Riley home for an early happy New Year buffet and exchange of toasts to 1962.

The first - time - in - four - years visit home of their son, Jerome, prompted an early celebration of the January 16 wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Herff, 735 N. Pine. Jerome, a sixth year seminary student now at St. Mary's in Perryville, Mo., arrived Friday for a long-anticipated weekend stay and Saturday night shared in the silver anniversary celebration of his parents.

A buffet supper and reception for 120 family members and close friends was held in the St. Mary's school hall in Buffalo Grove and it served the double-happy purpose of welcoming Jerome and honoring his parents. The big day began for the Herff family with their attending a special mass in St. James Catholic Church of Arlington Heights.

For the past few years the Delbert Dornans, 1003 S. Dunton, have revived their party-weary neighbors at a New Year's day brunch that was made famous by Mrs. Dornan's culinary genius. The Dornans pulled a switch this year, hosting their 20 neighbors New Year's eve and leaving them to their own devices thereafter.

The hostess was a good friend as always, though, providing an all-night buffet that outdid even her brunches and climaxing the early hours of the new year with a hearty breakfast that probably sustained her guests the rest of the day.

MR. AND MRS. Tommy Mallow, 211 N. Windsor, entertained 36 local friends last Friday evening with a holiday party to begin the weekend-long farewelling of the old year.

Mr. and Mrs. William Erickson of Sheboygan, Wis., spent Christmas weekend here with their daughter and family, the Charles Mallons, 1041 S. Dunton.

Home Friday after a 3-week-and-Christmas visit in Savannah, Ga. were Mr. and Mrs. Carson Scoggins, 717 S. Walnut. They left here December 5, accompanied by Mrs. Scoggins' mother, Mrs. Albert Smothers of St. Johns, Mich., to enjoy the pre-holiday weeks and Christmas with their son, Lowell, and his wife. Lowell is a staff sergeant stationed at Hunter air base.

Adding to the pleasure of their visit and the reluctance of their leaving was the difference in climates between Savannah and Arlington Heights.

Mr. and Mrs. William Andres, 1145 N. Belmont, welcomed 1962 with 30 Chicago, local and out-of-town friends at a holiday party in their home Sunday night. A midnight buffet after the exchange of "Happy New Years" punctuated the gala occasion.

IN THE John Marquis home, 1015 N. Walnut, a half-dozen neighborhood couples welcomed the new year together Sunday night at a party typical of many in town which saw close friends toasting the success of the good neighbor policy. Eighteen present and former neighbors of the George Kendalls took time out early Christmas eve to wish their host a happy birthday at a "quickie" afternoon party in the Kendall home, 733 S. Dunton.

The day after Christmas the Kendalls enjoyed a visit from Mr. Kendall's grandmother, Mrs. Joe Kendall of Salem, Ind. The 81-year-young lady decided rather abrup tlyth ate'dsh ed rather abruptly that she'd spend the holidays in the Chicago area, so she hopped a train and did, ad gtoher nm train and did, adding to her schedule a day in Arlington Heights to wish her grandson a belated happy birthday.

In the John Heffernan home, 622 S. State, two successive post-Christmas birthdays were this year celebrated quietly at a small family party. The holiday excitement plus family recognition were enough this extra-busy season for Patrick who was 13 Thursday and John who turned 10 Friday.

The post-holiday lull that settles everywhere this week came with a thud in the Edward Hirons household, 1020 N. Chestnut, where two college children came and went in a simultaneous flurry of happy confusion. Jerry, who attends Loras college in Dubuque, and Peggy, at Marycrest in Davenport, added more than a little to the holiday hubbub and have left a proportionate void.

COLLEGIANS who didn't come home for the Christmas vacation are rare as roses in January and enjoying the Tournament of Roses in Pasadena, Cal. January 1 was Nita Wist, daughter of the Henry Wists, 837 S. Vail. Nita, a Purdue university sophomore, spent the holidays in Los Angeles with her fiance, Robert Bullock, and his parents, her first Christmas away from home and her first Tournament of Roses making a most unusual vacation.

In the Wist home Christmas day, 24 family members almost but not quite made up for the one who was missing around the festive holiday table. Among the guests were the host's brother, E. C. Wist, and his family, here from Dayton for a 3 day Christmas visit.

The John Kitch family, 1032 S. Dunton, spent the Christmas weekend in Cedar Rapids at the home of Mr. Kitch's mother, racing the snow all the way Friday night before the holiday. "The snow won," was the Kitches brief comment, but a family-all-together with the senior Mrs. Kitch and other relatives made the race worth running.

Here from Elkhart to celebrate New Year's with the Jack Kellers were longtime friends, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Welter. They arrived Sunday evening in time for a New Year's eve celebration and enjoyed a 3-day stay in the Kellers' new home at 512 W. South. The Keller family, formerly at 308 N. Haddow, moved early in December.

Mr. and Mrs. Wier Swanson, 901 S. Highland, hosted at a New Year's eve dinner party for eight Sunday evening, other local friends joining the group for the welcome to 1962.

MISS ANNE Heuer, Miss Arlington Heights and a senior at Prospect high school, took advantage of the holiday season to entertain girl friends at a recent party in her home at 102 S. Brighton.

Several Stonegate families took advantage of the long New Year's weeekend and favorable weather and went on skiing trips to near by resorts.

The Alfred Wilcoxs, Warren Klines, John Dietzes and Robert Mitchells left last Friday for Traverse City, Mich. to ski on Boyne and Crystal mountains. Earlier in the week the Wilcox' daughter, Joan, and son, George, left for a 4-day ski holiday at Mt. Telemark, Wis.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Carey, 103 S. Derbyshire, were hosts at an informal New Year's eve party. They met their guests at the village park for an evening of ice skating after which they returned to the Carey home to toast the New Year.

MR. AND MRS. Chester J. Moore, 311 S. Windsor, welcomed friends to their annual New Year's eve party.

Mr. and Mrs. Gale Overlin, 210 S. Dryden, gave a New Year's eve party for 12 guests.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Basil, 421 S. Windsor gave a "open house" New Year's day, for friends from Arlington Heights and Des Plaines.

Mrs. Walter Strobel, 1319 Mayfair, entertained at a holiday coffee December 20 for her neighbors.

Thirty members of the Arlington Heights Historical society met December 29 at the home of Mrs. Stephen Jurco, 217 S. Windsor, for their annual Christmas party and meeting.

Miss Barbara Gran, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Gran, 221 S. Derbyshire, marked her 16th birthday December 30 with a dinner dance at Rolling Green country club.

MR. AND Mrs. Wilbur Todd, who recently spent a year in Tenafly, N. J., and have returned to live in their same Brighton place home, entertained at a dinner party December 29. Guests included Mr. and Mrs. Ted Cutshall, formerly of Palatine and now of Indianapolis, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Hoffman and Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Kamm, both families of Barrington.

Two birthdays in the James Brice household, 215 S. Stratford, added extra merriment to the holiday season. December 15, was the fifth birthday of their youngest daughter, Kim, who celebrated with a party at home with movies and cartoons to amuse her guests.

Susan, their elder daughter, marked her 11th birthday December 21 taking two friends, Arlene Palmer and Suzanne Pray, for luncheon in Chicago and to attend a performance of Walt Disney's "Babes in Toyland."

HOLIDAY GUESTS of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Carns, 106 S. Stratford, are their son and daughter-in-law, the James O. Carns, and their baby daughter, Christene. The young Carns are here from Columbia, Mo., where he attends the University of Missouri.

Also here for a visit is Mrs. Carns' mother, Mrs. O. W. Eldridge of Los Angeles.

The Misses Jean and Marilyn Rose, home with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. George W.Rose, 1300 Mayfair, for Christmas, enjoyed a busy holiday visiting neighbors, friends and former classmates and attending plays in Chicago. They joined their parents to attend performances of "Sound of Music" and "Bye Bye Birdie". They returned to their respective colleges, the University of Colorado and the University of Arizona, January 2 and 3.

There were 15 around the George H. Jirgals' Christmas dinner table, with guests coming from near and far away.

Center of attraction was a young charmer, and youngest guest, 7-month-old Linda Kuby, who was thoroughly enjoying her first Christmas. Other guests included John Pappas of Turkey, Miss Lois Shaughnessy of Springfield, Ill., Miss Dorothy Jirgal of Madison, and from Chicago, were Mr. and Mrs. Edward Carlson, Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Kuby, Mrs. Edna Johnson and her daughter, Karen, John Jirgal and Mrs. John McClain.

MR. AND MRS. H. A. Burnett, 317 S. Derbyshire, joined the Christmas festivities at the Wheaton home of their son-in-law's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles McNamee.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Franzen, 504 S. Belmont, were hosts at a holiday dinner for 12 family members.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Skinner, 721 S. Beverly, entertained 35 guests at a cocktail and buffet supper party December 29 and were "at home" to friends New Year's eve.

The Skinners had as their weekend houseguest, Miss Edna Yudell of Chicago.

All the neighbors of the 500 block of S. Dryden place gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. Howe for a New Year's eve celebration.

MR. AND MRS. Calvin C. McClinton, 441 S. Belmont, were hosts to 36 Scarsdale friends at a cocktail party December 29.

Mr. and Mrs. William Ball, 454 Banbury, asked a few friends in for a chili and pizza party December 27.

Mrs. George Bolas, 630 S. Beverly, gave a coffee, December 29, for area captains of the Cerebral Palsy drive of the Arlington Heights area.

Later, Mrs. Bolas welcomed home her eldest son, Bruce, a senior at the University of Michigan, and three of his out-of-town fraternity brothers, for dinner.

Still later that day Mr. and Mrs. Bolas were hosts to 40 young friends of their son, Bob. Bob, a freshman at DePauw asked many of his friends home form college to a holiday party in his home which was complete with a combo for dancing and bridge for the card playing guests.

MR. AND MRS. Edward F. Cockerham, 410 S. Lincoln, and their children, Doug and Becky, are home from a 3-day visit in Indiana, visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Cockerham in Shelbyville, and a reunion of Mrs. Cockerham's family at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Eber Greenlee of Columbus.

Mr. and Mrs. O. F. Davenport, 314 S. Beverly, spent 10 days in Winston Salem, N. C. visiting their son-in-law and daughter, the Clarke Garretts. The Garretts recently moved to Winston Salem from Madison. Mrs. Garrett is an assistant professor of history at Lake Forest college.

During their stay in Winston-Salem, the Davenports attended the colorful and beautiful Moravian Christmas church service, and as this was their first visit in the area, went sight seeing to points of interest.

Returning home, they stopped in Nashville to see a replica of the Parthenon of the Acropolis. (A

Eastwood Events

The holiday season was saddened for Mr. and Mrs. Carl Carlman due to the death of Mr. Carlman's mother, Mrs. Thekla Carlman, last Thursday. Mrs. Carlman, who had lived at Magnus Farm for the past four years, was buried Saturday in Ridgewood cemetery. Sincerest sympathy from their neighbors is extended to the Carlman family.

The Carlmans had entertained for 40 people at a Christmas Day open house, and many of these same guests returned to their home after the funeral on Saturday.

A holiday party at Mr. and Mrs. Richard Brownell's home was given for the tenants and personnel of Mr. Brownell's office building at 15 N. State rd. Twenty-four guests enjoyed the pre-Christmas luncheon.

THE BILL INMAN family traveled to St. Louis during Christmas week to see their son, Bob, play basketball. Bob is a member of the Harvard university team and that school competed against Washington, Wheaton, DePauw, Valparaiso and William Jewell universities in a Christmas tournament. Bob's team came in second, losing to Valparaiso by just two points. The Inmans were in St. Louis from Thursday to Sunday, and besides watching the tournament, most of their time was spent visiting with parents of the other boys on the Harvard team. After the family's return Bob left immediately for a game in Pittsburgh with Carnegie Tech before heading back to school on Thursday.

Holiday entertaining at the Inmans took place before their St. Louis trek. On the 16th they were hosts to a potluck dinner to which Bill's men's duplicate bridge club had invited their wives. On the Saturday before Christmas the Inmans invited their Douglas ave. neighbors for dinner and an evening of holiday fellowship.

New Year's Eve and Day entertaining took place in many Eastwood homes. Mr. and Mrs. George Brinke were hosts for cards New Year's Eve for their neighbors, the William Kaspers and Carl Carlmans. Eileen and Jack Anderson entertained many of their Lincoln lane neighbors at a gala celebration, and on New Year's Day Mr. and Mrs. John Johannesen of Euclid ave. held open house.

WEEKEND GUESTS of Mr. and Mrs. Les Moodie were the Raymond E. Atkinsons, former Arlington residents, now of Michigan City. The Atkinsons came to town to be with a group of friends who always welcome in the new year together. The gathering this year took place at the Warren Fellinghams who now live in Inverness.

Christmas visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. Edward Fritz were their daughter and son-in-law, Dr. and Mrs. Alvin H. Fisher, and their children, Kathie, Vicki, Geoffrey and Laura of Abington, Pa. The quietness of the Fritz home since their grandchildren's departure was broken New Year's Day when the Fritzes were hosts to many of their neighbors who gathered in their home to watch the Rose Bowl parade and game on the Fritzes' colored TV.

Mrs. Arthur Peterson who has been staying with her daughter's family, Col. and Mrs. Richard Schriver of the American legation in Mexico City since before Thanksgiving, returned in time to welcome another daughter and son-in-law, Judy and David Hess from Des Moines, Iowa on New Year's Eve. The Petersons and the Hesses went to Sandwich, Ill. for the christening on Monday of the Petersons' newest grandchild. Mr. and Mrs. Hess were sponsors for the new baby boy, Paul Sotrop, who is the son of Dr. and Mrs. Ernest Sotrop, the Peterson's other daughter.

THE SYMPATHY of all his neighbors is sent to Nikolous Wichtner whose wife died December 14. The Wichtners had celebrated their golden wedding anniversary October 27. Since Mrs. Wichtner's death Mr. Wichtner has been hospitalized at Northwest Community where he has undergone surgery.

A Christmas furlough at home was enjoyed by Robert Maierhofer of Douglas ave. His parents drove him back to Mt. Eustis, Va., after his all-too-short holiday leave. (A

Community Blends Gaiety and Reverence to Welcome '62

Sidelights

Dorothy Meyer, CL 3-2298   Elsie Jedd, CL 3-5982

That crazy, mixed-up 1961, the year that looked the same upside down or right side up, is history. In farewelling a year that didn't know which end was up local folk did not serve upside down cake, stand on their heads or burn candles from the bottom up. Instead they welcomed 1962 at home parties and church services, blending gaiety and reverence into a prayerful wish for a truly good new year.

At the fourth annual neighborhood New Year's eve party on the 1200 block of N. Mitchell, Mr. and Mrs. Don Graff hosted 14 celebrants in the home of neighbors with a just-right basement recreation. The Graffs, their guests and the Thomas Obermayer home at 1212 N. Mitchell provided a hospitable welcome to 1962.

The infant new year shared the spotlight with two other New Year's eve "babies" at a neighborhood cooperative party Sunday night in the home of Mr. Mrs. Howard Garrison, 1108 W. Miner. The traditional holiday get-together has long been in the planning stage with committees working on every phase of the fun session that included all 18 couples of the 1000 and 1100 blocks of W. Miner.

HIGHLIGHTING the entertainment was the presentation of "gag" gifts for the two birthday children, Al Otto and Mrs. Hal Bloss, honored annually at the holiday block party. Also as always, enthusiastic plans for a repeat next New Year's eve ended this New Year's eve celebration.

At 627 S. Ridge another as-per-custom New Year's eve party united 12 neighborhood couples who like to welcome the new year with old friends. Hosts this year were Mr. and Mrs. Gaylord Watland.

Although this is hardly the season for tornadoes, an unprecedented number of "twisters" went through town during the holiday week as the younger set did their share of entertaining. At all of the teenagers' parties "The Twist" was the thing and "old timers" over 30 who have survived a twist session marvelled, "Only a teen could take it every night in the week."

At Mary Lou Hogate's Twist party a week ago Wednesday night 90 names appeared in her guest book, a guest book being the only way to accurately count an open-house, ultra-mobile gang of twister. The dance, refreshments and holiday greetings were prime ingredients of the just-right session at 517 S. Dunton.

THURSDAY night the Charles Howard home at 738 S. Walnut was open to an estimated 100 guests of the Howards' daughter, Pat. Again The Twist took over the entertainment detail; Pat's hostess duties were shared by Judy Boehner.

There were reports of a twister in Scarsdale Friday night and Saturday night it swivelled over to 704 W. George where adults echoed gratitude not only for the kids' durability but for their consistent mannerliness that each parent-host commented upon. Bonnie Luster was the hostess at Saturday night's open house where the "uncountables" were estimated to number about 100.

Winding it up in more ways than one was Cheri Carroll's New Year's eve open house at 646 S. Vail with another 100, or perhaps the same 100 local youngsters twisting the upside down year out on its ear. Midnight refreshments and a final dance to start 1962 climaxed the evening.

Cheri's brother Steve, a junior at Emporia State college, ended his holiday vacation at home yesterday when he returned to the Emporia, Kan. campus.

FORMER Arlington Heights residents, the James McNamara family now of Westfield, N. J., enjoyed a between-the-holidays visit here with local friends and former neighbors. They were house guests of the Newell Crocketts, 802 S. Chestnut, and the Arthur Nyquists, 714 S. Mitchell, and from Wednesday until Saturday had gay reunions with the rest of the gang who were their neighbors until July of last year.

The Crockett family spent the Christmas weekend in Ft. Madison, Iowa with the senior Crocketts and other relatives in the area.

The Earl Snodgrass family celebrated Christmas in Ohioview, Pa. with Mrs. Snodgrass' parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Dornburg. They left here a week ago Saturday midst the super-abundance of that white stuff which caused the trip to take five hours longer than usual. The return trip last Wednesday, begun as the snow caught up to Pennsylvania, was tricky, too, but the time between was wonderful.

THE TRADITIONAL Christmas Eve family get-together in the Earl Pelland home, 45 S. Salem, this year included Mrs. Pelland's aunt, Mrs. Minnie Gustafson of Hibbing, Minn., who ended her holiday visit last Wednesday. All the other Christmas Eve guests were "overnighters" too, in cozy accordance with a family custom. They were Mrs. Pelland's aunts and uncles, the Wilfred Kindrys and Jerry Zuros, and the senior Pellands, all of Chicago.

Mr. and Mrs. Martin Richards of snowless Perrinton, Mich. arrived last Thursday for a holiday visit with Mr. Richard's sister and family, the John O'Berrys, 733 S. Mitchell. They left here Sunday, reacquainted with all the joys of a white holiday season.

Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Alkire and Karen returned Friday afternoon from a post-Christmas trip to New York City where Mr. Alkire attended to business matters and his girls enjoyed the city's sights which were super-beautiful for the holidays. The weather too, added to their pleasure; there was much less snow and many more degrees of temperature.

THE HOWARD Hansen family got the jump on the big pre-Christmas snow and left S. Mitchell a week ago Friday, arriving on schedule at the Minneapolis home of Mrs. Hansen's parents, the R. E. Harlins. The holiday weekend reunited them with all their Minnesota relatives and they returned here the day after Christmas.

Monday, Bob returned more than a little reluctantly to William Penn college in Oscaloosa, Iowa. He was traveling while the Rose Bowl game was in progress, a terrible fate for a dyed-in-the wool Minnesota fan. The outcome of the game brightened his disposition considerably, as it did all Minnesota rooters.

All but one of L. J. Luber's seven brothers and sisters reunited Christmas day at the home of their parents in Highland, Ill. A California brother was unable to make the family circle complete, but all 20 of the senior Lubers' grandchildren were present and pretty well filled the void.

The Arlington Heights Lubers, 844 S. Dunton, left here in the pre-Christmas snowstorm a week ago Saturday to join the others who came from other parts of the state and from Kentucky. They returned last Tuesday.

New Year's eve Mr. and Mrs. Luber were among a group of local couples who dined together at The Evergreens in Dundee, then returned here to the Robert Pomeroy home, 103 E. Orchard, for the welcome to 1962.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Riley, 738 S. Mitchell, hosted two groups of local friends during the two holiday weekends. On the pre-Christmas Saturday evening, 16 guests enjoyed cocktails and a buffet to herald the hospitality season. A block party Friday night brought 32 neighborhood friends together in the Riley home for an early happy New Year buffet and exchange of toasts to 1962.

The first - time - in - four - years visit home of their son, Jerome, prompted an early celebration of the January 16 wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Herff, 735 N. Pine. Jerome, a sixth year seminary student now at St. Mary's in Perryville, Mo., arrived Friday for a long-anticipated weekend stay and Saturday night shared in the silver anniversary celebration of his parents.

A buffet supper and reception for 120 family members and close friends was held in the St. Mary's school hall in Buffalo Grove and it served the double-happy purpose of welcoming Jerome and honoring his parents. The big day began for the Herff family with their attending a special mass in St. James Catholic Church of Arlington Heights.

For the past few years the Delbert Dornans, 1003 S. Dunton, have revived their party-weary neighbors at a New Year's day brunch that was made famous by Mrs. Dornan's culinary genius. The Dornans pulled a switch this year, hosting their 20 neighbors New Year's eve and leaving them to their own devices thereafter.

The hostess was a good friend as always, though, providing an all-night buffet that outdid even her brunches and climaxing the early hours of the new year with a hearty breakfast that probably sustained her guests the rest of the day.

MR. AND MRS. Tommy Mallow, 211 N. Windsor, entertained 36 local friends last Friday evening with a holiday party to begin the weekend-long farewelling of the old year.

Mr. and Mrs. William Erickson of Sheboygan, Wis., spent Christmas weekend here with their daughter and family, the Charles Mallons, 1041 S. Dunton.

Home Friday after a 3-week-and-Christmas visit in Savannah, Ga. were Mr. and Mrs. Carson Scoggins, 717 S. Walnut. They left here December 5, accompanied by Mrs. Scoggins' mother, Mrs. Albert Smothers of St. Johns, Mich., to enjoy the pre-holiday weeks and Christmas with their son, Lowell, and his wife. Lowell is a staff sergeant stationed at Hunter air base.

Adding to the pleasure of their visit and the reluctance of their leaving was the difference in climates between Savannah and Arlington Heights.

Mr. and Mrs. William Andres, 1145 N. Belmont, welcomed 1962 with 30 Chicago, local and out-of-town friends at a holiday party in their home Sunday night. A midnight buffet after the exchange of "Happy New Years" punctuated the gala occasion.

IN THE John Marquis home, 1015 N. Walnut, a half-dozen neighborhood couples welcomed the new year together Sunday night at a party typical of many in town which saw close friends toasting the success of the good neighbor policy. Eighteen present and former neighbors of the George Kendalls took time out early Christmas eve to wish their host a happy birthday at a "quickie" afternoon party in the Kendall home, 733 S. Dunton.

The day after Christmas the Kendalls enjoyed a visit from Mr. Kendall's grandmother, Mrs. Joe Kendall of Salem, Ind. The 81-year-young lady decided rather abrup tlyth ate'dsh ed rather abruptly that she'd spend the holidays in the Chicago area, so she hopped a train and did, ad gtoher nm train and did, adding to her schedule a day in Arlington Heights to wish her grandson a belated happy birthday.

In the John Heffernan home, 622 S. State, two successive post-Christmas birthdays were this year celebrated quietly at a small family party. The holiday excitement plus family recognition were enough this extra-busy season for Patrick who was 13 Thursday and John who turned 10 Friday.

The post-holiday lull that settles everywhere this week came with a thud in the Edward Hirons household, 1020 N. Chestnut, where two college children came and went in a simultaneous flurry of happy confusion. Jerry, who attends Loras college in Dubuque, and Peggy, at Marycrest in Davenport, added more than a little to the holiday hubbub and have left a proportionate void.

COLLEGIANS who didn't come home for the Christmas vacation are rare as roses in January and enjoying the Tournament of Roses in Pasadena, Cal. January 1 was Nita Wist, daughter of the Henry Wists, 837 S. Vail. Nita, a Purdue university sophomore, spent the holidays in Los Angeles with her fiance, Robert Bullock, and his parents, her first Christmas away from home and her first Tournament of Roses making a most unusual vacation.

In the Wist home Christmas day, 24 family members almost but not quite made up for the one who was missing around the festive holiday table. Among the guests were the host's brother, E. C. Wist, and his family, here from Dayton for a 3 day Christmas visit.

The John Kitch family, 1032 S. Dunton, spent the Christmas weekend in Cedar Rapids at the home of Mr. Kitch's mother, racing the snow all the way Friday night before the holiday. "The snow won," was the Kitches brief comment, but a family-all-together with the senior Mrs. Kitch and other relatives made the race worth running.

Here from Elkhart to celebrate New Year's with the Jack Kellers were longtime friends, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Welter. They arrived Sunday evening in time for a New Year's eve celebration and enjoyed a 3-day stay in the Kellers' new home at 512 W. South. The Keller family, formerly at 308 N. Haddow, moved early in December.

Mr. and Mrs. Wier Swanson, 901 S. Highland, hosted at a New Year's eve dinner party for eight Sunday evening, other local friends joining the group for the welcome to 1962.

MISS ANNE Heuer, Miss Arlington Heights and a senior at Prospect high school, took advantage of the holiday season to entertain girl friends at a recent party in her home at 102 S. Brighton.

Several Stonegate families took advantage of the long New Year's weeekend and favorable weather and went on skiing trips to near by resorts.

The Alfred Wilcoxs, Warren Klines, John Dietzes and Robert Mitchells left last Friday for Traverse City, Mich. to ski on Boyne and Crystal mountains. Earlier in the week the Wilcox' daughter, Joan, and son, George, left for a 4-day ski holiday at Mt. Telemark, Wis.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Carey, 103 S. Derbyshire, were hosts at an informal New Year's eve party. They met their guests at the village park for an evening of ice skating after which they returned to the Carey home to toast the New Year.

Guests included Mr. and Mrs. Ted Cutshall, formerly of Palatine and now of Indianapolis, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Hoffman and Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Kamm, both families of Barrington.

Two birthdays in the James Brice household, 215 S. Stratford, added extra merriment to the holiday season. December 15, was the fifth birthday of their youngest daughter, Kim, who celebrated with a party at home with movies and cartoons to amuse her guests.

Susan, their elder daughter, marked her 11th birthday December 21 taking two friends, Arlene Palmer and Suzanne Pray, for luncheon in Chicago and to attend a performance of Walt Disney's "Babes in Toyland."

They joined their parents to attend performances of "Sound of Music" and "Bye Bye Birdie". They returned to their respective colleges, the University of Colorado and the University of Arizona, January 2 and 3.

There were 15 around the George H. Jirgals' Christmas dinner table, with guests coming from near and far away.

Center of attraction was a young charmer, and youngest guest, 7-month-old Linda Kuby, who was thoroughly enjoying her first Christmas. Other guests included John Pappas of Turkey, Miss Lois Shaughnessy of Springfield, Ill., Miss Dorothy Jirgal of Madison, and from Chicago, were Mr. and Mrs. Edward Carlson, Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Kuby, Mrs. Edna Johnson and her daughter, Karen, John Jirgal and Mrs. John McClain.

Eastwood Events

The holiday season was saddened for Mr. and Mrs. Carl Carlman due to the death of Mr. Carlman's mother, Mrs. Thekla Carlman, last Thursday. Mrs. Carlman, who had lived at Magnus Farm for the past four years, was buried Saturday in Ridgewood cemetery. Sincerest sympathy from their neighbors is extended to the Carlman family.

The Carlmans had entertained for 40 people at a Christmas Day open house, and many of these same guests returned to their home after the funeral on Saturday.

A holiday party at Mr. and Mrs. Richard Brownell's home was given for the tenants and personnel of Mr. Brownell's office building at 15 N. State rd. Twenty-four guests enjoyed the pre-Christmas luncheon.

THE BILL INMAN family traveled to St. Louis during Christmas week to see their son, Bob, play basketball. Bob is a member of the Harvard university team and that school competed against Washington, Wheaton, DePauw, Valparaiso and William Jewell universities in a Christmas tournament. Bob's team came in second, losing to Valparaiso by just two points. The Inmans were in St. Louis from Thursday to Sunday, and besides watching the tournament, most of their time was spent visiting with parents of the other boys on the Harvard team. After the family's return Bob left immediately for a game in Pittsburgh with Carnegie Tech before heading back to school on Thursday.

Holiday entertaining at the Inmans took place before their St. Louis trek. On the 16th they were hosts to a potluck dinner to which Bill's men's duplicate bridge club had invited their wives. On the Saturday before Christmas the Inmans invited their Douglas ave. neighbors for dinner and an evening of holiday fellowship.

New Year's Eve and Day entertaining took place in many Eastwood homes. Mr. and Mrs. George Brinke were hosts for cards New Year's Eve for their neighbors, the William Kaspers and Carl Carlmans. Eileen and Jack Anderson entertained many of their Lincoln lane neighbors at a gala celebration, and on New Year's Day Mr. and Mrs. John Johannesen of Euclid ave. held open house.

WEEKEND GUESTS of Mr. and Mrs. Les Moodie were the Raymond E. Atkinsons, former Arlington residents, now of Michigan City. The Atkinsons came to town to be with a group of friends who always welcome in the new year together. The gathering this year took place at the Warren Fellinghams who now live in Inverness.

Christmas visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. Edward Fritz were their daughter and son-in-law, Dr. and Mrs. Alvin H. Fisher, and their children, Kathie, Vicki, Geoffrey and Laura of Abington, Pa. The quietness of the Fritz home since their grandchildren's departure was broken New Year's Day when the Fritzes were hosts to many of their neighbors who gathered in their home to watch the Rose Bowl parade and game on the Fritzes' colored TV.

Mrs. Arthur Peterson who has been staying with her daughter's family, Col. and Mrs. Richard Schriver of the American legation in Mexico City since before Thanksgiving, returned in time to welcome another daughter and son-in-law, Judy and David Hess from Des Moines, Iowa on New Year's Eve. The Petersons and the Hesses went to Sandwich, Ill. for the christening on Monday of the Petersons' newest grandchild. Businessmen Predict Hike in '62 Spending

by REYNOLDS KNIGHT

With the memory of record Christmas sales still fresh in their minds, U.S. businessmen are predicting a boom in consumer spending during the early months of 1962.

Noting that increased retail sales have included both hard and soft goods, and that labor income recently reached a new high, industrialists and retailers are optimistic about this year's consumer spending and are gearing production and merchandising schedules to meet the anticipated demand.

Although there are several danger areas—including possible labor problems, possible inflation and the possible adverse effects of liberal trade policies on some industries—which might suppress consumer spending, business men are confident that volume buying will continue unless serious problems develop in any of those areas. The forecast for '62: full speed ahead.

SMOKING MAN'S FILTER— The rapid growth of filter-tip brands and the popularizing of menthol-flavored cigarettes to meet individual taste preferences have created intense competition which will lead to record cigarette sales in 1962, William S. Cutchins, president of the Brown & Williamson Tobacco corp., Louisville, Ky., predicts.

According to Cutchins, the shift to filter and menthol smokes has been such that about 40 different brands are now vying for consumer dollars. He predicted that filters, which took 53.6 per cent of the market last year, would account for 54.2 per cent of 1962 cigarette sales. Filter-cigarettes, which were the industry's first attempt to satisfy individual taste preferences, were introduced in 1936 when Viceroy was marketed. Their sales have leaped since that time.

Both filter-tip and menthol-flavored cigarettes have created an "age of specialization" in cigarette manufacture which will push 1962 sales to a record 500 billion units, up from 470 billion units in 1960 and a 100 per cent increase in sales in 10 years, according to the Brown & Williamson president.

HOUSING SPURT — Newly developed building materials and construction techniques will help boost housing starts to more than 1.37 million this year, according to H. Dorn Stewart, president of Allied Chemical corporation's Barrett division, a leading manufacturer of building materials.

Stewart said plastic sewerage and plumbing piping, plastic gutters and leaders, foamed plastic urethane roof insulation, fibrated protective coatings and non-flammable vinyl building panels are among the new developments that will spur residential building.

New building techniques include non-load-bearing walls with gypsum cores that eliminate wood framing and studding, pre-assembled roof trusses for economical construction, preformed kitchen cabinets of plastic, and rigid insulation wall—such as Rigidwall—that eliminates the need for corner braces, Mr. Stewart said.

He predicted that increasing use of plastics and chemically based building materials will "change many of the building concepts as we know them today." The new products will speed construction of new homes and result in dollar savings for both home builders and buyers, he added. The Barrett Division product line is backed by the research and development facilities of the Allied Chemical Corporation, one of the nation's foremost chemical companies.

INSTRUMENTS GAIN— The The U. S. instrumentation industry—riding on the tailwind of improving economy, rising capital spending and mounting defense budgets—is gearing its production for another record-breaking year in 1962.

Four factors in industrial growth will bring about sales of almost $8 billion in scientific, military, industrial and component instrument and control systems this year, according to James S. Locke, vice president of the Minneapolis-Honeywell Regulator company, a leading manufacturer of instrumentation and computers.

These factors are: the large outlays of modernization dollars by industry in 1962; the high level of research and development, which requires specialized instrumentation; the rapid growth of interest and sales in the digital computer market; and the continuing trend toward multi-functioning control systems, with more and more instances where such a system is applied and installed by a single manufacturing source.

Locke said the "coming of age" of the digital process computer, the greater use of analytical devices, and the "building block" arrangement of systems to permit ready expansion, were noteworthy 1961 trends which will contribute to an enlarged market this year. conscious Americans will continue to be the best-fed people on earth again this year, if latest estimates of 1962 farm productivity are correct.

A year-end statement by Cargill, Inc., one of the nation's largest handlers and processors of agricultural products, predicts that 1962 farm output will push ahead of 1961 levels. The reason, according to Cargill, is that "agribusiness" research has greatly perfected crop strains, animal lines and production techniques, and the expectation is that continuing technological improvements will result in better farm efficiency this year.

Nutrena, Cargill's feed division, noted that $541 million was spent for research in better farming and feed methods in 1961. (A14

Alien Registration Is Due in January

District Director, Wilbor T. Flagg of the Immigration and Naturalization Service stated that aliens in the United States will be required to report their addresses to the Attorney General within the near future.

All aliens with a few exceptions, who are in the United States on January 1, each year must report their addresses by the end of that month. Only the following classes of aliens are excused from this requirement: (1) Accredited Diplomats; (2) Persons accredited to certain international organizations; and (3) Those admitted temporarily as agricultural laborers.

Forms with which to make the report can be obtained from any Post Office or Immigration Office during the month of January. Flagg said that the law provides severe penalties for failure to comply with the reporting requirement. B8

Ridge Park–Sherwood

From Ridge Park

The Friday before Christmas this reporter piled two children and a dog in the car and drove into Chicago to pick up Daddy for a trip to Michigan just before the blizzard hit. Thus no column last week.

Mary Vetter, 813 N. Patton, spent the holidays in Northwest Community hospital as the result of an operation; however, she was able to come home Christmas day. She made a brief return to the hospital but is back home recuperating now and all her friends wish her a speedy recovery.

Friday when this reporter called Mrs. Bill Rudy, 822 N. Princeton, she was thinking of something delectable to serve her dinner guests Saturday evening. They were the Frank Psotas, Ernie Rosses and the Ted Priviteras of Elk Grove.

WHEN THE Richard Woods, 729 N. Fernandez, went to Milwaukee for New Year's weekend with his mother, Mrs. Ann Wood, they knew they would be busy visiting relatives. But they managed to squeeze in the Marquette university basketball game Saturday and cheered lustily for his alma mater.

Along with the hustle and bustle of the holiday came three birthdays at the Bill Burns', 721 N. Patton. Barbara was "sweet 16" November 19 and celebrated the occasion with a family party. There was a triple celebration Christmas day when the Burns entertained their family at dinner honoring Billy's seventh birthday New Year's day and Patty's sixth birthday 10 days later.

The Don Holmes, 823 N. Salem, chose last Sunday for the christening of their infant daughter, Doris Lynn, at the First Presbyterian church. Sponsors were Doris's uncle, Gary Chichester, and her aunt, Mrs. Barbara Ehrhart. After the service a buffet supper was served to the sponsors and their families as well as friends and relatives.

Over "coffee and" Mrs. Holmes and several of her neighbors caught their breaths last Wednesday evening at her home and swapped bits of news of the holidays.

THE HOUSE at 915 N. Yale, where the William Anguses live, was livened up Christmas day with the arrival of Bill and Gloria and their baby. With Christmas behind them, Mr. and Mrs. Angus headed for Nebraska to spend New Year's weekend with her sister and her family. Meanwhile, David came home for a 10-day furlough from the army and was still home when his parents returned Monday.

The Robert A. Balfours, 1208 Northwest hwy, included her brother, sister-in-law and their two children around their Christmas dinner table this year. The Joseph Valvos live in Elk Grove Village.

The Dick Platts, 806 N. Kennicott, talked to his parents who are wintering in Florida.

The R. N. Cummings, 1115 W. Elm, spent Christmas eve with her brother and his family in Chicago and then journeyed up to Marshall, Wis., to spend Christmas with his parents, brothers and sisters.

Marge Johnson, who formerly lived at 929 N. Harvard, moved to Yardley, Pa., with her family so quickly in November that all the plans for going-away parties fell through. However, the Johnsons did return here for the holidays and she promised her Harvard ave. friends a whole day of visiting. What started out to be lunch at Kitty Shaffer's for the two of them, snowballed into a luncheon at Brandts with Helen Krilcic, Arlene Georgas, Lorraine Cummings, Peggy Harvell, Terry Demmert and, of course, Marge and Kitty. The ladies surprised her with a candelabra for her new home.

THERE HAVE been big plans afoot at the Lenord Garashas, 809 N. Harvard, ever since they knew his sister and her family, the Dave Fosters, were coming for the holidays from Glen Falls, N.Y. The three boys have been staying with the Garashas and topped off the holidays with a family dinner for 22 Sunday, the day before the Fosters left for New York.

The Hugo Hillstedts came south, from Minneapolis, to spend the holidays with their children, the Wayne Harmons, 1125 W. Oakton. Paul and his family celebrated New Year's eve, but for a slightly different reason. He was 2 years old.

The Hank Inselbergers, 640 N. Salem, had Christmas dinner with her sister and her family, the Robert O'Sheas in Skokie. Twenty-five gathered around the Christmas table.

IT TOOK THE Harold Jacobs, 931 N. Patton, two days to finish their Christmas celebrating. Her parents, the George Kellingers of Hillside, joined them Christmas day, along with her sister and brother-in-law, the Elmer Karns and Kenny of Burlington, Wis. The following day they entertained his side of the family: his parents, the Maurice Jacobs of Forest Park, the junior Maurice Jacobs of Glen Ellyn, the Howard Jacobs and their children from Palatine and Mrs. Barbara Kellinger and her three boys from Berkeley. When the Karns returned to Burlington they took Craig and Arden with them for the rest of the holidays.

Santa Claus came to the Frank Kiecas', 821 N. Salem, Christmas eve and the 20 nieces and nephews, along with the nine adults who came for the buffet dinner party were impressed in varying degrees. When he distributed the presents, some of the children smothered him with kisses.

The Bob Helds and Robin came from Monroeville, Pa., to spend the holidays with his sister and her family, the C. A. Klipperts, 1003 N. Fernandez. The two families journeyed to Twin Lakes to spend Christmas day with Del and Bob's parents.

From Sherwood

The Robert Blackburns, 1004 Watling, were surrounded by family this Christmas. Bob and his family came here from Davenport for several days, Jim was home and Mrs. Blackburn's brother and sister also joined them.

Miss Ruth Sawyer came from Kalamazooo to be with her sister and her family, the R. J. Ehrkes, 1106 Patton, for the holidays. Christmas day they were joined by another sister, Mrs. McCarty of Elgin, and the Jack McCartys of Skokie for dinner.

The holidays were brightened for the Chester Giulianis, 1314 Watling, with the arrival of Jill from Radcliffe. This was Jill's first trip home since September, when she returned to Radcliffe for her junior year.

CHRISTMAS DAY at the David Kenyons, 1226 Clarendon, included Kathy and Dick along with the rest of the family.

The weather didn't keep the Henry Moores, 1303 Watling, from heading east to spend the holidays in Cambridge, Ohio, with her parents, the L. L. Erskines. They returned home between Christmas and New Year's.

Old-fashioned Christmas caroling could be heard in Sherwood the Saturday before Christmas when several of the residents went from door to door. They were invited into two different homes for hot coffee and snacks to warm them up before starting out again. (A

HOW CAREFULLY DO PHARMACISTS FILL PRESCRIPTIONS?
We feel that every prescription entrusted to us is as important as Pam's or any member of our own family.

Having permanently available records for physician reference, taxes and insurance is important to you. Having delivery and charge services is important to you. AND . . .

DEPENDABILITY IS MOST IMPORTANT.
We believe that price alone and the words "Cheap — Discount — Cut-rate — Reduced — etc." are not of great importance when someone is sick and needs a medicine. We don't think any of our customer-friends want to gamble the health of their loved ones for a possible dubious saving.

NO, IT WAS... YEP, THAT'S IT.

My resolution for 1962? Simple. I'm going to keep friends and save money.

Hard to do in these times? Not really. Just takes a little brainwork to figure it out.

Took me a long time—and I never really convinced myself until a few days ago. You might not think a fellow has time for much thinking in the rush of getting ready for Christmas; but he has, waiting in line here and there, riding the bus or just driving home.

It's all resolved; my mind is made up. This year I am going to keep all my friends here in the community. No more roaming off in the wild blue out yonder. I am going to shop and trade at home with folks I know; with folks who know me.

The saving money part? Simple. I always knew things cost less here at home. I just let it slip my mind for a time.

Couple Helps Pakistani to Help Themselves

IT'S OPENING DAY for 120 Pakistani students in their new school. The school was constructed with blocks of dried mud, one of the major construction materials in Pakistan. The new school is taught by Yahoob and his assistant Saddig, the pastor and assistant school teacher. (B8

SHORTLY AFTER examining the site of the doctors and teachers quarters in Laudhi, Pakistan, F. C. Thomas was stopped by some natives who had just captured a cobra. The natives told Thomas that he could put the cobra around his neck and whisper a few verses from the Koran, and the snake would not bite. It didn't. (B8

Thomases Complete Three-Year Stint

by BILL HOGATE

Mrs. F. C. Thomas, 1329 N. Chicago ave., Arlington Heights, has stepped out of the frying pan and into the deep freeze, in a figurative sense.

She has just returned from a three-year stay in Pakistan, where she left temperatures in the 100's. Her husband is still in Pakistan, and will remain there for six more months.

At the end of that time, Mrs. Thomas will make a decision along with her husband on whether to remain at home or spend another two years in the Asiatic nation sandwiched between India and the Soviet Union.

The Thomases have completed a three-year project under the auspices of the Ford Foundation and the University of Chicago's education department.

Mrs. Thomas, a typical middle-aged suburban housewife, explained that six years ago the university conducted a study in Pakistan concerning the educational system.

FIFTEEN TO 20 educators surveyed the educational situation in Pakistan at that time, and made recommendations for the improvement and expansion of the program.

Because of the low literacy rate of the country, formed in 1947 when India gained independence, the educators recommended that the quickest and cheapest results would come from a focus of attention on the secondary school system.

The report stated the job of improving the elementary educational system was too broad for the present, and the greatest need in Pakistan was for Pakistani students with a high school certificate and qualifications for further teacher training on a university level.

Until recently, Thomas' job has been to co-ordinate the Ford foundation's program to improve the secondary educational system in Pakistan, and to prepare the students for teacher-training in United states universities.

For the bulk of the three-year period, the Thomases have lived in a residential section of Karachi, Pakistan. This November, however, Thomas took a job with the Methodist and Presbyterian missionary schools.

"It is somewhat paradoxical that my husband and I are so enthusiastic with our new assignment with the missionary schools," Mrs. Thomas commented.

"AS A MATTER of principle we do not condone the theocratic school system in any democracy, and yet in Pakistan, the missionary schools are the most respected, and offer the best possibilities for improving Pakistan's educational system in the next few years."

Thomas is the former superintendent of the Barrington public school system. He was superintendent for 13 years before teaking the assignment in Pakistan.

Mrs. Thomas explained that most Pakistani educators wanted to change their educational system from a parrot-type of system to a good democratic school system such as is enjoyed in the United States today.

"The Pakistani want very badly to have a good educational system, but it is very difficult for them to start practicing some of the American ways of education by just reading about them. It has to be demonstrated to them," she said.

The University of Chicago has established 40 pilot schools to get the ball rolling in Pakistan in this direction. In addition, the Presbyterians and Methodists have started a number of missionary schools in Western Pakistan.

Mrs. Thomas was optimistic about the immediate progress of the educational program. "I have been re-assured about our efforts since the recent revolution when President Ayub Khan took over.

"AYUB HAS DONE wonders for the Pakistani," she stated, "and I expect many other revolutionary improvements to come from him in the very near future."

As an example, Mrs. Thomas cited the following: "In November, we read in the papers that Ayub planned to establish a satellite community for the refugees outside of Karachi. By December, 10,000 persons had moved to the new city, and more progress was well on the way," she said.

"He also stated that he would move the capitol of Pakistan to another city, and before we knew it, the move was completed," Mrs. Thomas commented.

Mrs. Thomas cited the great difficulties which arose out of the partition of Pakistan and India. India is Hindu and Pakistan is basically Muslim.

One of the strong tenets of the Hindu belief is that the cow is sacred and cows are their relatives reincarnated. Thus they are allowed to roam about at will, and cannot be slaughtered for beef.

"One can see how the Muslims would have difficulty living in a land which professed such a religious belief. The Muslims are beef-eaters, and do not hold the cow as sacred," she said.

"THERE ARE also many other areas where the Muslims and Hindu are not in accord," Mrs. Thomas added.

One of the major problems which confronted the new nation of Pakistan, and which has recently been partially alleviated, is the 2000 miles separating East and West Pakistan.

A large and well-equipped air transportation system was the only answer to this problem, and as a result, Karachi is now the hub of a large air-transport service.

A major problem which also faces the new nation is the practice of caste. Although the caste system is no longer officially sanctioned by the government or the religion, color does play an important role in social and economic stratification in Pakistan.

The color problem is somewhat like the color situation which has been emerging in the American Negro population — the lighter complexioned people have more status than the darker complexioned people.

In addition, Christians do not have the same status as Muslims. In many instances, Christians are members of the servant class.

MR. AND MRS. Thomas recently attended the World Council of Churches meeting in Delhi, India.

"After attending this council, I am convinced that the Hindus and Muslims, and many other religions not represented, will be sending delegates to the council in the next 10 years," Mrs. Thomas said.

"I am convinced that there is a definite unity movement to embrace all of the religions of the world, and I am further convinced that this mission will be accomplished in the years to come," she stated.

Mr. Thomas is currently organizing a religion course in the missionary schools which he hopes will create understanding between Christians and Muslims.

The Thomases believe that there are many parallels between the two religions which should be highlighted for the mutual benefit of the Pakistani and Americans. (B8

Farm Supply Slates Meeting on Jan. 11

Henry Eichholz, president of the Lake-Cook Farm Supply company, has announced that the 34th annual meeting will be held at 10:30 a.m. on Thursday, Jan. 11 at Lake County Farm Bureau building on Route 45 north of Route 120, Grayslake.

Eichholz stated that reports detailing all operations of the company during the past 12 months would be made. He indicated there would be much information of vital interest contained in these reports to the membership and extended an invitation to all rural and urban patrons and stockholders to attend this meeting. A hot meal will be served at noon combined with a friendship hour.

ED DALHAUS, IAA director of young people's activities, will be the main speaker. His active ministry in the church and association with young farm people have afforded him an interesting background which makes his messages very appealing.

The company's six garden and farm stores are located at Arlington Heights, Schaumburg, Tinley Park, Grayslake, Lake Zurich and Des Plaines and Eichholz stated that 1961 sales of products at these stores showed good increases. Lawn and garden products for the home and supplies for farm, orchard, estate, nursery and industry are delivered from the stores.

A total of 13 petroleum drivers in Lake and Cook Counties deliver fuel oil and gasoline to urban and rural residents.

The company has been closely allied with the University of Illinois Agricultural Extension Division and Farm Bureau in its services. (B8

Thomases Complete Three-Year Stint

by BILL HOGATE

Mrs. F. C. Thomas, 1329 N. Chicago ave., Arlington Heights, has stepped out of the frying pan and into the deep freeze, in a figurative sense.

She has just returned from a three-year stay in Pakistan, where she left temperatures in the 100's. Her husband is still in Pakistan, and will remain there for six more months.

At the end of that time, Mrs. Thomas will make a decision along with her husband on whether to remain at home or spend another two years in the Asiatic nation sandwiched between India and the Soviet Union.

The Thomases have completed a three-year project under the auspices of the Ford Foundation and the University of Chicago's education department.

Mrs. Thomas, a typical middle-aged suburban housewife, explained that six years ago the university conducted a study in Pakistan concerning the educational system.

FIFTEEN TO 20 educators surveyed the educational situation in Pakistan at that time, and made recommendations for the improvement and expansion of the program.

Because of the low literacy rate of the country, formed in 1947 when India gained independence, the educators recommended that the quickest and cheapest results would come from a focus of attention on the secondary school system.

The report stated the job of improving the elementary educational system was too broad for the present, and the greatest need in Pakistan was for Pakistani students with a high school certificate and qualifications for further teacher training on a university level.

Until recently, Thomas' job has been to co-ordinate the Ford foundation's program to improve the secondary educational system in Pakistan, and to prepare the students for teacher-training in United states universities.

For the bulk of the three-year period, the Thomases have lived in a residential section of Karachi, Pakistan. This November, however, Thomas took a job with the Methodist and Presbyterian missionary schools.

"It is somewhat paradoxical that my husband and I are so enthusiastic with our new assignment with the missionary schools," Mrs. Thomas commented.

"AS A MATTER of principle we do not condone the theocratic school system in any democracy, and yet in Pakistan, the missionary schools are the most respected, and offer the best possibilities for improving Pakistan's educational system in the next few years."

Thomas is the former superintendent of the Barrington public school system. He was superintendent for 13 years before teaking the assignment in Pakistan.

Mrs. Thomas explained that most Pakistani educators wanted to change their educational system from a parrot-type of system to a good democratic school system such as is enjoyed in the United States today.

"The Pakistani want very badly to have a good educational system, but it is very difficult for them to start practicing some of the American ways of education by just reading about them. It has to be demonstrated to them," she said.

The University of Chicago has established 40 pilot schools to get the ball rolling in Pakistan in this direction. In addition, the Presbyterians and Methodists have started a number of missionary schools in Western Pakistan.

AS LAND VALUES SKYROCKET...

What Is Importance of 'Open Space'

Area Planners Seek Answer

by TOM EDWARDS

What is the importance of open space in metropolitan areas, and where and how much should be set aside for aesthetic and recreational purposes?

In essence, this seems to be a basic question currently before professional planners, and one of the main topics discussed at recent conferences on the development of the Chicago area and northeastern Illinois as a whole.

Land immediately in and around metropolitan areas, as those areas grow, skyrockets in money value.

But today, with the population burgeoning and the urban sprawl engulfing areas such as Chicago, the value, importance and need of open space has also skyrocketed — indeed, has become critical — according to planners.

But evidently, one of the main problems in evaluating the value of open space lies in the ingrained sense of values of the American people — equated with money. How can tangible, dollar values of land be reconciled with more intangible aesthetic and recreational uses of land?

IN OTHER WORDS, how to justify preservation of open space?

"Individuals interested in these (money) values eye them (open spaces) enviously, and periodically make attempts to dismember these spaces," according to Harlow B. Mills, chief of the Illinois Natural History Survey.

In order to preserve open space for recreation and simply for their beauty and solitude, we must "match tangible with intangible values," Mills continued.

"We are used to dealing with things which can be measured. Things weigh or cost so much, or are s wide, high and deep. Intangibles have no such finite dimensions. One cannot buy relaxation by the bushel or gallon, or enjoy a concert by the yard or mile."

Yet he defends those "most interested in the accumulation of measurable things." Even they must rely on intangibles in their business success, customer and employee relations — and for "personal peace of mind."

Because "we are developing a large inbred metropolitan population," people living their whole lives in concrete and asphalt jungles, people are losing "a personal knowledge of . . . and an appreciation of what is really keeping them alive," Mills maintains. "Man is completely dependent . . . on the surface of the earth" — land in open spaces.

"PRACTICALNESS" of open space is that "man is a part of nature," the naturalist pointed out. "It takes space . . . (to) instill in people a realization of the nature from which their mentality emerged and to which their bodies remain tied."

Places and people "should be available who can point out interesting things in nature and emphasize the fact that (most) forms of life are older historically than we are, that in a sense we are interlopers in their territory." It is a human "attribute that we can have a feeling of sentiment, of affection . . ." for lower forms of life, which they can't for us.

"The one thing that could kill our civilization, to paraphrase a philosopher of the past century, is over civilization."

Mills explained that open space in metropolitan areas is needed for formal parks, wooded picnic spots, and "there are lands which should be allowed to become completely wild, with only occasional trails in them . . . where man and wild things should be encouraged to fraternize . . ."

"Certainly there should be reservations of open, wild lands all over the earth, but in immediate proximity to masses of people these reservations are peculiarly important," Mills noted. "Here they are quickly and cheaply available to millions instead of thousands.

"As years go by this acquisition (of open space) becomes more difficult, and it follows that tomorrow is not the time to get it; yesterday is better — and today is almost too late.

"SOLITUDE IS perhaps the final need of the human soul," Mills quoted from an American author, Richard LeGallienne. "After a while, when we have run the gamut of all our ardors and our dreams, solitude comes to seem the one excellent thing, the 'summum bonum'."

He emphasized this point by noting that our population is including an increasingly larger element of older, retired people to whom open space can be extremely important.

Finally, he quoted South African author Laurens van der Post:

"With our twentieth-century selves we have forgotten the importance of being truly and openly primitive. We have forgotten the art of our legitimate beginnings. We no longer know how to close the gap between the far past and the immediate present in ourselves. We need primitive nature, the first man in ourselves, it seems, as the lungs need air and the body food and water; yet we can only achieve it by a slinking, often shameful, back-door entrance.

"I thought, finally, that of all the nostalgias that haunt the human heart, the greatest of them all, for me, is an everlasting longing to bring what is youngest home to what is oldest in us all."

Louis B. Wetmore, head of the department of city planning and landscape Architecture at the University of Illinois, estimates that in the next four decades about 24,000,000 acres of land will be consumed by urban building. And in the same period recreational open space needs would increase twice as much, or by about 49,000,000 acres.

IN HIS definition of open space, Clawson includes areas to be kept open for airport approach zones, water supply reserves and agriculture and mining tracts important to metropolitan areas, that is, functional development.

Open space preservation should be thought of in connection with more than wasteland and swamp and river bottom lands, it has been pointed out by several land planning experts. "In the past, the open space that survived the sprawl of urban existence has often been the result of 'fall out'— left behind in idle use by reckless speculative holding . . .," and land not profitable to develop, according to Dr. George W. Hartman, director of the Chicago Metropolitan Recreation Study.

Also, he said "open space is disappearing through the spread of endless subdivisions and the pollution of rivers, lakes and the air itself . . . The plan for open space is harmonious with the search for relief from the congestion, the tensions, the sedentary facets of urban life."

Hartman points to the urbanite to show the need for open space: "The lawnmower takes on added meaning; he patiently waits in line on the golf course for his turn; he idles through the sporting goods store.

"By instinct or emotional drive, he (the urbanite after a few years in a metropolitan atmosphere) begins a search for open space, for places in which nature is permitted to survive. His hobby, for self and family, becomes recreation and preferably that performed out-of-doors."

GOVERNMENT, professional planners, and developer-entrepreneurs "must accept the development of land as a moral responsibility to our own and future generations," George W. Wickstead, land planning consultant, stated.

"When we develop a piece of virgin property in a fashion which can best be described as despoiling that land, and if we forget the necessity for the enhancement of the life pattern of those who will use the land, then we are as guilty of rape as is the moral criminal in today's society."

Perhaps the greatest need, Wickstead said, is "action by governmental agencies in a review of existing developmental controls in order that these attempts at protection do not become restrictive and strait-jacketing in their effects upon progressive planning efforts."

He cited "green belt" development, lots backing on continuous green strips.

Also, he emphasized the "cluster" principal: "Careful location of multi-family housing areas can take advantage of natural park locale so that no fences need exist and the open space of public land and of the private development flow together freely without obstruction or interruption." Lending itself to this are "high-rise" apartment buildings and "row" type houses.

SOME FARMLAND should ps beallowedtoremainer ph—— perhaps be allowed to remain within metropolitan areas, if for no other reason than as a relief from houses and buildings, to break monotony, it has been pointed out.

Suggested means of accomplishing this would be to zone the highest grade farmland for permanent agricultural use.

Registration Dates Told

Dorothy Helm Hauff, Wheeling township clerk, this week announced that she and registration officials of the Village of Arlington Heights have scheduled two special voter registration dates for January.

The dates, arranged in cooperation with Alberta Foerster Arlington Heights village clerk, and Dorothy Pakys, deputy clerk in the village, are as follows:

—THURSDAY, Jan. 11, 7 to 9 p.m., in the Arlington Heights village hall, 107 W. Davis st., and the township hall, 1818 E. Northwest hwy., Arlington Heights;

—Saturday, Jan. 13, 9 a.m. to noon, in both the village and township halls.

"Many persons have told us they have not been able to re-register because convenient times had not been arranged," Mrs. Hauff said. "The special registration dates should enable workingmen and housewives to register with maximum convenience."

RE-REGISTRATION is necessary in Cook county because all records were destroyed in September to rid the rolls of "ghosts" and the names of dead and out-of-county persons.

Residents of Arlington Heights may register in the village hall, while those living in unincorporated Wheeling township may register in the township hall. (ACM

Young Republican 'To Aid of Party'

Louis F. Brown, 413 S. Gibbons, Arlington Heights, planned and made arrangements for the Christmas party for 250 less fortunate children at St. Francis of Assissi parish, 831 W. Roosevelt rd., Chicago, December 22.

As public relations chairman, Brown contacted local YR clubs as well as candy manufacturers and also the Marine Reserve unit at Glenview for toys.

THIS PARTY was sponsored by the Young Republican Organization of Cook County for the children between the ages of five and eleven. The breaking of the candy-filled pinatas was the highlight of the evening festivity.

Anita Gibson, Chicago, was recently appointed to assist Brown in work for the public relations committee for the Young Republicans. (ACM

Paddock Tour Preview Features Slides, Film

"Hawaii is very hard to describe in picture form because of its inherent beauty, but we're going to try," Stuart Paddock Jr., host of Paddock's Second Hawaiian Holiday tour, said this week.

Announcing a showing of films of the islands to be held in Pioneer Park auditorium January 18, 8:15 p.m., he stated that anyone interested in this preview of the tour is cordially invited to attend.

Two films, "Holiday in Hawaii" and "Wings to Hawaii," in color and sound, will be shown. Not only do they show the beauty and charm of Honolulu, but the outer islands which will be visited by tour members as well.

HAWAII IS A photographer's paradise. Everyone on last year's tour kept his camera going at full blast. Some of the most outstanding shots were taken by Mrs. Hal Mather, Woodstock.

Mrs. Mather's prowess as a photographer was shown last September at a tour reunion dinner. She has consented to show her slides at the January 18 preview of this year's tour.

Wayne Griffin, local travel agent who will handle arrangements for the March 9 tour, has stated that although he has seen the islands many times and films of them many more times, Mrs. Mather's slides are some of the best ever taken.

"SHE HAS captured the beauty of the islands better than anything I have ever seen," he stated.

The free film showing will start promptly at 8:15 p.m. and will last about an hour and a half. Free coffee and doughnuts will be served following the film showing. The public is cordially invited. (A14

Selectivity In Housing

"The bloom appears to be off the housing market, for the time being, and the hard sell is on."

This bodes well for current efforts toward preservation of open space for rec reational and aesthetic reasons, according to George W. Hartman, doctor of urban geography and a resident of Roselle.

Because supply appears to have caught up with demand, "Families are becoming more selective of house quality and the amenities of its neighborhood," he said.

Therefore, provisions for parks and open space by developers and communities will enhance the sale of their homes.

IN ADDITION, Hartman noted that shorter work weeks, higher family incomes and increased mobility means "demand will intensify for additional open space . . ."

Another factor that may help in greater cognizance of the amenities of life such as open space, is the competition between metropolitan areas for economic activity and population. This means that Chicago will have to think in terms of competing with places like San Francisco, Miami, with cities that are offering advantages this area does not.

That the image of open space and the out-of-doors is of prime importance in this new "hard sell" era of housing, Hartman illustrates by pointing out names of new subdivisions and advertising phrases, such as Valley View, Twin Oaks, Woodland Hills, Oak Brook, Westbrook Farms.

ADVERTISING slogans being used are: "Wonderful country living," "picnicking, fishing, boating—all free and right next to your door," "18-hole golf course and community swimming pool," "huge recreation area."

And the customers are seeking "fresh air," "a good place to raise children," etc.

Overall, it all adds up to mental, spiritual and physical health that is being sought by new home buyers, according to Hartman's statements.

HOW IMPORTANT have these amenities consciously become to people?

"On a Sunday this past October . . .the Morton Arboretum (near Lisle off the East - West Tollroad) experienced more visitors than ever before. It was found necessary to close the gates . . .and automobiles were backed up two miles on the tollway and three miles on Highway 53."

Flood troubles also accentuate the need for open space, places where runoff water can be channeled and held. Air pollution is another factor.

STILL ANOTHER reason given by the urban geographer is that open space reservation is protection against "bad timing and premature subdivision, and against disorderly commercial, industrial and residential development."

Preservation of open space requires planned, orderly development.

Hartman suggests that zoning regulations could include a minimum land area ratio: Where lot sizes are large, less land would have to be set aside for parks. Where lot sizes are small, a proportionately greater amount of area would have to be set aside for open space uses.

AND HE reminds that floodplains can be zoned for permanent open space.

Barbershoppers Elect Officers

The Arlington Heights chapter of the Society for the Preservation and Encouragement of Barbershop Quartet Singing in America, Inc. (SPEBQSA), in one of its recent Monday night meetings, elected officers for 1962.

The men who will take over the administration of the chapter are Len Straub, treasurer; Jack Simpson, vice president in charge of membership; Lou Behrle, president; Jim Lowther, secretary; and Jack Schuler, vice president in charge of programming.

THE CHAPTER is beginning its eleventh year as a part of an International Organization to promote barbershop harmony and provide opportunities to its members for self-expression and worthwhile community services.

Regular Monday night meetings have been suspended for the holidays, but will be resumed January 8 in the Arlington Heights Federal Savings community room. (ACM

Resignation Of Tuthill Announced

The state's Division of Highways has announced the retirement of J. P. Tuthill as district engineer.

Tuthill was relinquishing "his present position due to age," according to an announcement made by Roger F. Nusbaum, deputy chief highway engineer.

AS LAND VALUES SKYROCKET...

Area Planners Seek Answer

by TOM EDWARDS

What is the importance of open space in metropolitan areas, and where and how much should be set aside for aesthetic and recreational purposes?

In essence, this seems to be a basic question currently before professional planners, and one of the main topics discussed at recent conferences on the development of the Chicago area and northeastern Illinois as a whole.

Land immediately in and around metropolitan areas, as those areas grow, skyrockets in money value.

But today, with the population burgeoning and the urban sprawl engulfing areas such as Chicago, the value, importance and need of open space has also skyrocketed — indeed, has become critical — according to planners.

But evidently, one of the main problems in evaluating the value of open space lies in the ingrained sense of values of the American people — equated with money. How can tangible, dollar values of land be reconciled with more intangible aesthetic and recreational uses of land?

IN OTHER WORDS, how to justify preservation of open space?

"Individuals interested in these (money) values eye them (open spaces) enviously, and periodically make attempts to dismember these spaces," according to Harlow B. Mills, chief of the Illinois Natural History Survey.

In order to preserve open space for recreation and simply for their beauty and solitude, we must "match tangible with intangible values," Mills continued.

"We are used to dealing with things which can be measured. Things weigh or cost so much, or are s wide, high and deep. Intangibles have no such finite dimensions. One cannot buy relaxation by the bushel or gallon, or enjoy a concert by the yard or mile."

Yet he defends those "most interested in the accumulation of measurable things." Even they must rely on intangibles in their business success, customer and employee relations — and for "personal peace of mind."

Because "we are developing a large inbred metropolitan population," people living their whole lives in concrete and asphalt jungles, people are losing "a personal knowledge of . . . and an appreciation of what is really keeping them alive," Mills maintains. "Man is completely dependent . . . on the surface of the earth" — land in open spaces.

"PRACTICALNESS" of open space is that "man is a part of nature," the naturalist pointed out. "It takes space . . . (to) instill in people a realization of the nature from which their mentality emerged and to which their bodies remain tied."

Places and people "should be available who can point out interesting things in nature and emphasize the fact that (most) forms of life are older historically than we are, that in a sense we are interlopers in their territory." It is a human "attribute that we can have a feeling of sentiment, of affection . . ." for lower forms of life, which they can't for us.

"The one thing that could kill our civilization, to paraphrase a philosopher of the past century, is over civilization."

Mills explained that open space in metropolitan areas is needed for formal parks, wooded picnic spots, and "there are lands which should be allowed to become completely wild, with only occasional trails in them . . . where man and wild things should be encouraged to fraternize . . ."

"Certainly there should be reservations of open, wild lands all over the earth, but in immediate proximity to masses of people these reservations are peculiarly important," Mills noted. "Here they are quickly and cheaply available to millions instead of thousands.

"As years go by this acquisition (of open space) becomes more difficult, and it follows that tomorrow is not the time to get it; yesterday is better — and today is almost too late.

"SOLITUDE IS perhaps the final need of the human soul," Mills quoted from an American author, Richard LeGallienne. "After a while, when we have run the gamut of all our ardors and our dreams, solitude comes to seem the one excellent thing, the 'summum bonum'."

He emphasized this point by noting that our population is including an increasingly larger element of older, retired people to whom open space can be extremely important.

Finally, he quoted South African author Laurens van der Post:

"With our twentieth-century selves we have forgotten the importance of being truly and openly primitive. We have forgotten the art of our legitimate beginnings. We no longer know how to close the gap between the far past and the immediate present in ourselves. We need primitive nature, the first man in ourselves, it seems, as the lungs need air and the body food and water; yet we can only achieve it by a slinking, often shameful, back-door entrance.

"I thought, finally, that of all the nostalgias that haunt the human heart, the greatest of them all, for me, is an everlasting longing to bring what is youngest home to what is oldest in us all."

Louis B. Wetmore, head of the department of city planning and landscape Architecture at the University of Illinois, estimates that in the next four decades about 24,000,000 acres of land will be consumed by urban building. And in the same period recreational open space needs would increase twice as much, or by about 49,000,000 acres.

IN HIS definition of open space, Clawson includes areas to be kept open for airport approach zones, water supply reserves and agriculture and mining tracts important to metropolitan areas, that is, functional development.

Open space preservation should be thought of in connection with more than wasteland and swamp and river bottom lands, it has been pointed out by several land planning experts. "In the past, the open space that survived the sprawl of urban existence has often been the result of 'fall out'— left behind in idle use by reckless speculative holding . . .," and land not profitable to develop, according to Dr. George W. Hartman, director of the Chicago Metropolitan Recreation Study.

Also, he said "open space is disappearing through the spread of endless subdivisions and the pollution of rivers, lakes and the air itself . . . The plan for open space is harmonious with the search for relief from the congestion, the tensions, the sedentary facets of urban life."

Hartman points to the urbanite to show the need for open space: "The lawnmower takes on added meaning; he patiently waits in line on the golf course for his turn; he idles through the sporting goods store.

"By instinct or emotional drive, he (the urbanite after a few years in a metropolitan atmosphere) begins a search for open space, for places in which nature is permitted to survive. His hobby, for self and family, becomes recreation and preferably that performed out-of-doors."

GOVERNMENT, professional planners, and developer-entrepreneurs "must accept the development of land as a moral responsibility to our own and future generations," George W. Wickstead, land planning consultant, stated.

"When we develop a piece of virgin property in a fashion which can best be described as despoiling that land, and if we forget the necessity for the enhancement of the life pattern of those who will use the land, then we are as guilty of rape as is the moral criminal in today's society."

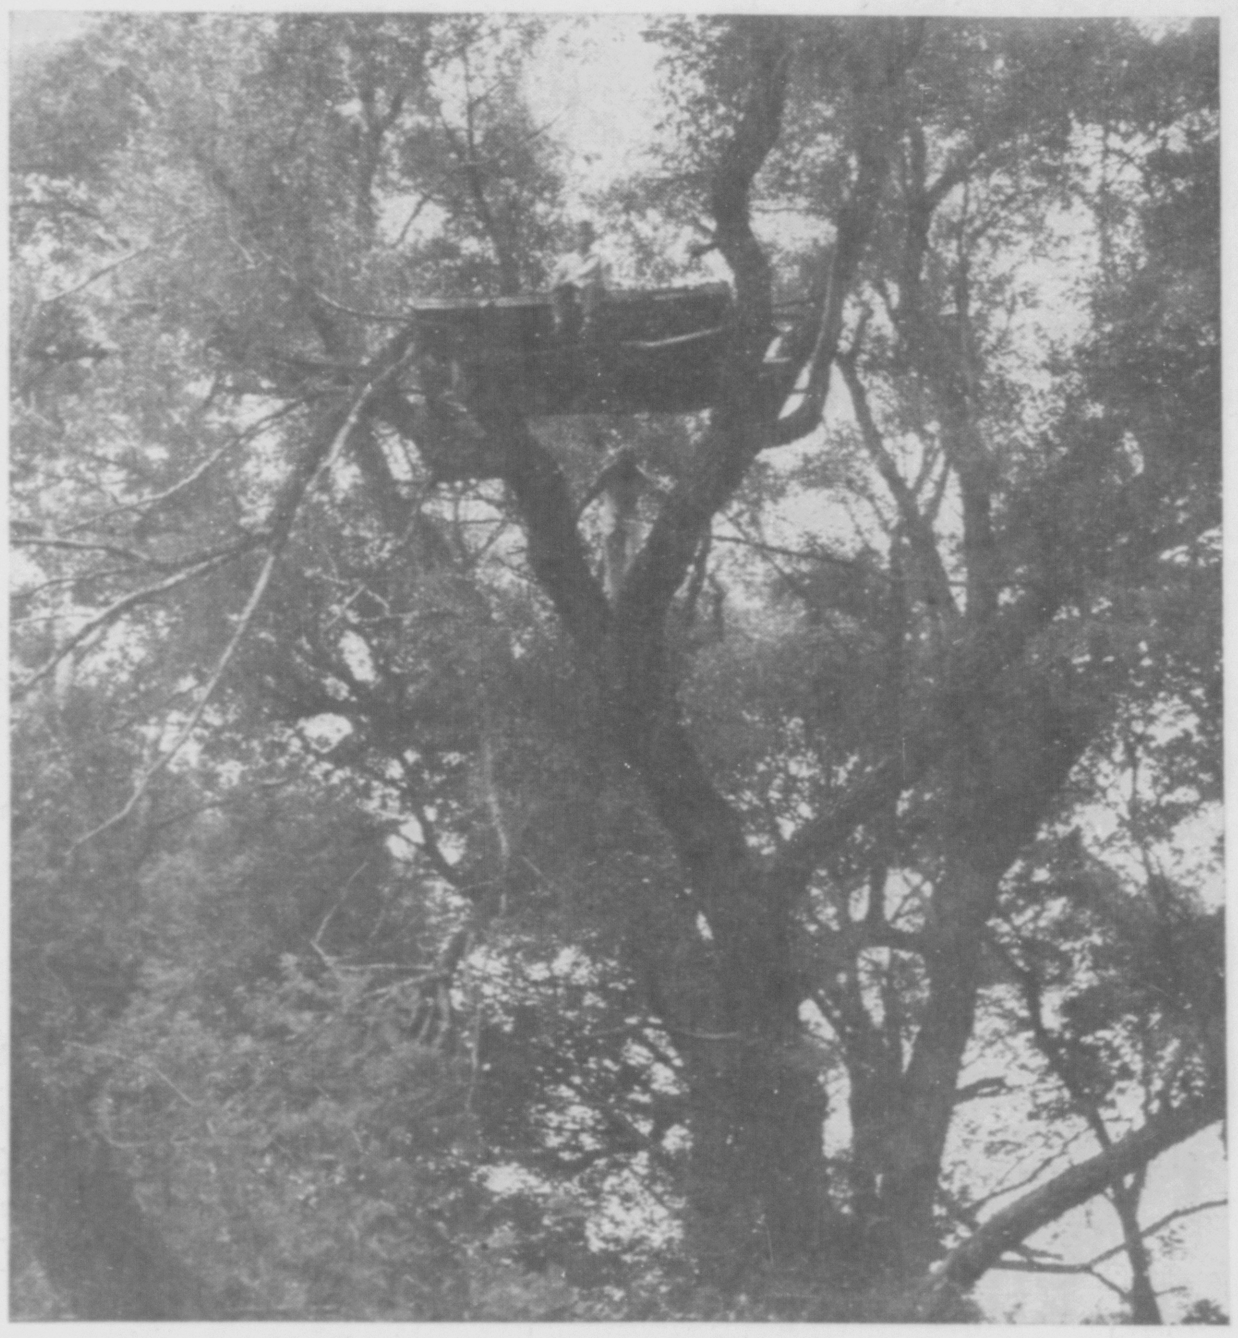
Perhaps the greatest need, Wickstead said, is "action by governmental agencies in a review of existing developmental controls in order that these attempts at protection do not become restrictive and strait-jacketing in their effects upon progressive planning efforts."

He cited "green belt" development, lots backing on continuous green strips.

Also, he emphasized the "cluster" principal: "Careful location of multi-family housing areas can take advantage of natural park locale so that no fences need exist and the open space of public land and of the private development flow together freely without obstruction or interruption." Lending itself to this are "high-rise" apartment buildings and "row" type houses.

SOME FARMLAND should ps beallowedtoremainer ph—— perhaps be allowed to remain within metropolitan areas, if for no other reason than as a relief from houses and buildings, to break monotony, it has been pointed out.

Suggested means of accomplishing this would be to zone the highest grade farmland for permanent agricultural use.



ALONG BUFFALO CREEK in Wheeling grow huge willow trees as above. In this tree's lofty branches boys have built a platform, crawling up the trunk to get to it. Looking closely, two boys can be seen on this perch. (A14

A SCENE FROM along Salt creek in the DuPage county forest preserve. Forest preserves are being threatened by inroads of expressways and other advances of civilization.

Selectivity In Housing

"The bloom appears to be off the housing market, for the time being, and the hard sell is on."

This bodes well for current efforts toward preservation of open space for recreational and aesthetic reasons, according to George W. Hartman, doctor of urban geography and a resident of Roselle.

Because supply appears to have caught up with demand, "Families are becoming more selective of house quality and the amenities of its neighborhood," he said.

Therefore, provisions for parks and open space by developers and communities will enhance the sale of their homes.

IN ADDITION, Hartman noted that shorter work weeks, higher family incomes and increased mobility means "demand will intensify for additional open space . . ."

Another factor that may help in greater cognizance of the amenities of life such as open space, is the competition between metropolitan areas for economic activity and population. This means that Chicago will have to think in terms of competing with places like San Francisco, Miami, with cities that are offering advantages this area does not.

That the image of open space and the out-of-doors is of prime importance in this new "hard sell" era of housing, Hartman illustrates by pointing out names of new subdivisions and advertising phrases, such as Valley View, Twin Oaks, Woodland Hills, Oak Brook, Westbrook Farms.

ADVERTISING slogans being used are: "Wonderful country living," "picnicking, fishing, boating—all free and right next to your door," "18-hole golf course and community swimming pool," "huge recreation area."

And the customers are seeking "fresh air," "a good place to raise children," etc.

Overall, it all adds up to mental, spiritual and physical health that is being sought by new home buyers, according to Hartman's statements.

HOW IMPORTANT have these amenities consciously become to people?

"On a Sunday this past October . . .the Morton Arboretum (near Lisle off the East - West Tollroad) experienced more visitors than ever before. It was found necessary to close the gates . . .and automobiles were backed up two miles on the tollway and three miles on Highway 53."

Flood troubles also accentuate the need for open space, places where runoff water can be channeled and held. Air pollution is another factor.

STILL ANOTHER reason given by the urban geographer is that open space reservation is protection against "bad timing and premature subdivision, and against disorderly commercial, industrial and residential development."

Preservation of open space requires planned, orderly development.

Hartman suggests that zoning regulations could include a minimum land area ratio: Where lot sizes are large, less land would have to be set aside for parks. Where lot sizes are small, a proportionately greater amount of area would have to be set aside for open space uses.

AND HE reminds that floodplains can be zoned for permanent open space.

Registration Dates Told

Dorothy Helm Hauff, Wheeling township clerk, this week announced that she and registration officials of the Village of Arlington Heights have scheduled two special voter registration dates for January.

The dates, arranged in cooperation with Alberta Foerster Arlington Heights village clerk, and Dorothy Pakys, deputy clerk in the village, are as follows:

—THURSDAY, Jan. 11, 7 to 9 p.m., in the Arlington Heights village hall, 107 W. Davis st., and the township hall, 1818 E. Northwest hwy., Arlington Heights;

—Saturday, Jan. 13, 9 a.m. to noon, in both the village and township halls.

"Many persons have told us they have not been able to reregister because convenient times had not been arranged," Mrs. Hauff said. "The special registration dates should enable workingmen and housewives to register with maximum convenience."

RE-REGISTRATION is necessary in Cook county because all records were destroyed in September to rid the rolls of "ghosts" and the names of dead and out-of-county persons.

Residents of Arlington Heights may register in the village hall, while those living in unincorporated Wheeling township may register in the township hall. (ACM

Young Republican 'To Aid of Party'

Louis F. Brown, 413 S. Gibbons, Arlington Heights, planned and made arrangements for the Christmas party for 250 less fortunate children at St. Francis of Assissi parish, 831 W. Roosevelt rd., Chicago, December 22.

As public relations chairman, Brown contacted local YR clubs as well as candy manufacturers and also the Marine Reserve unit at Glenview for toys.

THIS PARTY was sponsored by the Young Republican Organization of Cook County for the children between the ages of five and eleven. The breaking of the candy-filled pinatas was the highlight of the evening festivity.

Anita Gibson, Chicago, was recently appointed to assist Brown in work for the public relations committee for the Young Republicans. (ACM

Paddock Tour Preview Features Slides, Film

"Hawaii is very hard to describe in picture form because of its inherent beauty, but we're going to try," Stuart Paddock Jr., host of Paddock's Second Hawaiian Holiday tour, said this week.

Announcing a showing of films of the islands to be held in Pioneer Park auditorium January 18, 8:15 p.m., he stated that anyone interested in this preview of the tour is cordially invited to attend.

Two films, "Holiday in Hawaii" and "Wings to Hawaii," in color and sound, will be shown. Not only do they show the beauty and charm of Honolulu, but the outer islands which will be visited by tour members as well.

HAWAII IS A photographer's paradise. Everyone on last year's tour kept his camera going at full blast. Some of the most outstanding shots were taken by Mrs. Hal Mather, Woodstock.

Mrs. Mather's prowess as a photographer was shown last September at a tour reunion dinner. She has consented to show her slides at the January 18 preview of this year's tour.

Wayne Griffin, local travel agent who will handle arrangements for the March 9 tour, has stated that although he has seen the islands many times and films of them many more times, Mrs. Mather's slides are some of the best ever taken.

"SHE HAS captured the beauty of the islands better than anything I have ever seen," he stated.

The free film showing will start promptly at 8:15 p.m. and will last about an hour and a half. Free coffee and doughnuts will be served following the film showing. The public is cordially invited. (A14

Tim Accardo, 11, 506 East Orchard, Arlington Heights can now join the list of his National Hockey league heroes with purple hearts. He received a laceration from a hockey puck under his eye. Young Accardo was treated for the laceration and was put under observation for a possible skull concussion. His condition is reported as good.

Ten-year-old Tracy Hurt is hurt! She lacerated her forehead while ice skating. Her wound was treated and she was released. Young Tracy lives at 1537 W. Dunbar rd., Palatine.

Michael Kaminski, 11, 1355 S. Highland, Arlington Heights, lacerated his chin while tobogganing. He had the wound treated and was released.

Samuel Wilson, 48, 219½ E. Granville rd., Worthington, Ohio, probably wished that he had remained at home. He fell on a piece of ice, fracturing his arm. A short arm cast was applied to his arm, and he was released.

James Zimmerman, 13, 311 N. Haddow, Arlington Hts., fell on the ice and fractured his arm. A long cast was applied to his arm, and he was released. Brandley Koerner cut a sharp corner with his toboggan and took a nose dive, injuring his probosis. He was treated and released from the hospital.

Robert Pedersen, 17, 705 S. Burton, Arlington Heights, joined the ranks of his fellow tobogganers when he was admitted to the hospital for sergical care of his leg. His condition is reported as good.

Mrs. Katherine Hornbostel, 802 S. Main st., Mt. Prospect, fell on the ice and fractured her ankle. Her condition is reported as good.

something NEW IN 62

The Northwest Community hospital was "snowed" by a number of accident victims this week as a result of the recent snow and ice conditions in the area.

In addition, Mrs. Delores Curtis, 316 Buena Vista, Crystal Lake, rang in the New Year with a bab yborn in her car on the way to the hospital. The baby girl was delivered successfully in the car, and both mother and daughter are reported to be doing fine.

Among those who were carted in, hobbled, or wheeled into the emergency room of the hospital as a result of accidents in the ice and snow was Robin Coe, 203 S. Willow, Prospect Heights. Coe was admitted for treatment of a fractured leg sustained while tobogganing.

Maribeth Reed, 10, 43 W. Robertson, Palatine, fractured her right leg as she was cutting some capers on the ice. Her condition is listed as good.

George McCament Jr., 345 N. Oak, Palatine, was admitted to the emergency room when he injured his right leg while tobogganing. He was treated and released.

KAREN TITUS, 11½, 921 S. Emerson, Mt. Prospect, was admitted to the hospital after she fell and injured her left leg while ice skating.

Gene Folkes, 18, 2315 Bluebird ln., Rolling Meadows, hit a tree while he was tobogganing, and visited the hospital briefly for X-rays and an examination. He was released immediately. The tree sustained minor injuries.

Tim Accardo, 11, 506 East Orchard, Arlington Heights can now join the list of his National Hockey league heroes with purple hearts. He received a laceration from a hockey puck under his eye. Young Accardo was treated for the laceration and was put under observation for a possible skull concussion. His condition is reported as good.

Ten-year-old Tracy Hurt is hurt! She lacerated her forehead while ice skating. Her wound was treated and she was released. Young Tracy lives at 1537 W. Dunbar rd., Palatine.

Michael Kaminski, 11, 1355 S. Highland, Arlington Heights, lacerated his chin while tobogganing. He had the wound treated and was released.

JACK WISSERT, 20, 420 S. Yale, Arlington Heights, made a one-point landing while he was skating too. Unfortunately, Wissert landed on his chin, and received emergency treatment and was released.

Samuel Wilson, 48, 219½ E. Granville rd., Worthington, Ohio, probably wished that he had remained at home. He fell on a piece of ice, fracturing his arm. A short arm cast was applied to his arm, and he was released.

James Zimmerman, 13, 311 N. Haddow, Arlington Hts., fell on the ice and fractured his arm. A long cast was applied to his arm, and he was released. Brandley Koerner cut a sharp corner with his toboggan and took a nose dive, injuring his probosis. He was treated and released from the hospital.

Robert Pedersen, 17, 705 S. Burton, Arlington Heights, joined the ranks of his fellow tobogganers when he was admitted to the hospital for sergical care of his leg. His condition is reported as good.

Mrs. Katherine Hornbostel, 802 S. Main st., Mt. Prospect, fell on the ice and fractured her ankle. Her condition is reported as good.

Nike Captain Teaches Judo Defense Tricks

CAPT. JOHN F. CRATER, 45th Artillery Brigade Plans and Training Officer in Arlington Heights, was photographed an instant before his downfall by Miss Judy Murphy of Arlington Heights, a student in the Captain's judo classes.

Do you know how to fall? Learning how to fall occupied the first three lessons of the Judo classes Captain John F. Crater, 45th Artillery Brigade (Air Defense) Plans and Training Officer recently completed teaching 26 young men and women from Arlington Heights and surrounding communities.

"Judo is one of the oriental forms of self defense," Captain Crater says, "which I learned at the Dam Yung Judo club in the Yudo college at Seoul, Korea. Yudo is actually a sport, consisting of methods of both Judo and Karate, which is the Samurai form of attack. I did not teach these students any karate."

CAPTAIN CRATER himself is a wearer of the blue "beginners belt," a sash of light blue color which ties around his waist when he is dressed for the sport.

"The students signed up for the course to learn how to defend themselves. Learning to fall and to break your fall is one of the first lessons because without it, the rest of the classes would probably be disastrous. The majority of the course consisted of training and practice in holds, breaks, throws and other defensive methods, with the final hour devoted to defense against the knife and pistol. To be good at Judo, of course, takes constant practice, but with these lessons these young men and women really became quite capable of taking care of themselves. I recommended some to the Judo School in Chicago for further training if they cared to continue."

PROMOTED TO Captain on December 15, 1961, Crater entered the service in June, 1957, as a graduate of the United States Military Academy.

He came to the 45th Brigade in Arlington Heights from the First Corps Artillery at Camp St. Barbara, Korea, and lives now with his wife, Sally, at 158 Chandler ln. in Roselle. He attended one year at Oregon State university before going to West Point. (A14

Heart Assn. Warns: Have to Be in Shape to Shovel Snow

(This is the first in a series of four articles prepared by the Chicago Heart association on heart disease.)

Don't tackle the job of snow-shoveling with the vigor of a teenager, unless you are a teenager, and a healthy one at that.

These exertions may not do you any harm, but, according to the Heart Council of DuPage county, if you are middle-aged it's better not to attempt them unless you've been given a clean bill of health recently by your physician.

THE UNACCUSTOMED exertion of shoveling snow or pushing stalled cars out of the snow can work havoc with flabby muscles. More serious, the exertion combined with the extra demand for energy placed on your heart by cold weather can strain the heart beyond its normal reserve capacity.

Snow looks innocent enough. But a physiologist calculated the energy cost of shoveling snow with the usual five-pound shovel and his calculations are literally breath-taking.

Each shovel-full of fluffy snow weighs about four pounds. Shoveling ten loads per minute is equivalent to walking up three flights of stairs in the same period of time. Wet snow, which is even heavier, would make the job equivalent to climbing to the seventh floor in one minute. No doubt about it, snow-shoveling is strenuous. There are other winter hazards, too.

For some men, portly to the point of obesity, just getting into and out of bulky winter wraps can be strenuous. Ever see a fat man, bundled in muffler and overcoat, puffing as he bent down to take off his galoshes? It should strengthen your resolution to lose any excess weight you may be carrying.

WALKING THROUGH knee deep snow can make the strongest of us breathless. But for overweight people, it is even more of a strain.

You can best prepare yourself for a safe winter by, first of all, going to your doctor for a check-up. After that, the Chicago Heart association offers these points to think about before you pick up a snow shovel:

—Remember that snow-shoveling is a strenuous exercise.

—If you have heart disease, don't shovel snow without your doctor's approval.

—If you are young and healthy, shoveling may be a good work-out for you.

—If you are over 40 and healthy, shovel, but take it easy.

—It's better to shovel before eating or wait an hour after eating, as you should for most vigorous exercise.

—NEVER SHOVEL to the point of exhaustion. The invigorating cold air may make you feel 20 years younger, but you're not.

—When you shovel, lift with your entire body, letting your back and legs share the hard work with your arms.

—Probably the best piece of advice: Hand the snow shovel to an ambitious youngster and go to the nearest ice-skating pond for your exercise.

Suburbanites Receive Masonic 32nd Degree

A large representation from this area helped make up a class of some 500 who celebrated the holiday season by being advanced to the 32nd degree in Masonry during impressive ceremonies just concluded at the Scottish Rite Cathedral, 915 N. Dearborn st.

This final initiation of 1961 brought the membership of the "Valley of Chicago" to approximately 23,000.

The Scottish Rite degrees conferred on this newest group emphasize religion, patriotism, steadfastness and courage. The Northern Jurisdiction, of which Chicago is part, has about 500,000 members and has as its principal project intensive research into the causes and cure of mental illness.

SINCE 1934, when it was the first organized group to sponsor and finance such a coordinated program in hospitals and medical schools, the Scottish Rite had helped in the development of a number of important discoveries in this field.

The next initiation at Chicago's Scottish Rite Cathedral will be held on four successive Thursday nights, beginning February 8. It is expected that another large group from this area will be in the class.

Many of those who have just received the higher degrees are taking an active part in the largest Masonic affair ever held in the United States—the rededication breakfast on Sunday morning, Jan. 7, at McCormick Place in honor of Harold D. Ross, Grand Master of the Illinois Grand Lodge of Ancient Free and Accepted Masons.

RESIDENTS from Northwest suburban areas who advanced to the higher degrees of Masonry in the last Scottish Rite class include:

Frank N. Bedo Jr., 312 Meadow lane; Donald L. Dunsing, 921 S. Nawata ave.; Irvin C. Hibbeler, 905 S. Tower lane; Robert T. Robertshaw, 316 N. Elmhurst ave.; Olney B. Schreen, 609 N. Maple st.; Arthur J. Stonequist, 1108 W. Central rd., and Robert E. Swanson, 521 Edward st., Mount Prospect; N. Melvin Graves, 106 E. Clarendon st.; Richard S. VanNote, P.O. Box 84, Prospect Heights.

ROLLING MEADOWS

The Christmas party season got off to a good start December 13 when neighborhood leaders had an evening of games, caroling and refreshments.

Troop 812 entertained leaders with Christmas carols under the direction of its leader, Mrs. L. B. Larson. Everyone shared their home-baked cookies and grab bag gifts. Games were led by Mrs. A. Mueller. Appreciation was also expressed to Mrs. H. Kees, Mrs. C. Green, Mrs. E. Whitcomb, Mrs. J. Dunaway and Mrs. R. Kocian for planning the evening.

Troop 732 sang carols at the shopping center December 18 and the next day found them enjoying a Christmas party with games, refreshments and gifts. Two mothers, Mrs. J. Lynch and Mrs. R. Jahn, served punch and distributed gifts from troop leaders, Mrs. C. Newman, Mrs. W. Gerken and Mrs. V. Lockomy.

HOFFMAN ESTATES

Fifth grade intermediate troop 362 entertained their mothers with a pre-holiday party and program. Included in their entertainment was an atomic hat show and a kitchen band. Helping the girls work on their second class badge is leader Mrs. W. Kumpf. (B9

SWINGIN' SQUARES

Twenty - four guest couples joined the Swingin' Squares members to usher in the holiday season December 15 at the club's annual Christmas Party dance in Recreation Park field house, Arlington Heights. Among them were Harry Ryan's "Teen Promenaders" and his beginners' group, the so-called beginners dancing like old pros. After the dance 40 dancers had a "goon" party, dancing to the calls of Fremont Regnell and "Tib" and Nina Tibbets. Thirty of them are brand new goons and will henceforth be wearing goon badges, a mark of distinction in square dance groups.

All dance enthusiasts in the area are invited to join the Swingin' Squares in Recreation Park tomorrow night when the club will enjoy one of its silhouette dances and another of the pleasant surprises President Bob Luebbe has been springing this season. Square dancing begins at 8:30 to the calls of Don Finfrock after a half-hour of round dance instruction by Don and his wife, Kay. A refreshment and social hour begins at 11 o'clock.

COMING events of the club include a hard times party Friday, Jan. 19, and the seventh annual jamboree Saturday, March 31. Club officers suggest dancers begin to dream up a costume right now for the hard times party and couple that suggestion with one to get tickets quick for the jamboree, the major event of the year. Tickets go on sale to members at the club's dance tomorrow night.

For the jamboree the club has engaged callers, Chuck Broad, Don Finfrock, Frank Green, Ed Hempel, Bob Kim, Lenny Roos and Harry Ryan, a bumper crop of the best in the business. Dancing will be at both intermediate and advance levels.

Club officers announce with extreme sorrow the tragic death of member Laura Renfro, killed in an automobile accident near Pinkneyville December 24. Her husband, Chuck, is hospitalized with serious injuries in Firin-Des Loge hospital, 1325 Grand, St. Louis. Friends suggest that a card or letter would do much to raise his spirits and speed his recovery.

DUDES AND DOLLS

Tickets are available now for Jamborama VII, a Dudes and Dolls very special event, to be held March 31 at 8:30 p.m. in Riverside youth center, 31 Riverside, Riverside. They may be purchased from the Fred Booths, 3225 Grand Blvd., Brookfield, HU 5-0906, or the Ed Raymonds, 1209 Elgin, Forest Park, FO 6-2715.

Four well-known callers will keep things swinging: Bill Clarke, Doc. Heimbach, Bill Shymkus and Walt Niezabitowski.

Dudes and Dolls members are from most of the outlying suburbs and they meet the first and third Friday nights of each month at Schroeder Memorial park in Broadview. The first dance of the new year will be tomorrow night, Jan. 5, at 8:30 p.m. This is a closed club and guests are by invitation only.

Further Economies Needed for County

Included in Cook county's 1962 budget is a request for some $300,000 to pay 61 window washers to keep county buildings' glass glistening.

This is one of many items seized upon by three Republican commissioners in the county's record corporate budget of $84,542,516 which they feel exorbitant.

Retention of 61 window washers on the county payroll figures out to about $6,000 a week or a salary of $505 a month per man, estimates Charles F. Chaplin of Northbrook, one of the GOP's angry objectors.

Chaplin, along with commissioners Jerry Dolezal of Cicero and Fred A. Fulle of Des Plaines, have asked that an investigation be made to determine how much window washing would cost if placed on a contractural basis. Surely there are private window washing firms whose charges for maintaining sightly windows for county structures would be less than the price now paid. Chaplin ventures that a considerable savings would result.

It hardly makes sense to keep a corps of window washers at the ready. Their responsibility reaches to one half of the county building, the structure the county shares with the city of Chicago, the Oak Forest and Cook county hospitals, the Audy home and the Cook county jail. A visual inspection of the county building's windows shows they are not exactly the picture of clarity and probably do not require scrubbing more than two or three times a year.

The three GOP commissioners were also disturbed over State's Attorney Daniel P. Ward's budget request for $550,000 more than his predecessor was granted to run his office. One item which particularly piqued them was the salary increase Ward asked for his secretary from $8,400 to $10,500 a year. The trio also scored the coroner's $250 a month car allowance request, and were further critical of the zoning administrator and board of health.

They also called for an immediate review of the contract the county hospital holds with the county School of Nursing, contending that the hospital's budget has climbed from $4½ million in 1951 to $11½ million while the number of beds in the hospital — 3400 — has remained stationary for this 10-year period. Part of this, of course, could be due to overcrowding in an outdated facility.

But the commissioners' critique is disturbing and revealing. It shows that in some instances, good sense isn't being used. In other areas, it appears to be a case of political expediency winning out over economical consideration.

The county board was to take final action on its budget last Friday, Dec. 29. This would not cancel out decisions to attempt to achieve economies, however, at a later date.

Last week we lauded the county board of commissioners for handing taxpayers a bonus in the form of a tax abatement of $6 million from a surplus in the 1961 tax levy (which will mean a reduction in the 1961 tax bill of 5.9 cents per $100 assessed valuation). Nothing has altered this commendation, but while applauding their action we commented that we thought there were some obvious areas uncovered by the Civic Federation of Chicago where further economy could be effected. We still think so — and now more than ever.

Opportunity in Suburbs

"LOS ANGELES (AP) — While Tarzan and Jane were living together in that tree all those years, were they also living together in sin?"

"Chicago's controversial motion picture censorship ordinance came under more criticism today (Thursday, Dec. 28, 1961)."

Unrelated? Hardly. The book banners in Los Angeles were busy in the elementary schools' libraries determining the question of whether the celebrated ape man and his mate were ever married. Their fears were unfounded. The question had come up before, and the later author Edgar Rice Burroughs had pacified detractors by pointing out that Jane and Tarzan were married in his second book, "The Return of Tarzan," by Jane's minister father.

But it shows the ridiculous extent to which the literary supressionists will go. Now Chicago has provided them with a weapon for prior censorship. Members of censorship boards are notoriously policemen's widows and precinct captains who have little knowledge or inclination to learn what constitutes art.

A theater night club owner had the best comment on the situation: "We should just rate movies the way they do in England. We could have a board that would express an opinion on a movie, but they shouldn't have the right to ban it."

An enterprising businessman could take a lead from the action of Chicago's pious city council. The time is ripe for establishing an art cinema in the suburbs.

At the Golden Threshold

Expanding at a rate six times as fast as the central cities, America's suburban communities will account for nearly all of the nation's population growth in the next decade.

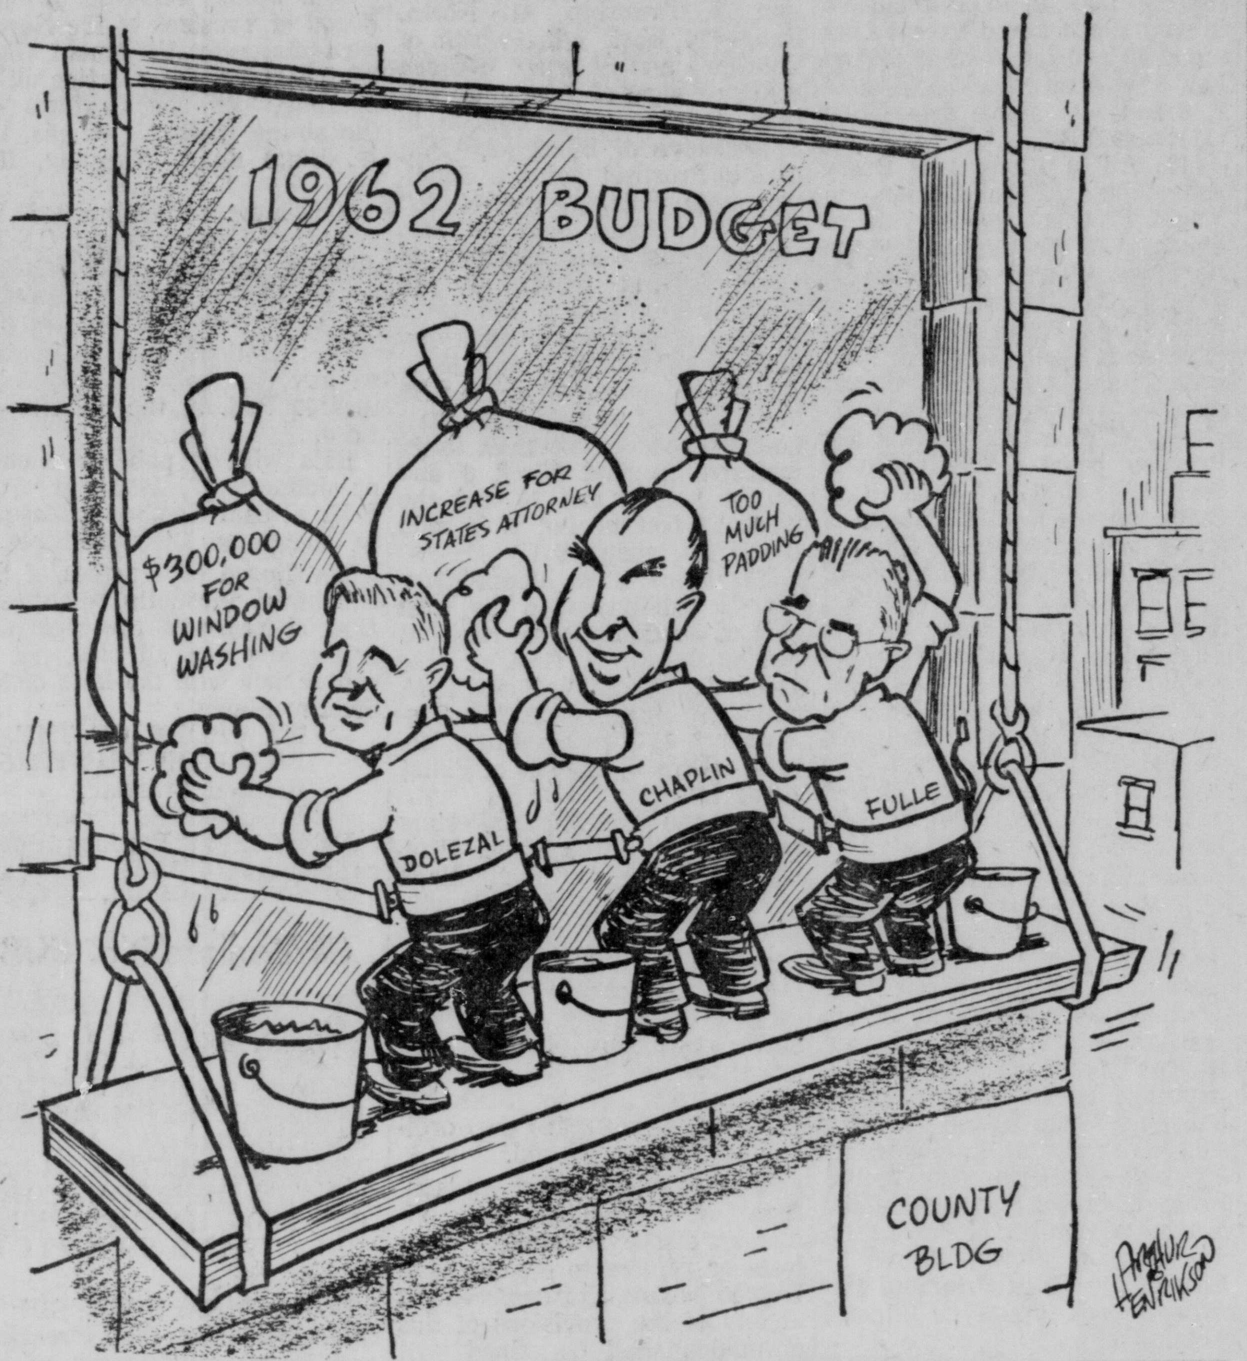
Politically, economically, and socially this shift of urban population is destined to make a significant impact on the nation as a whole. In addition to a rising population, this record growth reflects increased family needs, marked expansion in personal incomes, persistent uptrends in standards of living, and most important, a keen awareness of the desirability of home and community life in suburbia.

Home seekers, realtors, builders, merchants and manufacturers are looking in ever-increasing numbers toward the new suburbs. In the northwest area alone, all-time records in housing consturction were established in the past decade — more than 20,000 homes valued at nearly $400 million were built in our suburban communities.

Although our area has accounted for the major share of growth in metropolitan Chicago during recent years, we are only at the threshold of the greatest period of expansion and economic progress in history, according to expert analysts and planners. Reliable estimates place our 1970 population at double its present size.

These facts again strengthen our continuing faith in the dynamic role which northwest suburbs are destined to play in the future expansion of metropolitan Chicago's economy.

Uncovering a Few Things



Miss Mead's Proposed Shelters Are Foolish

by DICK HOFFMANN

Anthropologist Margaret Mead has proposed building deep blast shelters for a cross-section of mankind to preserve the human species in the event of a nuclear disaster.

While her motives were pure, her suggestion, I fear, could arouse a new chorus of hysteria such as that which accompanied the private fallout plan.

Margaret wants to focus attention on the main implication of nuclear war — extinction. But in advocating inhabitance of species shelters by newlyweds of every color and persausion, she turns the spotlights once again on the question of survival.

HOFFMANN

She tacitly suggests that survival is Possible. If nuclear war is not "unthinkable" — as Eisenhower and Khrushchev once publically declared — if there is the possibility of survival, if not for our institutions at least our hides, then we become psychologically prepared for what was once described as an irreparable calamity for mankind.

Miss Mead here is employing psychology bound to backfire. There will be those who will wish to create underground honeymoon hideaways — not for preservation of the human race — but for a particular nationality, ethnic group or what have you.

HER SUGGESTION for these labyrinthine laboratories is Brave New World incarnate. President Kennedy's initial statement about fallout shelters was a psychological tactic which is part of the tribal circling of an opponent which marks our international relations. It was undertaken, I think, much as the witch doctor dons a mask to frighten evil spirits, in this instance Soviet bluster over Berlin. But it left the nation seized in the grip of a panic just now subsiding.

The anthropologist's remarks were followed by a puerile statement issued by the American Association for the Advancement of Science's committee on science in the promotion of human welfare. The committee said science must "discover new social inventions to replace (modern war)." The scientists urged "the establishment of a new collaborative science, the science of human survival."

Perhaps these distinguished gentlemen never heard of the Sermon on the Mount. This sets an ideal to aim at, an ethic which exists beyond man's baser instincts and toward which he can strive. That this striving has not yet carried him in view of the timberline of hope is apparent.

SCIENCE CANNOT "invent" improved relations. There are too many variables in the human experience, too much of a margin of error. Our emphasis here should be ethical, not empirical. There is not enough time left to "invent" brotherhood. The peoples of the world must be aroused emotionally to the peril; appeal to logic, with all the statistical dead of a theoretical nuclear war tabulated, has not relaxed the tightening bowstring of tension.

Where was the "science" of human survival at Los Alamos? It existed in a moral vacuum because science insists on neutrality — on objectivity — regardless, in this case, of consequence.

A colleague of mine, Bob Cummins, who provoked a controversy when he attacked the subservience of science to politics on these pages, offers a better solution. "If the scientists really want to help," he says, "they should organize an international trade union and go on strike against the production of more bombs, nerve gases, and other techniques of mass extermination."

Man's Future Is at Stake

By VIRGINIA LAUGHLIN

TREMENDOUS AMOUNTS OF man's creative thinking power have been catapulted into the whirling spiral of self-preservation.

Congress recently approved the appropriation of $207 million for radiation shelters.

In addition President Kennedy asked for $73 million to stockpile food and medical supplies. Included in this is $47 million to relocate 126 million bushels of wheat from storage areas to 191 so-called target areas.

LAUGHLIN

Listed as target areas in Illinois are Champaign-Urbana, Chicago, Decatur, Davenport-Rock Island-Moline, Joliet, Peoria, Rockford and Springfield.

Local communities have formed somewhat active civil defense units and under the guise of "preparing for 'any' emergency, be it flood, fire, war or tornado," are in actuality making a useless attempt to protect themselves from "The Bomb" when it arrives, or as one citizen put it, from "the thirsty, hungry, unclothed Chicagoans who will make tracks for the suburbs."

Nearly 70 per cent of the money voted by Congress in 1961 will go to national defense and military security. This includes administration of the national debt which is more than 80 per cent war-created and payments to veterans and other costs of past wars.

At the same time we are giving less than four per cent for foreign aid and technical assistance. We are giving less than 6½ per cent for health, education, welfare, housing and social security.

If you paid an income tax of $1,500 this year then you contributed $1,050 to our military security and $98 to a program for the assistance of under-privileged. (How does this figure compare with that given to the Annual Appeal, for example).

So much energy has gone into the program for self-preservation that if the amounts could be transposed into units of measure, the figure would be staggering.

True, there are scientists who claim that some survival may be possible with adequate protection. But there are equally reputable scientists who state firmly that an all-out nuclear war would end civilization on this globe. There is only slightly more comfort in accepting the former theory.

I am not advocating an anarchic society, but I do believe that we must never forget or let our governments forget the words of former President Eisenhower when he said that "if the people of the world want peace, then the governments would best stand out of the way and let them have it."

If the energies and finances which are currently going into the preparation for war would be put toward a program for eliminating the causes of war, there might yet be hope for the future of civilization.

Some will call this "unrealistic," an "ideal," good in theory but impracticable in today's world.

However, if man admits to it being an ideal, then it is right. And if it is right, then it is a goal worth striving for . . . not tomorrow, or in the next generation, but now . . . today!

It is my firm belief that within every man there is an inherent goodness, an inherent sense of rightness, an inherent quality of love.

But wallowing in the mud of negativism, buried deeply under preconceived prejudices which have created suspicion, hate and fear, this quality is often difficult to find, much less cultivate. But it is still there.

If modern man who has allowed himself to become victimized by social pressures were to strip himself of his superficiality and reach into the somewhat smothered core within, he might then come up with the positive attitudes and efforts which are necessary for the building of the kind of world in which disputes can be settled by other than nuclear means.

Positive action has been taken by some. Consider the fact that the 1961 Illinois General Assembly passed more civil rights legislation than in the entire state's history.

Give a few moments thought to the various groups and individuals around the country who voluntarily tax themselves one per cent and send the money to the United Nations.

Also sent to the United Nations by a group of families in North Carolina was the combined amount which the families would have used in building shelters. A California woman sent a check for $1,000 to the UN because she said she believes more in its protection than in that of shelters.

But the average man, like the freshly-plowed soil beneath a tornado, has been sucked into the conformity of the militarist, and apparently has little energy left to fight the means, much less the end. Nonetheless, perhaps there may still be time to flush this opiate of deterrence from our systems and wake up to the real needs of the world around us.

FENCE POST: Some Suggestions

I read, with great interest, Editor Tom Edwards' articles in the December 28 issue of the Wheeling Herald.

I am in accord with the general theme of Mr. Edwards' article and articles he has written in the past. I believe Mr. Edwards is sincerely striving to do an outstanding job of journalism. (I must admit, though, that he tends to editorialize at times).

All things considered, however, I believe Mr. Edwards is doing a fine job.

This is not my primary reason for writing though. My reason for writing is to, I hope, constructively criticize Mr. Edwards and Paddock Publications.

AS I HAVE said, I agree with the general theme of Mr. Edwards' articles. It is most assuredly the peoples fault that the politicians take advantage of their office. It is the peoples fault because it is the voters (and non-voters) that put these people in office. But is it not also the fault of the various news media, such as newspapers, that the voters are not better informed as to the type of people they are putting into office. Certainly these people cannot be angels before their election and then suddenly, after election, revert to the lowest form of criminal, i.e., taking advantage of the trust placed in them by their fellow man.

If those elected to public office have a background of under handedness, then the public should know this before election. This, I believe, is the responsibility of the respective political parties and the press. Especially the press.

I would like to point out that I do not refer to all politicians but only to those that do take advantage of their office. I am sure there are a great many good, honest men in politics. It is certainly a shame that there are men that cast the stigma of "rotten politicians" on those that are honestly striving for good government.

GETTING BACK to the case in point, however. I would like to say this. Not only could the press better inform the voting public but could be of tremendous value in other ways. I would like to suggest, when a "scandal" breaks, that the press inform the public as to what they should do or what they can do. When a "scandal" such as the Sanitary District expose' breaks, give the name and addresses of the District Trustees so people may write them and express their feelings. Give the name and addresses of the respective township committeemen so the people may contact them. I believe the newspapers should bear in mind that the average citizen does not know the names and addresses of these men nor do they know the best way to locate them.

These men would certainly sit up and take notice were they to be deluged with mail concerning these affairs. Most people do not realize that a letter can be very effective. This is especially true should there be a great many letters concerning the same thing.

The reason I suggest this is because, as I have stated, most people do not know these facts. Now let us assume, for instance, a great many people read Mr. Edwards' article in the December 28 issue. They become irritated and want to do something about the situation — but what can they do — nothing is said about this. Even should they decide to write the Trustees of the Sanitary District they do not know their names nor where to write. By this time most of the good intentions about doing something have lapsed. Even those with more determination soon become discouraged and finally give up. A day or two passes before they find out the names of those to contact and by this time their interest has waned to the point of "filing" the names for a later date.

IT IS A sad but true fact that all people must, as Mr. Edwards put it in the "Critics Corner," "work to eat and eat to work." What with this and the many other problems that the average person encounters very little time is left for being "public spirited." Most people will "let George do it."

If it were not for a Christopher Leadership Course I took last January 1, in all probability, I would not even be writing this letter now. I would be "letting George do it." However, the course teaches a saying which I believe in. This is: "It is better to light one candle than to curse the darkness." By this letter I hope to light "one candle."

Before closing I would like to make two more suggestions.

THE FIRST of these is that the letters to the Editor be moved closer to the front page. There are, very often, interesting and stimulating letters printed in your paper. However, in our case, the first few pages pertain to Wheeling and the rest of the paper concerns the many other communities around us. Therefore, before I get to the Editorial page I must wade through a great deal of matter that is of little or no interest to me. I found the letters to the Editor on page 45, (I had to count the pages as I have been unable to find the page numbers referred to in your paper), in the December 28 isue.

My last suggestion is this: I believe it would be well if your paper would occasionally put articles of praise on the front page. For instance the article "What Was Wheeling's Biggest 61 Blunder" could have been on page number two and the article that was on page number two "Wheeling Tops In Leadership" could have been on the front page.

I believe the majority of those in Wheeling realize what Wheelings short comings are and also appreciate constructive criticism. However, everyone, at one time or another, likes a little praise. This gives the morale a boost and helps those that are trying to overcome the short comings the added incentive to do so that much faster.

I HAVE lived in or around Wheeling for the past 15 years and have just recently become somewhat active in civic affairs. I believe Wheeling is and will become a very outstanding community. I also believe the people in Wheeling are doing their utmost to make this come to pass. Therefore let's give them a little praise also.

The Way We See It

Further Economies Needed for County

Included in Cook county's 1962 budget is a request for some $300,000 to pay 61 window washers to keep county buildings' glass glistening.

This is one of many items seized upon by three Republican commissioners in the county's record corporate budget of $84,542,516 which they feel exorbitant.

Retention of 61 window washers on the county payroll figures out to about $6,000 a week or a salary of $505 a month per man, estimates Charles F. Chaplin of Northbrook, one of the GOP's angry objectors.

Chaplin, along with commissioners Jerry Dolezal of Cicero and Fred A. Fulle of Des Plaines, have asked that an investigation be made to determine how much window washing would cost if placed on a contractural basis. Surely there are private window washing firms whose charges for maintaining sightly windows for county structures would be less than the price now paid. Chaplin ventures that a considerable savings would result.

It hardly makes sense to keep a corps of window washers at the ready. Their responsibility reaches to one half of the county building, the structure the county shares with the city of Chicago, the Oak Forest and Cook county hospitals, the Audy home and the Cook county jail. A visual inspection of the county building's windows shows they are not exactly the picture of clarity and probably do not require scrubbing more than two or three times a year.

The three GOP commissioners were also disturbed over State's Attorney Daniel P. Ward's budget request for $550,000 more than his predecessor was granted to run his office. One item which particularly piqued them was the salary increase Ward asked for his secretary from $8,400 to $10,500 a year. The trio also scored the coroner's $250 a month car allowance request, and were further critical of the zoning administrator and board of health.

They also called for an immediate review of the contract the county hospital holds with the county School of Nursing, contending that the hospital's budget has climbed from $4½ million in 1951 to $11½ million while the number of beds in the hospital — 3400 — has remained stationary for this 10-year period. Part of this, of course, could be due to overcrowding in an outdated facility.

But the commissioners' critique is disturbing and revealing. It shows that in some instances, good sense isn't being used. In other areas, it appears to be a case of political expediency winning out over economical consideration.

The county board was to take final action on its budget last Friday, Dec. 29. This would not cancel out decisions to attempt to achieve economies, however, at a later date.

Last week we lauded the county board of commissioners for handing taxpayers a bonus in the form of a tax abatement of $6 million from a surplus in the 1961 tax levy (which will mean a reduction in the 1961 tax bill of 5.9 cents per $100 assessed valuation). Nothing has altered this commendation, but while applauding their action we commented that we thought there were some obvious areas uncovered by the Civic Federation of Chicago where further economy could be effected. We still think so — and now more than ever.

Even those with more determination soon become discouraged and finally give up. A day or two passes before they find out the names of those to contact and by this time their interest has waned to the point of "filing" the names for a later date.

IT IS A sad but true fact that all people must, as Mr. Edwards put it in the "Critics Corner," "work to eat and eat to work." What with this and the many other problems that the average person encounters very little time is left for being "public spirited." Most people will "let George do it."

If it were not for a Christopher Leadership Course I took last January 1, in all probability, I would not even be writing this letter now. I would be "letting George do it." However, the course teaches a saying which I believe in. This is: "It is better to light one candle than to curse the darkness." By this letter I hope to light "one candle."

Before closing I would like to make two more suggestions.

THE FIRST of these is that the letters to the Editor be moved closer to the front page. There are, very often, interesting and stimulating letters printed in your paper. However, in our case, the first few pages pertain to Wheeling and the rest of the paper concerns the many other communities around us. Therefore, before I get to the Editorial page I must wade through a great deal of matter that is of little or no interest to me. I found the letters to the Editor on page 45, (I had to count the pages as I have been unable to find the page numbers referred to in your paper), in the December 28 isue.

My last suggestion is this: I believe it would be well if your paper would occasionally put articles of praise on the front page. For instance the article "What Was Wheeling's Biggest 61 Blunder" could have been on page number two and the article that was on page number two "Wheeling Tops In Leadership" could have been on the front page.

I believe the majority of those in Wheeling realize what Wheelings short comings are and also appreciate constructive criticism. However, everyone, at one time or another, likes a little praise. This gives the morale a boost and helps those that are trying to overcome the short comings the added incentive to do so that much faster.

I HAVE lived in or around Wheeling for the past 15 years and have just recently become somewhat active in civic affairs. I believe Wheeling is and will become a very outstanding community. I also believe the people in Wheeling are doing their utmost to make this come to pass. Therefore let's give them a little praise also.

Superb Gourmet Dishes Shared By Pope Cookery 'Disciple'

Here's "Howe" to make superb gourmet dishes! This may be a bit of word play, but we are featuring an excellent cook this week named Mrs. Harold B. Howe, who not only knows the "how" but the "what and wherefore" of fine food.

This gracious homemaker, who is a graduate of Pope's cooking school, planned many a lovely party and decorated many a fancy cake in years gone by. However, she readily admits that since her children have grown her cooking ventures have been simplified.

But she loves to cook, has oodles of tempting recipes and when the occasion arises ventures forth in her kitchen like a true professional. And her "know how" with spices, herbs and garnishes can turn a family meal into something special, too.

One of her favorite recipes, which is currently appearing in the Methodist church cook book, is called Chicken Casserole Supreme.

"THIS IS A wonderful recipe for a ladies luncheon or buffet supper," commented Mrs. Howe. "My mother got this recipe years ago from a Southern "mammy" and it has been a family favorite ever since."

This recipe combines boned chicken with toasted bread crumbs, rice, pimiento, milk and egg yolks, with egg whites folded in. Topped with pulled bread crumbs and melted butter, it is baked for 40 minutes.

This savory casserole rises as it is baked and is very light and fluffy. It is served with a rich mushroom sauce that really "makes" this dish. The combination is an elegant taste treat.

AS ACCOMPANIMENTS Mrs. Howe suggests a molded jello salad (she often makes several) and hot rolls. A tossed salad may also be used and she sometimes fixes a warm condiment dish such as stuffed beets.

For dessert this good cook recommends something light, such as a rum mold, a lemon pudding or orange sherbet. Her sherbet recipe combines orange and lemon juice, along with eggs, marshmallows, whipped cream and other ingredients.

Very mellow and creamy, it is a refreshing finale for a rich meal.

Two other desserts rank among Mrs. Howe's favorites, but as both are quite rich she recommends them primarily for bridge desserts or dessert luncheons. One is called a Nabisco Torte; the other a Chocolate Roll.

SUCCESSFUL HOMEMAKING

by LOIS SEILER

ASSEMBLED IN layers, the torte consists of a Nabisco crumb crust topped by a rich butter cream filling, chopped nuts and a layer of mixed fruit. Whipped cream is spread over all, with additional Nabisco crumbs sprinkled on top.

Chilled in the refrigerator overnight, this dessert is cut in squares to serve. It is very festive and colorful in appearance and delightful to taste.

"The Chocolate Roll recipe was given to me years ago by a wonderful Swedish cook," said Mrs. Howe. "There is no flour at all in the cake itself, and it is so light and fluffy that it almost "poofs" away as it is eaten."

"THE ONLY trick to making this roll is to get the egg whites just right," said this experienced cook. "They must be stiff but moist and beaten just until you can tip the bowl over without the whites coming out."

Eggs, sugar and cocoa are the only ingredients in the cake itself. "It is especially good made with Dutch cocoa," Mrs. Howe explained.

After the cake is baked, rolled and cooled, it is unrolled, spread with whipped cream and rolled again. Served with a mellow marshmallow sauce, it is an elegant party dessert.

NONE OF THESE recipes is too difficult for even a novice to prepare, and all of them are excellent company fare.

Mr. and Mrs. Howe moved from Des Plaines to their home at 627 N. Rolling Lane in Arlington Heights six years ago. They have two sons and two daughters, all married, and six grandchildren.

FESTIVE IN APPEARANCE and delightful to taste is the rich Nabisco Torte being served by Mrs. Harold B. Howe of Arlington Heights. This appealing dessert, as well as a Chocolate Roll and elegant Chicken Casserole, rank among this good cook's favorite recipes. (SH

CHICKEN CASSEROLE SUPREME

1 4-pound chicken or 4 pounds chicken breasts, boned
2 cups fresh lightly-toasted bread crumbs
1 cup cooked rice (small grain)
1½ teaspoons salt
⅛ cup chopped pimiento
3 cups cream line milk (whole milk) or half milk and half chicken broth
4 egg yolks, well-beaten
4 egg whites, beaten
Pulled bread crumbs
¼ pound melted butter

Cook chicken until tender. Remove skin and bones and cut in small pieces. Combine chicken, bread crumbs, rice, salt and pimiento. Add milk, chicken broth and beaten egg yolks.

Beat egg whites until they just cling to the bowl. Gently fold them into chicken mixture.

Turn into a two-quart greased casserole. Top with pulled bread crumbs and drizzle melted butter over all. Sprinkle lightly with paprika. Bake in a 325 degree oven for 40 to 45 minutes.

Serve chicken casserole with the following sauce:

¼ cup butter
¼ pound fresh or ½ pound canned mushrooms
¼ cup flour
1 pint warm chicken broth
¼ cup warm coffee cream
⅛ teaspoon paprika
½ tablespoon chopped parsley
½ teaspoon lemon juice

Melt butter, add mushrooms and saute until light brown. Add flour and when well-blended, stir in warm chicken broth and coffee cream.

Cook over low flame until smooth, stirring constantly. Add lemon juice slowly, salt to taste before serving and add parsley.

ORANGE SHERBET

1 cup orange juice
Juice of one lemon
Grated rind of one orange
1 cup whole milk
2 egg yolks
8 large marshmallows
1 tablespoon gelatine
2 tablespoon gelatine
2 tablespoons cold water
1¼ cups fine granulated sugar
Pinch of salt
2 egg whites, beaten stiff
1 cup whipping cream, whipped

Combine milk and egg yolks and cook together in a double boiler until thick. Remove from heat. Cut up the marshmallows and add to hot milk-egg mixture. Beat in while hot.

Dissolve gelatine in cold water. Add to above; let cool. Stir in fruit juices, sugar and salt. Fold in the stiffly-beaten egg whites and whipped cream.

NABISCO TORTE

1 pound Nabisco wafers, pink and brown
¾ cup butter
1 cup powdered sugar
2 eggs, separated
½ teaspoon vanilla or more
1 cup chopped nuts
1 quart fruit cocktail (large can)
1 large or 2 small cans crushed pineapple, drained well
1½ cups whipping cream

Prepare Nabiscos for crumb crust. Press half of crumbs firmly into bottom and sides of a greased 9 by 14 inch glass pan or two 8 by 8 inch glass pans. Reserve remainder of crumbs for topping.

Cream butter and powdered sugar. Add unbeaten egg yolks. Beat thoroughly until well-creamed.

Beat egg whites to stiff peaks but moist. Fold vanilla and meringue into creamed mixture. Spread this mixture over crumbs and sprinkle with a thin layer of chopped nuts.

Place well-drained fruit over the nuts. Spread whipped cream, which has been sweetened with a scant tablespoon of powdered sugar and a drop or two of vanilla, over all. Sprinkle remaining crumbs on top.

Chill in refrigerator overnight and cut in squares to serve.

CHOCOLATE ROLL

1 cup granulated sugar
3 tablespoons cocoa
1 pint whipping cream
1 large package marshmallows

Beat yolks of eggs slightly. Beat in sugar gradually until thick and light; fold in cocoa. Beat egg whites until stiff peaks but moist. Fold into yolk mixture.

Butter an 18 by 12 by 1-inch jelly roll pan. Dust with a small amount of cornstarch. Cover pan with waxed paper; do not butter waxed paper.

Pre-heat oven to 450 degrees. Reduce heat to 350 degrees and place cake in oven. Bake for 20 minutes.

Remove cake from oven and turn immediately onto a damp cloth or a cloth sprinkled with powdered sugar. Place a damp cloth over the cake to remove the waxed paper. Let cake cool a little. While still a little warm, roll up.

Beat whipping cream and sweeten with one tablespoon powdered sugar and ½ to one teaspoon vanilla. Unroll cooled cake and spread whipped cream to within ½-inch of the edges. Roll up.

When ready to serve, melt marshmallows in a couple tablespoons milk or cream. Pour over cake. Or cut in slices and serve a small amount of sauce over each piece. (SH

Superb Gourmet Dishes Shared By Pope Cookery 'Disciple'

SUCCESSFUL HOMEMAKING

by LOIS SEILER

Here's "Howe" to make superb gourmet dishes! This may be a bit of word play, but we are featuring an excellent cook this week named Mrs. Harold B. Howe, who not only knows the "how" but the "what and wherefore" of fine food.

This gracious homemaker, who is a graduate of Pope's cooking school, planned many a lovely party and decorated many a fancy cake in years gone by. However, she readily admits that since her children have grown her cooking ventures have been simplified.

But she loves to cook, has oodles of tempting recipes and when the occasion arises ventures forth in her kitchen like a true professional. And her "know how" with spices, herbs and garnishes can turn a family meal into something special, too.

One of her favorite recipes, which is currently appearing in the Methodist church cook book, is called Chicken Casserole Supreme.

"THIS IS A wonderful recipe for a ladies luncheon or buffet supper," commented Mrs. Howe. "My mother got this recipe years ago from a Southern "mammy" and it has been a family favorite ever since."

This recipe combines boned chicken with toasted bread crumbs, rice, pimiento, milk and egg yolks, with egg whites folded in. Topped with pulled bread crumbs and melted butter, it is baked for 40 minutes.

This savory casserole rises as it is baked and is very light and fluffy. It is served with a rich mushroom sauce that really "makes" this dish. The combination is an elegant taste treat.

AS ACCOMPANIMENTS Mrs. Howe suggests a molded jello salad (she often makes several) and hot rolls. A tossed salad may also be used and she sometimes fixes a warm condiment dish such as stuffed beets.

For dessert this good cook recommends something light, such as a rum mold, a lemon pudding or orange sherbet. Her sherbet recipe combines orange and lemon juice, along with eggs, marshmallows, whipped cream and other ingredients.

Very mellow and creamy, it is a refreshing finale for a rich meal.

Two other desserts rank among Mrs. Howe's favorites, but as both are quite rich she recommends them primarily for bridge desserts or dessert luncheons. One is called a Nabisco Torte; the other a Chocolate Roll.

ASSEMBLED IN layers, the torte consists of a Nabisco crumb crust topped by a rich butter cream filling, chopped nuts and a layer of mixed fruit. Whipped cream is spread over all, with additional Nabisco crumbs sprinkled on top.

Chilled in the refrigerator overnight, this dessert is cut in squares to serve. It is very festive and colorful in appearance and delightful to taste.

"The Chocolate Roll recipe was given to me years ago by a wonderful Swedish cook," said Mrs. Howe. "There is no flour at all in the cake itself, and it is so light and fluffy that it almost "poofs" away as it is eaten."

"THE ONLY trick to making this roll is to get the egg whites just right," said this experienced cook. "They must be stiff but moist and beaten just until you can tip the bowl over without the whites coming out."

Eggs, sugar and cocoa are the only ingredients in the cake itself. "It is especially good made with Dutch cocoa," Mrs. Howe explained.

After the cake is baked, rolled and cooled, it is unrolled, spread with whipped cream and rolled again. Served with a mellow marshmallow sauce, it is an elegant party dessert.

NONE OF THESE recipes is too difficult for even a novice to prepare, and all of them are excellent company fare.

Mr. and Mrs. Howe moved from Des Plaines to their home at 627 N. Rolling Lane in Arlington Heights six years ago. They have two sons and two daughters, all married, and six grandchildren.

FESTIVE IN APPEARANCE and delightful to taste is the rich Nabisco Torte being served by Mrs. Harold B. Howe of Arlington Heights. This appealing dessert, as well as a Chocolate Roll and elegant Chicken Casserole, rank among this good cook's favorite recipes. (SH

1 4-pound chicken or 4 pounds chicken breasts, boned
2 cups fresh lightly-toasted bread crumbs
1 cup cooked rice (small grain)
1½ teaspoons salt
⅛ cup chopped pimiento
3 cups cream line milk (whole milk) or half milk and half chicken broth
4 egg yolks, well-beaten
4 egg whites, beaten
Pulled bread crumbs
¼ pound melted butter

Cook chicken until tender. Remove skin and bones and cut in small pieces. Combine chicken, bread crumbs, rice, salt and pimiento. Add milk, chicken broth and beaten egg yolks.

Beat egg whites until they just cling to the bowl. Gently fold them into chicken mixture.

Turn into a two-quart greased casserole. Top with pulled bread crumbs and drizzle melted butter over all. Sprinkle lightly with paprika. Bake in a 325 degree oven for 40 to 45 minutes.

Serve chicken casserole with the following sauce:

¼ cup butter
¼ pound fresh or ½ pound canned mushrooms
¼ cup flour
1 pint warm chicken broth
¼ cup warm coffee cream
⅛ teaspoon paprika
½ tablespoon chopped parsley
½ teaspoon lemon juice

Melt butter, add mushrooms and saute until light brown. Add flour and when well-blended, stir in warm chicken broth and coffee cream.

Cook over low flame until smooth, stirring constantly. Add lemon juice slowly, salt to taste before serving and add parsley.

ORANGE SHERBET

1 cup orange juice
Juice of one lemon
Grated rind of one orange
1 cup whole milk
2 egg yolks
8 large marshmallows
1 tablespoon gelatine
2 tablespoon gelatine
2 tablespoons cold water
1¼ cups fine granulated sugar
Pinch of salt
2 egg whites, beaten stiff
1 cup whipping cream, whipped

Combine milk and egg yolks and cook together in a double boiler until thick. Remove from heat. Cut up the marshmallows and add to hot milk-egg mixture. Beat in while hot.

Dissolve gelatine in cold water. Add to above; let cool. Stir in fruit juices, sugar and salt. Fold in the stiffly-beaten egg whites and whipped cream.

NABISCO TORTE

1 pound Nabisco wafers, pink and brown
¾ cup butter
1 cup powdered sugar
2 eggs, separated
½ teaspoon vanilla or more
1 cup chopped nuts
1 quart fruit cocktail (large can)
1 large or 2 small cans crushed pineapple, drained well
1½ cups whipping cream

Prepare Nabiscos for crumb crust. Press half of crumbs firmly into bottom and sides of a greased 9 by 14 inch glass pan or two 8 by 8 inch glass pans. Reserve remainder of crumbs for topping.

Cream butter and powdered sugar. Add unbeaten egg yolks. Beat thoroughly until well-creamed.

Beat egg whites to stiff peaks but moist. Fold vanilla and meringue into creamed mixture. Spread this mixture over crumbs and sprinkle with a thin layer of chopped nuts.

Place well-drained fruit over the nuts. Spread whipped cream, which has been sweetened with a scant tablespoon of powdered sugar and a drop or two of vanilla, over all. Sprinkle remaining crumbs on top.

Chill in refrigerator overnight and cut in squares to serve.

CHOCOLATE ROLL

1 cup granulated sugar
3 tablespoons cocoa
1 pint whipping cream
1 large package marshmallows

Beat yolks of eggs slightly. Beat in sugar gradually until thick and light; fold in cocoa. Beat egg whites until stiff peaks but moist. Fold into yolk mixture.

Butter an 18 by 12 by 1-inch jelly roll pan. Dust with a small amount of cornstarch. Cover pan with waxed paper; do not butter waxed paper.

Pre-heat oven to 450 degrees. Reduce heat to 350 degrees and place cake in oven. Bake for 20 minutes.

Remove cake from oven and turn immediately onto a damp cloth or a cloth sprinkled with powdered sugar. Place a damp cloth over the cake to remove the waxed paper. Let cake cool a little. While still a little warm, roll up.

Beat whipping cream and sweeten with one tablespoon powdered sugar and ½ to one teaspoon vanilla. Unroll cooled cake and spread whipped cream to within ½-inch of the edges. Roll up.

When ready to serve, melt marshmallows in a couple tablespoons milk or cream. Pour over cake. Or cut in slices and serve a small amount of sauce over each piece. (SH

Burgers, Topping Make Tasty Flavor Harmony

Spoon it; dip it; pour it — three ways to serve this hot, smooth versatile sauce. A canned Marinara sauce specially developed from a famous chef's recipe and sharp cheese are heated until the cheese melts.

Simply mixed and quickly heated, this sauce can be used in a variety of ways. Spoon it on top of hamburgers, frankfurters, or bacon and tomato sandwiches for a delicious sauce topping.

DIP INTO it with crisp corn chips, potato crackers or chips for a delightful hot cocktail snack. Try it, too, with crisp chilled carrot sticks, celery chunks and cauliflower flowerlets as the dippers.

Pour it on top of hot waffles, stuffed pancakes or over poached eggs on toasted English muffins for a definitely new, pleasing treat.

Week's Best Food Buys

Retail food prices, like water, seek new levels this week in a post-holidays shake-out on one hand, squeezed by weather and the short work-week schedules on the other.

Generally, most supply sources report higher costs going into the first week of 1962 on the weekly survey of the University of Illinois consumer service.

This is especially true of perishables from Florida and other southern states hard hit by frosts, and livestock shipments from the blizzard raked midwest. Two consecutive short work-week schedules in processing plants have added to the surging cost bulge.

THIS LEAVES retailers pretty much on their own for the period ending January 6, picking those lines that can stand some price shake-out from holiday levels of good food sales and "guess-timating" how much the consumer has left to budget for food.

On the U of I consensus value list are these lines that can be considered sure-fire features in most stores, or, if not that, at least offer the best opportunity for price concessions: meats—beef chuck roasts, round steaks, pork loin roasts and chops, bacon and lamb leg roasts; poultry—large eggs; produce—apples, grapefruit, bananas, lettuce, carrots, broccoli, onions, potatoes and tomatoes.

DESPITE THE current weather problems and the possibilities of more frosts, the normal growing schedule for this time of year lists these fruits and vegetables that offer value buy potential during January (* indicates peak supply month): fruits—apples, grapefruit, kumquats, oranges, tangerines; vegetables—broccoli, carrots, celery cabbage*, chives*, collards*, horseradish, kale*, mushrooms, parsnips*, potatoes, sweet potatoes, turnips and rutabagas.

Note—the calendar of monthly produce values is determined on the basis of Chicago unload data, current crop production, storage stock reports and trade survey findings.

The big question mark hangs over the tender produce lines that come from the south. Significantly higher and climbing daily, are such items as peppers, cucumbers, sweetcorn, escarole, Romaine, radishes and lettuce.

THESE BEAR watching almost daily in the stores, with many already reflecting higher retails. Better buys are restricted to hardier items from storage stocks, greenhouses and western supply sources that hold the lid on costs and point up consumer values noted previously.

Fryers and turkeys have left the value roost, fryers in terms of higher wholesale costs and turkeys for lack of interest—both posting higher retails. Eggs also show stronger cost tones due to weather, with retails holding momentarily steady against a background of abundant fresh and storage supplies.

New supplies are 4 per cent larger than last week and 17 per cent over year-ago, while storage stock deficits are practically nil—shell storage only 27,500 cases short of last year and frozen stocks just 3,404,000 pounds short.

WHOLESALE MEATS are in moderately good supply across all kinds. Beef recorded cost increases of from ½ cent to 1-1½ cents with chucks and rounds moving vigorously; pork, while softer in early week began climbing in anticipation of store promotions; lamb registered its biggest cost gain in two years, up 2 cents to 3 cents on active demand against 1/3 reduced supplies at live markets. Sauce Amandine Is Pope Recipe

For top of broiled, baked, fried fish or vegetables, drop ½ cup shelled almonds into boiling water, and simmer several minutes. Drain well and let cool a few minutes.

Now remove skins and slice almonds lengthwise Saute in ½ cup hot butter over very low heat about 5 minutes, stirring them continuously, until golden brown.

Season with about ½ teaspoon salt and mix well. Serve hot over fish or vegetables. Sauces may be prepared in advance and reheated over very low heat for a few seconds.

Florida Gold Takes Well To Honey, Fruit, Relish

Wonderful grapefruit from Florida, that is certainly pure gold in its own fresh, inimitable way, is rolling into the markets now, and will continue to do so through late spring. This year's crop is hailed as being of vintage quality, exceptionally juicy and firm.

The prime way to enjoy the plump, luscious fruit is in its natural state—merely halved and sectioned. It's a wonderful way to get daily vitamin C, too, the one vitamin needed daily and not stored by the body.

Grapefruit halves are good for breakfast, lunch or dinner. Simply vary the fruit toppings.

START WITH the proper tool—a good sharp knife. Experts seem to agree on a straight-bladed knife for separating the fruit from the dividing membranes in preparing grapefruit halves.

If you like the seeded fruit (many people prefer it but not the chore of removing the seeds) cut around the seeds, removing a cone from the center. Some who know, however, prefer to flick out the seeds with a fork.

To section the whole fruit, peel like an apple, and then cut from the outside down to the core with a knife blade about 5 or 6 inches long; slip out section by pulling knife back along next membrane.

FILL THE center with frozen strawberries or raspbherries, a dollop of honey, or perhaps an appetizing orange - cranberry relish.

Orange-Cranberry Relish

2 Florida oranges, quartered and seeded
4 cups fresh cranberries
2 cups sugar

Put orange quarters with peel and cranberries through food chopper. Add sugar to mixture. Chill in refrigerator several hours before serving. The relish will also keep well in refrigerator several weeks.

Yield: One quart. (SH

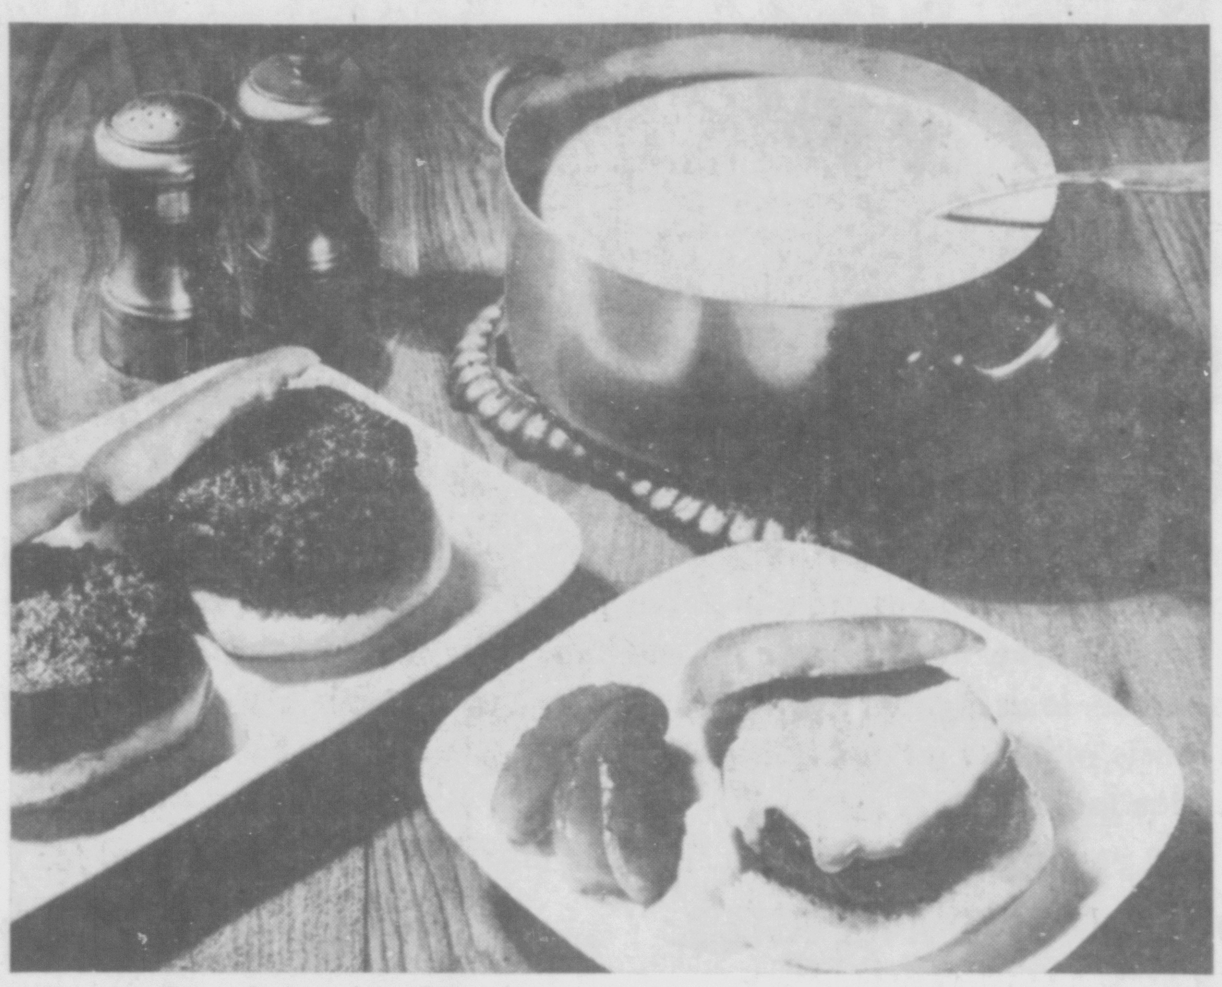
Burgers, Topping Make Tasty Flavor Harmony



Spoon it; dip it; pour it — three ways to serve this hot, smooth versatile sauce. A canned Marinara sauce specially developed from a famous chef's recipe and sharp cheese are heated until the cheese melts.

Simply mixed and quickly heated, this sauce can be used in a variety of ways. Spoon it on top of hamburgers, frankfurters, or bacon and tomato sandwiches for a delicious sauce topping.

DIP INTO it with crisp corn chips, potato crackers or chips for a delightful hot cocktail snack. Try it, too, with crisp chilled carrot sticks, celery chunks and cauliflower flowerlets as the dippers.

Pour it on top of hot waffles, stuffed pancakes or over poached eggs on toasted English muffins for a definitely new, pleasing treat.

THREE-WAY SAUCE

1 (15½ oz.) can Chef Boy-Ar-Dee Marinara Sauce*

½ lb. sharp pasteurized cheese

1 teaspoon prepared mustard

few drops tabasco sauce

Pour *Marinara sauce into saucepan. Cut cheese into pieces and add to sauce. Heat over medium heat, stirring occasionally, until cheese melts. Stir in mustard and tabasco. Makes about 2 cups.

Use as topping for sandwiches, pancakes, waffles, poached eggs, or as a hot cocktail dip.

Week's Best Food Buys

Retail food prices, like water, seek new levels this week in a post-holidays shake-out on one hand, squeezed by weather and the short work-week schedules on the other.

Generally, most supply sources report higher costs going into the first week of 1962 on the weekly survey of the University of Illinois consumer service.

This is especially true of perishables from Florida and other southern states hard hit by frosts, and livestock shipments from the blizzard raked midwest. Two consecutive short work-week schedules in processing plants have added to the surging cost bulge.

THIS LEAVES retailers pretty much on their own for the period ending January 6, picking those lines that can stand some price shake-out from holiday levels of good food sales and "guess-timating" how much the consumer has left to budget for food.

On the U of I consensus value list are these lines that can be considered sure-fire features in most stores, or, if not that, at least offer the best opportunity for price concessions: meats—beef chuck roasts, round steaks, pork loin roasts and chops, bacon and lamb leg roasts; poultry—large eggs; produce—apples, grapefruit, bananas, lettuce, carrots, broccoli, onions, potatoes and tomatoes.

DESPITE THE current weather problems and the possibilities of more frosts, the normal growing schedule for this time of year lists these fruits and vegetables that offer value buy potential during January (* indicates peak supply month): fruits—apples, grapefruit, kumquats, oranges, tangerines; vegetables—broccoli, carrots, celery cabbage*, chives*, collards*, horseradish, kale*, mushrooms, parsnips*, potatoes, sweet potatoes, turnips and rutabagas.

Note—the calendar of monthly produce values is determined on the basis of Chicago unload data, current crop production, storage stock reports and trade survey findings.

The big question mark hangs over the tender produce lines that come from the south. Significantly higher and climbing daily, are such items as peppers, cucumbers, sweetcorn, escarole, Romaine, radishes and lettuce.

THESE BEAR watching almost daily in the stores, with many already reflecting higher retails. Better buys are restricted to hardier items from storage stocks, greenhouses and western supply sources that hold the lid on costs and point up consumer values noted previously.

Fryers and turkeys have left the value roost, fryers in terms of higher wholesale costs and turkeys for lack of interest—both posting higher retails. Eggs also show stronger cost tones due to weather, with retails holding momentarily steady against a background of abundant fresh and storage supplies.

New supplies are 4 per cent larger than last week and 17 per cent over year-ago, while storage stock deficits are practically nil—shell storage only 27,500 cases short of last year and frozen stocks just 3,404,000 pounds short.

WHOLESALE MEATS are in moderately good supply across all kinds. Beef recorded cost increases of from ½ cent to 1-1½ cents with chucks and rounds moving vigorously; pork, while softer in early week began climbing in anticipation of store promotions; lamb registered its biggest cost gain in two years, up 2 cents to 3 cents on active demand against 1/3 reduced supplies at live markets. Sauce Amandine Is Pope Recipe

For top of broiled, baked, fried fish or vegetables, drop ½ cup shelled almonds into boiling water, and simmer several minutes. Drain well and let cool a few minutes.

Now remove skins and slice almonds lengthwise Saute in ½ cup hot butter over very low heat about 5 minutes, stirring them continuously, until golden brown.

Season with about ½ teaspoon salt and mix well. Serve hot over fish or vegetables. Sauces may be prepared in advance and reheated over very low heat for a few seconds.

Florida Gold Takes Well To Honey, Fruit, Relish

Wonderful grapefruit from Florida, that is certainly pure gold in its own fresh, inimitable way, is rolling into the markets now, and will continue to do so through late spring. This year's crop is hailed as being of vintage quality, exceptionally juicy and firm.

The prime way to enjoy the plump, luscious fruit is in its natural state—merely halved and sectioned. It's a wonderful way to get daily vitamin C, too, the one vitamin needed daily and not stored by the body.

Grapefruit halves are good for breakfast, lunch or dinner. Simply vary the fruit toppings.

START WITH the proper tool—a good sharp knife. Experts seem to agree on a straight-bladed knife for separating the fruit from the dividing membranes in preparing grapefruit halves.

If you like the seeded fruit (many people prefer it but not the chore of removing the seeds) cut around the seeds, removing a cone from the center. Some who know, however, prefer to flick out the seeds with a fork.

To section the whole fruit, peel like an apple, and then cut from the outside down to the core with a knife blade about 5 or 6 inches long; slip out section by pulling knife back along next membrane.

FILL THE center with frozen strawberries or raspberries, a dollop of honey, or perhaps an appetizing orange - cranberry relish.

Orange-Cranberry Relish

2 Florida oranges, quartered and seeded

4 cups fresh cranberries

2 cups sugar

Put orange quarters with peel and cranberries through food chopper. Add sugar to mixture. Chill in refrigerator several hours before serving. The relish will also keep well in refrigerator several weeks.

Yield: One quart. (SH

To Keep Pace

District 25 Planning Includes New Schools

To keep pace with mushrooming school population in Arlington Heights, a building program was initiated by elementary school district 25 during 1961 with completion of two elementary schools slated for 1962. A request for authorization for an addition and two more schools also is scheduled for 1962.

In the past two years, student population in district 25 has increased by almost 1,500 students, and Superintendent Ralph Clabaugh said conservative estimates place the growth during the coming two years at about 2,000.

Anticipating this growth, the district has tentatively set a referendum for October, 1962, through which voters will be asked to approve construction of a third junior high school at Thomas and State rd., a seven-room elementary school on the south side and an addition to one elementary school on the north side.

AT THE SAME time, it is hoped a proposal for purchase of additional building sites can be voted on.

The school district, and the voters, have been purchasing land well in advance of need, saving considerable money since the land has been bought before development of surrounding area resulted in a sharp rise in price of the land.

With this thought in mind, the school board initiated last year a study by Jack Childress of Northwestern university which will attempt to spell out needs in the foreseeable future as the district is completely built up.

A SIMILAR study completed in 1958 resulted in purchase of four school sites authorized in a referendum early in 1960. Clabaugh said that because of the foresight of the voters, the district has well-located land which will be adequate for buildings needed through the 1964-65 school year.

Now under construction are two elementary schools, Olive at Olive st. and State rd., and Patton at Patton and Maude sts. Also under construction is an addition to Miner junior high. All three projects will be ready for occupancy by September.

Another project, which is expected to be completed in January, is an addition to the administration building. During the last two years, some 15 non-certificated persons such as secretaries and custodians have been added to the staff, along with 59 instructors or administrators.

ADEQUATE schools mean more than physical facilities, however, and the district administrators state they have been continually reviewing and improving teaching methods and subject matter.

In line with this thought, future educational practices are being given thorough study in order to provide for innovations in teaching methods in the new buildings. Specifically but not exclusively this includes planning the buildings to provide for increased use of audio-visual aids, including television.

New construction can be undertaken during the next two years without a significant increase in taxes, Clabaugh said, because development of land during this period will broaden the tax rate, and because of

CURRENTLY, average class size is 27 in kindergarten through fifth grade, and 33 in junior high schools. There may be some minor increase in class size during the 1963-64 school year, Clabaugh said, with occupancy of the new buildings now in the planning stage set for September, 1964.

I BET YOU DIDN'T KNOW

by Joe Nickels

Now that we have a foot in the door of the new year, let's see what the calendar has in store for the next few months.

Psychologists claim that there is a best and poorest time of year for everything — good or bad.

January, for example, is the poorest time for respiratory troubles and nervous disorders and February is a tough month for ulcer sufferers. March is no picnic for those subject to arthritis and rheumatism.

Although spring and fall are generally the best times for thinking, winter is at least better for effective brainwork than summer. Fortunately, you're several months short of the most hazardous accident month — June, with July and August close behind. If you have any ambitious brainwork in mind, plan it for April, along with November, the peak months for thinking.

Any month of the year is the proper time to add to the comfort, convenience and attraction of your home. Quality products for this purpose — top-brand paints, glass of many uses, wallpaper, storm windows and doors, etc. — are available at PALATINE PAINT & GLASS CO., 9-11 North Bothwell. THE SECOND session of millinery classes will begin February 12, taught by Mrs. William Esterquest. The course will consist of eight two-hour classes for $5 and classes will be available on both the beginner and advanced levels. All classes will meet at Pioneer park.

New Religious Books Challenge Thinkers

By BETTY AINSLIE

Feel as though you'd like to do some really deep reading, flex your mental muscles so to speak, now that snow is up to here and nights are dark and long?

Maybe you made a New Year's resolution to do some serious reading and really dust a few cobwebs off of your thinking mechanism. Here's a suggestion in a set of new books at Arlington Heights public library.

It's a set of books on religions of the world, the six major ones that is, as told by six authorities who know just about all the answers to the questions on their special subjects.

TAKE LOUIS Renou, who is a professor of Sanscrit and Indian literature at the Sorbonne in Paris. He is the author of a book called "Hinduism," one in this religious series.

This book and the others in the set are an attempt to bring about a mutual understanding among peoples of all nations.

Arthur Hertzberg is Rabbi of Temple Emanu - El in Englewood, New Jersey and lectures in the graduate school at Columbia University. His book is called "Judaism."

THIS IS a readable and authoritative introduction to the nature of the Jewish religion, and will be a source of reference to great writings of the Jewish traditions. ;

Richard A. Gard is the author of the book called "Buddhism" and is well versed in his subject as he lectures on Buddhist studies at Yale. This book is not just as explanation of Buddhism but an explanation of the organization of monastic orders as a way of life.

"Catholicism" by George Brantt gives the Catholic position in the teachings of Christ and its basis for belief in God. There is a discussion of the Catholic interpretation of faith, and the life of a Catholic is described in his aims and actions.

LESTER Dunstan is the author of "Protestantism." He is professor of Christian World relations at Andover, Newton Theological school. This book deals with even pre-reformation hints of Protestantism, the great reform, doctrines and the Protestant creed..

The last in this series, or the first depending upon what religions interest you most, is a book called "Islam" by John Williams. This man lectures in Islamic history at McGill university in Montreal. He treats Islam as a way of life in which true believers live face to face with Allah.

If you are interested in studying a bit more about religion, all the books from 200 to 299 on the library shelf are on this subject.

SUCH books as: "My Answer" by Billy Graham, "You Never Walk Alone" by Lake, "Road to Faith" by Will Oussler, "Dear Mr. Brown" by Harry Fosdick, and Life's book called "World's Great Religions." (A

To Keep Pace

District 25 Planning Includes New Schools

To keep pace with mushrooming school population in Arlington Heights, a building program was initiated by elementary school district 25 during 1961 with completion of two elementary schools slated for 1962. A request for authorization for an addition and two more schools also is scheduled for 1962.

In the past two years, student population in district 25 has increased by almost 1,500 students, and Superintendent Ralph Clabaugh said conservative estimates place the growth during the coming two years at about 2,000.

Anticipating this growth, the district has tentatively set a referendum for October, 1962, through which voters will be asked to approve construction of a third junior high school at Thomas and State rd., a seven-room elementary school on the south side and an addition to one elementary school on the north side.

AT THE SAME time, it is hoped a proposal for purchase of additional building sites can be voted on.

The school district, and the voters, have been purchasing land well in advance of need, saving considerable money since the land has been bought before development of surrounding area resulted in a sharp rise in price of the land.

With this thought in mind, the school board initiated last year a study by Jack Childress of Northwestern university which will attempt to spell out needs in the foreseeable future as the district is completely built up.

A SIMILAR study completed in 1958 resulted in purchase of four school sites authorized in a referendum early in 1960. Clabaugh said that because of the foresight of the voters, the district has well-located land which will be adequate for buildings needed through the 1964-65 school year.

Now under construction are two elementary schools, Olive at Olive st. and State rd., and Patton at Patton and Maude sts. Also under construction is an addition to Miner junior high. All three projects will be ready for occupancy by September.

Another project, which is expected to be completed in January, is an addition to the administration building. During the last two years, some 15 non-certificated persons such as secretaries and custodians have been added to the staff, along with 59 instructors or administrators.

ADEQUATE schools mean more than physical facilities, however, and the district administrators state they have been continually reviewing and improving teaching methods and subject matter.

In line with this thought, future educational practices are being given thorough study in order to provide for innovations in teaching methods in the new buildings. Specifically but not exclusively this includes planning the buildings to provide for increased use of audio-visual aids, including television.

New construction can be undertaken during the next two years without a significant increase in taxes, Clabaugh said, because development of land during this period will broaden the tax rate, and because of

CURRENTLY, average class size is 27 in kindergarten through fifth grade, and 33 in junior high schools. There may be some minor increase in class size during the 1963-64 school year, Clabaugh said, with occupancy of the new buildings now in the planning stage set for September, 1964.

I BET YOU DIDN'T KNOW

by Joe Nickels

Now that we have a foot in the door of the new year, let's see what the calendar has in store for the next few months.

Psychologists claim that there is a best and poorest time of year for everything — good or bad.

January, for example, is the poorest time for respiratory troubles and nervous disorders and February is a tough month for ulcer sufferers. March is no picnic for those subject to arthritis and rheumatism.

Although spring and fall are generally the best times for thinking, winter is at least better for effective brainwork than summer. Fortunately, you're several months short of the most hazardous accident month — June, with July and August close behind. If you have any ambitious brainwork in mind, plan it for April, along with November, the peak months for thinking.

Any month of the year is the proper time to add to the comfort, convenience and attraction of your home. Quality products for this purpose — top-brand paints, glass of many uses, wallpaper, storm windows and doors, etc. — are available at PALATINE PAINT & GLASS CO., 9-11 North Bothwell. New Religious Books Challenge Thinkers

Feel as though you'd like to do some really deep reading, flex your mental muscles so to speak, now that snow is up to here and nights are dark and long?

Maybe you made a New Year's resolution to do some serious reading and really dust a few cobwebs off of your thinking mechanism. Here's a suggestion in a set of new books at Arlington Heights public library.

It's a set of books on religions of the world, the six major ones that is, as told by six authorities who know just about all the answers to the questions on their special subjects.

TAKE LOUIS Renou, who is a professor of Sanscrit and Indian literature at the Sorbonne in Paris. He is the author of a book called "Hinduism," one in this religious series.

This book and the others in the set are an attempt to bring about a mutual understanding among peoples of all nations.

Arthur Hertzberg is Rabbi of Temple Emanu - El in Englewood, New Jersey and lectures in the graduate school at Columbia University. His book is called "Judaism."

THIS IS a readable and authoritative introduction to the nature of the Jewish religion, and will be a source of reference to great writings of the Jewish traditions. ;

Richard A. Gard is the author of the book called "Buddhism" and is well versed in his subject as he lectures on Buddhist studies at Yale. This book is not just as explanation of Buddhism but an explanation of the organization of monastic orders as a way of life.

"Catholicism" by George Brantt gives the Catholic position in the teachings of Christ and its basis for belief in God. There is a discussion of the Catholic interpretation of faith, and the life of a Catholic is described in his aims and actions.

LESTER Dunstan is the author of "Protestantism." He is professor of Christian World relations at Andover, Newton Theological school. This book deals with even pre-reformation hints of Protestantism, the great reform, doctrines and the Protestant creed..

The last in this series, or the first depending upon what religions interest you most, is a book called "Islam" by John Williams. This man lectures in Islamic history at McGill university in Montreal. He treats Islam as a way of life in which true believers live face to face with Allah.

If you are interested in studying a bit more about religion, all the books from 200 to 299 on the library shelf are on this subject.

SUCH books as: "My Answer" by Billy Graham, "You Never Walk Alone" by Lake, "Road to Faith" by Will Oussler, "Dear Mr. Brown" by Harry Fosdick, and Life's book called "World's Great Religions." (A

Tom Houser Elected District Governor

Thomas J. Houser, 416 S. Waterman ave., Arlington Heights, has been elected to the office of 13th congressional district governor of the Illinois Federation of Young Republican Clubs.

Announcement of the 32-year-old attorney's election was made this week by Miss Linda Price of Chicago, chairman of the federation's board of governors.

"Tom Houser was elected governor of the largest Republican district in the state because of his outstanding job in developing the Wheeling Township Young Republican club and for his tireless work in behalf of the Republican party," Miss Price said.

HOUSER, FOUNDER and first president of the Wheeling township YR club, was elected district governor in December by a unanimous vote of 60 members of the state federation's executive board meeting in Carbondale, Ill.

The election was necessitated by the recent reapportionment of the state's congressional districts. The 13th district now includes the townships of Barrington, Hanover, Palatine, Schaumburg, Wheeling, Elk Grove, Northfield, New Trier, Niles, Evanston and Chicago's 50th ward.

Houser previously served as chairman of the federation's credentials committee. Currently he is northwest area chairman of the Cook County Young Republican organization.

HE IS ALSO a member of the board of directors of the Wheeling Township Regular Republican club, GOP captain in Wheeling township precinct 26, member of the Wheeling ordinating committee, and local YR club president.

Houser's first official act as district governor was to appoint Robert Barr of Evanston as deputy governor.

A trial attorney for the Burlington Railroad, Houser is a graduate of Hanover college, where he received an A.B. degree in political science, and of the Northwestern university law school. (B8

THOMAS J. HOUSER

Palatine Pedestrian 1st New Year Victim

A 74-year old Palatine pedestrian was the first injured victim of the New Year, as state police of district 3 reported northwest suburban highways were relatively free of traffic mishaps and domestic quarrels were of greater frequency.

The pedestrian, John A. Lowing, of Route 1, Box 181, Palatine, was struck by a car driven by Carson A. Quinn, 23, of 1139 Oak st., Evanston, at 3 a.m. on Jan. 1. The accident occurred on U. S. 12 a half mile northwest of Iolinois 53.

QUINN WAS driving in the outer lane, swerved left and braked his car, but the extreme right front fender struck Lowing, who was walking with the traffic in the middle of the outer lane, according to police.

Both Lowing and passenger in Quinn's car, Jane Quinn, 20, were injured and taken to Northwest Community hospital.

Quinn was charged with failure to yield the right of way to a pedestrian.

Also, on U. S. 12 two miles north of Illinois 83, at 9:30 a.m. on Dec. 30, a second accident occurred.

NORTHBOUND was James P. Gibbons, 30, of 55 W. Wood, Palatine. Gibbons' car struck the other vehicle on the left front portion.

Injured were Gibbons and a passenger in his car, William Walters, 37, of 1002 W. Palatine, Palatine, who were taken to the Northwest Community hospital. Damage to the Damiano car was $350; to the Gibbons' car, $200.

Damiano was charged with failure to yield the right of way.

A third accident on U. S 12, a mile south of Illinois 68 occurred at 2:20 p.m. on Dec. 26.

Eugene Geary, 37, of Wauconda, was leading a funeral procession, and his car pulled up in front of another vehicle driven by Lenora Johnson, 35, of Highland Shores.

THE SECOND driver attempted to stop in traffic, but her car slid into the right rear of the Geary car.

Injured was a passenger in the Johnson car, Dorothy Johnson, 26, of Highland Shores, who was taken to Northwest Community hospital. Uninjured was a passenger in Geary's car, David Roth, 35, of Wauconda, and both drivers.

Damage to the first car was $500; to the second, $350. Geary was charged with failure to yield right of way, and Miss Johnson was charged with having an expired driver's license.

Failure to yield was the charge placed by state police in still another accident which occurred at 7:10 p.m. on Dec. 26 on Illinois 83, a half mile east of Illinois 72.

Frances Lo Casaro, 39, of Lockport, was traveling west on 83, when his car struck the vehicle driven by Michael F. Rosanova, 39, of Lake Zurich, who was attempting to make a right turn onto 83 from a private driveway. His car, in making the turn, went into the westbound lane in which Lo Casaro was traveling.

INJURED WERE two passengers in the first car, Josephine Rock, 42, of Joliet, and Ann Padilla, 43, of Lockport. They were taken to Northwest Community hospital. Neither driver was injured, nor was a passenger in the Lo Casaro car, David Rock, 12, of Joliet.

Damage to the first car was $350; to the second, $100.

Rosanova was charged with failure to yield.

District 3 state police reported that from 6 p.m. of last Friday until 8 a.m. New Year's Day, there had been only 11 accidents, five injured, none seriously and no fatalities. The greatest source of calls was in domestic altercations. (B8

"Tom Houser was elected governor of the largest Republican district in the state because of his outstanding job in developing the Wheeling Township Young Republican club and for his tireless work in behalf of the Republican party," Miss Price said.

HOUSER, FOUNDER and first president of the Wheeling township YR club, was elected district governor in December by a unanimous vote of 60 members of the state federation's executive board meeting in Carbondale, Ill.

The election was necessitated by the recent reapportionment of the state's congressional districts. The 13th district now includes the townships of Barrington, Hanover, Palatine, Schaumburg, Wheeling, Elk Grove, Northfield, New Trier, Niles, Evanston and Chicago's 50th ward.

Houser previously served as chairman of the federation's credentials committee. Currently he is northwest area chairman of the Cook County Young Republican organization.

HE IS ALSO a member of the board of directors of the Wheeling Township Regular Republican club, GOP captain in Wheeling township precinct 26, member of the Wheeling ordinating committee, and local YR club president.

Houser's first official act as district governor was to appoint Robert Barr of Evanston as deputy governor.

A trial attorney for the Burlington Railroad, Houser is a graduate of Hanover college, where he received an A.B. degree in political science, and of the Northwestern university law school. (B8

THOMAS J. HOUSER

Palatine Pedestrian 1st New Year Victim

A 74-year old Palatine pedestrian was the first injured victim of the New Year, as state police of district 3 reported northwest suburban highways were relatively free of traffic mishaps and domestic quarrels were of greater frequency.

The pedestrian, John A. Lowing, of Route 1, Box 181, Palatine, was struck by a car driven by Carson A. Quinn, 23, of 1139 Oak st., Evanston, at 3 a.m. on Jan. 1. The accident occurred on U. S. 12 a half mile northwest of Iolinois 53.

QUINN WAS driving in the outer lane, swerved left and braked his car, but the extreme right front fender struck Lowing, who was walking with the traffic in the middle of the outer lane, according to police.

Both Lowing and passenger in Quinn's car, Jane Quinn, 20, were injured and taken to Northwest Community hospital.

Quinn was charged with failure to yield the right of way to a pedestrian.

Also, on U. S. 12 two miles north of Illinois 83, at 9:30 a.m. on Dec. 30, a second accident occurred.

NORTHBOUND was James P. Gibbons, 30, of 55 W. Wood, Palatine. Gibbons' car struck the other vehicle on the left front portion.

Injured were Gibbons and a passenger in his car, William Walters, 37, of 100[illegible] W. Palatine, Palatine, who were taken to the Northwest Community hospital. Damage to the Damiano car was $350; to the Gibbons' car, $200.

Damiano was charged with failure to yield the right of way.

A third accident on U. S 12, a mile south of Illinois 68 occurred at 2:20 p.m. on Dec. 26.

Eugene Geary, 37, of Wauconda, was leading a funeral procession, and his car pulled up in front of another vehicle driven by Lenora Johnson, 35, of Highland Shores.

THE SECOND driver attempted to stop in traffic, but her car slid into the right rear of the Geary car.

Injured was a passenger in the Johnson car, Dorothy Johnson, 26, of Highland Shores, who was taken to Northwest Community hospital. Uninjured was a passenger in Geary's car, David Roth, 35, of Wauconda, and both drivers.

Damage to the first car was $500; to the second, $350. Geary was charged with failure to yield right of way, and Miss Johnson was charged with having an expired driver's license.

Failure to yield was the charge placed by state police in still another accident which occurred at 7:10 p.m. on Dec. 26 on Illinois 83, a half mile east of Illinois 72.

Frances Lo Casaro, 39, of Lockport, was traveling west on 83, when his car struck the vehicle driven by Michael F. Rosanova, 39, of Lake Zurich, who was attempting to make a right turn onto 83 from a private driveway. His car, in making the turn, went into the westbound lane in which Lo Casaro was traveling.

INJURED WERE two passengers in the first car, Josephine Rock, 42, of Joliet, and Ann Padilla, 43, of Lockport. They were taken to Northwest Community hospital. Neither driver was injured, nor was a passenger in the Lo Casaro car, David Rock, 12, of Joliet.

Damage to the first car was $350; to the second, $100.

Rosanova was charged with failure to yield.

District 3 state police reported that from 6 p.m. of last Friday until 8 a.m. New Year's Day, there had been only 11 accidents, five injured, none seriously and no fatalities. The greatest source of calls was in domestic altercations. (B8

Riches and Morality

No servant can serve two masters: for either he will hate the one, and love the other; or else he will hold to one, and despise the other. Ye cannot serve God and mammon. St. Luke 16:13

With these words Jesus concluded his parable of the crafty steward. Translated into modern thinking we can say He meant, among other things, riches without morality is one of the great sins.

How many people do you know who spend all their time in the pursuit of possessions — money, lands, houses, clothes, automobiles and other things we consider important?

Recently a $20,000 mink coat, gift to an actress, made headlines across the country. How much more good would have been accomplished if that money had been wisely spent!

Wealth, whether earned or inherited, is a responsibility. To misuse it is to misuse a trust. Riches without morality can only bring sorrow.

Riches and Morality

No servant can serve two masters: for either he will hate the one, and love the other; or else he will hold to one, and despise the other. Ye cannot serve God and mammon. St. Luke 16:13

With these words Jesus concluded his parable of the crafty steward. Translated into modern thinking we can say He meant, among other things, riches without morality is one of the great sins.

How many people do you know who spend all their time in the pursuit of possessions — money, lands, houses, clothes, automobiles and other things we consider important?

Recently a $20,000 mink coat, gift to an actress, made headlines across the country. How much more good would have been accomplished if that money had been wisely spent!

Wealth, whether earned or inherited, is a responsibility. To misuse it is to misuse a trust. Riches without morality can only bring sorrow.

Dr. Marty Completes Fourth Book

Suburban Pastor Wields Prolific Pen

Finds Time For Writing

by DICK HOFFMANN

". . . the locus of 'four-wheel Christendom' — people go thither on four wheels for baptism, wedding and funeral, to be hatched, matched and dispatched." — "Unbelief and the Institution," by Martin E. Marty in "The Christian Century."

Four-wheel Christendom, mired as it often appears to be in a morass of institutional secularism, will serve as a vehicle for yet another book by the Rev. Martin E. Marty.

Associate editor of "The Chritian Century" magazine and pastor of the Church of the Holy Spirit in Elk Grove Village, Dr. Marty's prolific pen has already produced four books in the past two years.

The 1961 entries from this production line of prose are "The Infidel" and "The Improper Opinion," a study of mass media and the Christian faith.

Reaction to "The Infidel," a discussion of how believer and non-believer once complemented each other, plus Marty's article on unbelief and the institution, already has his publisher blocking out plans for a book to be released in 1963 tentatively titled, "The Varieties of Unbelief."

AN ENLARGING on the theme of "The Infidel," which confined itself to a study of American-bred disbelief, it will consider a problem best summarized by Marty in the previously mentioned magazine article.

"The critical literature of the 1950s attacked religiosity as inimical to Christianity. The critical literature of the 1960s has taken a new turn. It asks: Does organized religion today serve to obscure the fact that great numbers of its adherents do not believe in God?"

This theme is weaved throughout much of his writing. In "The Infidel," for instance, it took this form: ". . . Christian religion has, in the absence of organized opposition, fallen almost entirely on social critics inside the churches. So much more daring is the expression of theologians and social critics—and so much more effective—than was that of the infidel, that the best advice one could give a latter-day infidel who wanted to be heard would be to join a church."

SECULARISM is viewed by Marty is a lineal descendent of infidelity. But the infidel—or at least his image—proved useful to Christianity, as Marty develops this thesis, from the days of Paine and Jefferson to the infidel incarnate, Aobert Ingersoll.

The infidel proved to be the perfect foil for American ministers who rallied their flocks against this intrusian from without. But the collision prouced some strange alliances. The Tom Paine infidels and Thomas Jefferson, actually more anti-institutional than anti-Christian, led the thrust for disestablishment, for separation of church and state. Joining them in the struggle were other reliogious denominations who saw this marriage of convenience necessary to achieving their own ends.

And against orthodoxy came another challenge to the validity of its claims. This came in the form of attack from within—from more liberal denominations such as the Unitarians—who in turn were roundly denounced as representing a halfway house to infidelity.

ACCORDING TO Marty, the outcome of the struggle was never in doubt. Both in numbers and sympathies, the churches represented overwhelming odds to the movement of freethought which was often "doctrinaire, negative, extremely individualistic."

THE REV. DR. MARTIN E. MARTY, author, associate editor of "The Christian Century," and pastor of the Lutheran Church of the Holy Spirit in Elk Grove Village, shows the amount of research and note-taking that goes into the publication of four of his books now in print.

But, he adds, "The churches made 'infidel' to mean so many things in order to advance their own purposes. In a few instances they panicked when challenged, but ordinarily they moved with the calm complacency that goes with the knowledge of a battle's victorious outcome before it is fought. This self-confidence permitted them to use the image of the infidel."

Arguing both sides effectively, Dr. Marty leads the reader to the "last great clash of the churches with the perfect personification of the infidel image in Robert Ingersoll."

Ingersoll led a scathing attack on bliblical scripture, cracking: "The Protestants have a book for their pope."

BUT CHRISTIANITY was accommodating itself to the times once again—as it had following disestablishmentism—and Marty notes that "The fact that many within the churches could and did second what he (Ingersoll) had to say lessened the string of his remarks; only the toneof voice was different."

Since that last clash, the infidel has become "a sort of curio on the national scene, something like the town crier or the cigar-store Indian." But, in a way, it was a pyrrhic victory for religion. In Marty's view, ". . . form triumphed and content because secondary."

Into this vacuum secularism entered. But in still another book planned by Marty which he calls "The Displaced Christian," he will take issue with the handwringing and alarm being displayed over secular advances. He argues that the Christian does not need a sympathetic climate in which to function or flourish. He illustrates his contention with a biblical reference. "Christ said, 'Seek ye first the Kingdom of God and His righteousness and all these things shall be added onto you.' "

THE 33-YEAR-OLD clergyman promises: "This is one I'm really going to work on; I'm in no hurry to get it out." He relates that he doesn't write spontaneously; all his books are commissioned.

So far, the commissions have been plentiful. "A Short History of Christianity" and "The New Shape of American Religion" came out in 1959. In 1960, he contributed an article, "A Dialogue of Histories," to the book, "American Catholics, A Protestant-Jewish View," and edited "New Directions in Biblical Thought."

Among books planned for publication is "The Hidden Discipline." Modern man, more or less freed from theological laws by a more mobile society, is still restrained by the hidden discipline of Christian forgiveness of sin.

Besides this and "The Displaced Christian," Marty is editing a book titled "Bonhoeffer," about the German clergyman who was killed by the Nazis in 1945 and has since been elevated to a status approximating sainthood. Seven authorities will express themselves on Bonhoeffer, who was also one of the pioneers of the ecumenical movement.

IN ADDITION, the Elk Grove pastor is modernizing Martin Luther's "The Large Catechism," whose medieval phrasing makes it largely undigestible for a popular following. "I am Baptized," is another tract he is doing as a layman's guide to the doctrine of baptism.

Marty, who has a talent for incorporating sermons and studies into his published works, will outline the issues of "The Varieties of Unbelief" in the Walter Rauschenbusch lecture series to be given in April 1963 at the Colgate-Rochester Divinity school in Rochester,

The three lectures will be concerned with Christianity as it relates to ethical and social issues. Previous speakers include such religious heavyweights as Reinhold Niebuhr and Paul Tillich. (Rauschenbusch was a Baptist leader of the social gospel movement whose momentum carried it to the time of World War I.)

"THE INFIDEL" grew out of ris doctorate's thesis at the University of Chicago, and "A Short History of Christianity" can be traced back to previous scholarship. It covers periods corresponding to Marty's three degrees: his bachelor's was earned studying the history of the early church; his master's degree spanned history of the late medieval and Reformation period; his doctor's degree was acquired investigating American church history.

Marty does all his reading, note-taking, researching and outline writing after 10:30 p. m. When he is ready to write, however, he will set aside about four hours in the early morning, usually arising at 5:45 a. m. to begin work. "The phone usually starts ringing at 9:30 a. m.," he remarked, for he must also attend to the needs of his parish.

Once a copyreader takes the rough edges off a manuscript, Mrs. Florence Adam, 67 Forest ln., Elk Grove Village, types it into final form ("she's flawless"). His wife, Elsa, assists him in indexing his books. His deadlines are disciplined by royalty advances made by the publisher, although he adds: "The reason my sermons are realy on Sunday is because it is Sunday."

Journalist Urges 'Work Toward Peace'

Rotarians Asked To Push Petition

A northwest suburban journalist, in an address before the Wheeling Rotary club last week, urged the civic organization to sponsor a unique peace movement.

Tom Edwards, editor of the Wheeling Herald, one of Paddock Publications' 14 weekly newspapers, suggested that the Wheeling chapter of Rotary petition for conducting all negotiations between the world's powers "openly and in full public view."

Edwards, who passed out a petition to the Rotarians, called for full access by representatives of the organs of public information to "any and all joint meetings between the world's opposing powers, and that all the proceedings of these meetings be transmitted forthwith to all peoples of the world."

IF SUCH negotiations were subject to the glare of television's klieg lights and the scrutiny of the press, he feels, world leaders would negotiate in better faith than they have previously demonstrated.

The Wheeling editor said he would like to see Wheeling Rotarians carry the petition to its state organization for endorsement, which he was hopeful would bear it on to the national group for approval and on to its adoption by Rotary International.

A precedent for this action, Edwards said, was similar action taken by two members of the Junior Chamber of Commerce in Garden City, Mich., who secured approval of the state organization for urging a constitutional convention which is now in the process of being called to rewrite Michigan's archaic constitution.

Edwards' petition stated that ". . . the magnitude and violence of another world conflict would threaten the very existence of civilization, the survival of the human race, and even the existence of all life on earth."

The document scored the siphoning off of the world's natural resources for war preparedness, noting they are being ". . . drained and forced into channels away from constructive endeavors and productivity to the common good, (and) are being used instead for developing destructive potential and endeavors, therefore wasting much human effort and resources and the earth's raw materials."

It contained the plea for "... the peoples and governments of the world, particularly the atomic powers, the United States, Russia, Great Britain and France, to negotiate in good faith for disarmament, especially of atomic weapons, but continuously for elimination of all machines, devices and organizations of war."

EDWARDS reminded his listeners that President Kennedy had warned, "The weapons of war must be abolished before they abolish us." He added that former President Eisenhower had cautioned against the influences of a military-technological elite.

He quoted Frank McCallister, newly elected chairman of the Chicago area Committee for a Sane Nuclear Policy, that what the country needed more than fallout shelters were "peace shelters" in order to "surmount the dangerously hypnotic effects of the armaments race."

McCallister, according to Edwards, added that the ". . . dance Macabre, the dance of death" must be ended.

Edwards remarked that he thought is was to China's advantage, with all her internal problems, to keep the United States and Russia "at odds externally while she develops the atomic bomb."

The editor said he did not sanction communism but that he did not sanction war either, nothing that perpetual crisis bore with it the threat of forging two garrison prison states.

"If the Rotary club were to launch a peace effort, I'm sure the women's clubs and mothers would join us," he ventured.

EDWARDS LED into discussion of his peace petition by noting that the atomic bomb was hanging over "all our heads," relating this danger to the tension which accompanied Wheeling in the daily pursuit of its local problems.

He also suggested that the Rotary club help develop a park owned by the Wheeling Chamber of Commerce into a "beauty site complete with swings, trees and bushes." He observed that the community did not have a single municipal park.

He reminded the Rotarians of their motto: "Service above self," and declared that the image of Wheeling cannot be changed by empty words but by action.

"A movie we saw recently put out by Westbrook Farms subdivision was a mockery," he asserted. "If you want to see what Wheeling is like, look behind the billboards and you'll see rows of town houses being built behind homes; country type living like that extolled in the movie is disappearing."

He called for orderly development for Wheeling, and chided those Rotarians who were in the organization to "improve business relations and do nothing for the town."

"When I look at Wheeling, I get excited," he told his audience. "Wheeling could be a flower of the northwest suburbs.

"BUT IT needs planning. Just because you once dumped raw sewage in a stream doesn't mean you keep doing it: you build a sewage treatment plant. You always keep trying to improve.

"I would like to see Wheeling consumed by a fire — an intelligent and emotional fire." It was at this point that he reminded his audience of the fires of thermonuclear destruction which were in danger of being touched off. (B8

CONTRACT NEAR APPROVAL

Board Moving on New School

Plans were materializing swiftly this week for the proposed fourth high school in district 214 which is to be constructed on a 66-acre plot adjacent to the village of Wheeling by September, 1964.

Last Thursday, the board of education met at the conference table with the newly-appointed architectural firm of Berger-Kelley-Unteed and Associates to hammer out preliminary contract agreements.

At that meeting, the board and the architectural firm made specific recommendations about the wording of the contract. A tentative meeting between the board and architects has been set for Monday night, Jan. 15, to reach final accord on the contract terms.

The preliminary contract which was aired Thursday night was a combination of a model established by the American Institute of Architects, provisions requested by the board, and a few conditions desired by the firm.

ALTHOUGH a number of points still need to be ironed out before the contract is ready to be signed, the school board and the architects seemed to be in accord on all major portions of the first draft of the contract.

Meanwhile, the first steps are being initiated this week for the formation of a lay committee to work with the board of education on recommendations on the type of school to be constructed.

The lay committee hopes to take shape in January, and will make a progress report to the school board at the meeting on January 15. The lay committee will have 50 members, as was the case in past lay committees.

UNOFFICIALLY, board members discussed the possibilities of having a bond referendum on the proposed school sometime this spring.

However, Daryl Oldaker, board member, suggested no date for the bond referendum be set until the architects propose a target date when school construction should start so that the building will be ready for occupancy by the 1964 fall term.

Oldaker also cautioned the board that the lay committee should be given plenty of time to work on the proposed school so it would not feel the school board was "railroading" the referendum.

"I FEEL THAT a lay committee is an important asset," Oldaker stated, "but I don't feel that such a committee should be running the school board. It is important we outline its committee's duties at the outset, so thére will be no conflicts once work starts."

The new high school is slated to have a room for the blind and a room for educable mentally handicapped students. It is also slated to have all of the facilities that Arlington, Prospect, and Forest View high schools have or will have.

Superintendent H. L. Slichenmyer told the board that an ordinance was passed in Wheeling in 1959, which states schools will be exempt from all fees except water and sewage hook-on fees. He stated further the board needed to apply for a building permit, and would not have to go before the plan commission in Wheeling.

L. S. KELLEY, one of the partners in the architectural firm, told the board Berger-Kelley-Unteed and Associates would start preliminary work immediately on the new school site.

He directed the board to have a survey made of the property. Meanwhile, his firm will be making preliminary sketches of what it considers an ideal high school.

Kelley asked the board not to disclose what it hoped to get in the referendum. "For the first plans, we would just as soon work uninhibited by budgets and costs," Kelley said.

HE TOLD the board that there would be plenty of time to hack the first plans apart, shuffle costs, and settle on the final plans.

The architects will receive compensation figured as a percentage of the total cost of the building. Their fee system works on a sliding scale depending on the entire cost of the project.

For instance, if the entire cost of the project were to be $2,000,000, then the fee would be five per cent of that cost. If it were to be $1,000,000, then the fee would be six per cent of the total cost.

BERGER-Kelley-Unteed and Associates, a Champaign and Villa Park firm, specializes in the architectural work for educational buildings, college dormitories, public buildings, public housing, churches, hospitals, commercial buildings, and office buildings.

In the past, the firm has concentrated in downstate construction, but recently has designed several schools in the Chicago area. The most recent project was the Mundelein high school.

The total cost of the Mundelein school was $11.97 per square foot, compared to the national average of $15.54 per square foot. (B8

Air Force Examinations Set for Prospect High

The United States Air Force aptitude examination is available to young men and women of this area at no cost to them and without any obligation whatsoever, states Sgt. Frankie G. Akers, Arlington Heights, local Air Force representative.

According to Sgt. Akers, a special testing session has been established, and Air Force personnel will administer the Air Force Airman Qualification Examination (AQE), better known as Air Force aptitude in Room 133 of Prospect high school, 301 W. Foundry, Mount Prospect, at 9 a.m., January 20.

THIS IS a timed examination and the maximum time allowed is 2½ hours. Persons interested in taking this examination report to room 133 at least ten minutes before test starting time.

Sgt. Akers said, "a special invitation is being extended to all high school seniors attending Arlington, Barrington, Glenbrook, and Palatine high schools in the area, plus all high school graduates and any college students interested in taking this examination."

"THE AIR Force aptitude examination is a proven test," said Sgt. Akers. "It has been administered to hundreds of thousands of young men and women and has been periodically improved so that it is extremely reliable."

We are qualified to counsel young men and women, on the basis of the examination results, said the Sergeant, "and show them in what area they are best qualified. At the same time," he added, "We can show them what opportunities the Air Force offers high school graduates with their aptitudes."

Speaking to high school seniors and college students, Sgt. Akers said, "Regardless of whether or not you are presently considering a career in the Air Force, the examination and our counseling will be of great value to you in choosing your life's career."

Further information regarding the Air Force aptitude examination can be obtained at the recruiting office, 8 W. Miner st., Arlington Heights, or call Sgt. Arguing both sides effectively, Dr. Marty leads the reader to the "last great clash of the churches with the perfect personification of the infidel image in Robert Ingersoll."

Ingersoll led a scathing attack on bliblical scripture, cracking: "The Protestants have a book for their pope."

BUT CHRISTIANITY was accommodating itself to the times once again—as it had following disestablishmentism—and Marty notes that "The fact that many within the churches could and did second what he (Ingersoll) had to say lessened the string of his remarks; only the toneof voice was different."

Since that last clash, the infidel has become "a sort of curio on the national scene, something like the town crier or the cigar-store Indian." But, in a way, it was a pyrrhic victory for religion. In Marty's view, ". . . form triumphed and content because secondary."

Into this vacuum secularism entered. But in still another book planned by Marty which he calls "The Displaced Christian," he will take issue with the handwringing and alarm being displayed over secular advances. He argues that the Christian does not need a sympathetic climate in which to function or flourish. He illustrates his contention with a biblical reference. "Christ said, 'Seek ye first the Kingdom of God and His righteousness and all these things shall be added onto you.' "

THE 33-YEAR-OLD clergyman promises: "This is one I'm really going to work on; I'm in no hurry to get it out." He relates that he doesn't write spontaneously; all his books are commissioned.

So far, the commissions have been plentiful. "A Short History of Christianity" and "The New Shape of American Religion" came out in 1959. In 1960, he contributed an article, "A Dialogue of Histories," to the book, "American Catholics, A Protestant-Jewish View," and edited "New Directions in Biblical Thought."

Among books planned for publication is "The Hidden Discipline." Modern man, more or less freed from theological laws by a more mobile society, is still restrained by the hidden discipline of Christian forgiveness of sin.

Besides this and "The Displaced Christian," Marty is editing a book titled "Bonhoeffer," about the German clergyman who was killed by the Nazis in 1945 and has since been elevated to a status approximating sainthood. Seven authorities will express themselves on Bonhoeffer, who was also one of the pioneers of the ecumenical movement.

IN ADDITION, the Elk Grove pastor is modernizing Martin Luther's "The Large Catechism," whose medieval phrasing makes it largely undigestible for a popular following. "I am Baptized," is another tract he is doing as a layman's guide to the doctrine of baptism.

Marty, who has a talent for incorporating sermons and studies into his published works, will outline the issues of "The Varieties of Unbelief" in the Walter Rauschenbusch lecture series to be given in April 1963 at the Colgate-Rochester Divinity school in Rochester,

The three lectures will be concerned with Christianity as it relates to ethical and social issues. Previous speakers include such religious heavyweights as Reinhold Niebuhr and Paul Tillich. (Rauschenbusch was a Baptist leader of the social gospel movement whose momentum carried it to the time of World War I.)

"THE INFIDEL" grew out of ris doctorate's thesis at the University of Chicago, and "A Short History of Christianity" can be traced back to previous scholarship. It covers periods corresponding to Marty's three degrees: his bachelor's was earned studying the history of the early church; his master's degree spanned history of the late medieval and Reformation period; his doctor's degree was acquired investigating American church history.

Marty does all his reading, note-taking, researching and outline writing after 10:30 p. m. When he is ready to write, however, he will set aside about four hours in the early morning, usually arising at 5:45 a. m. to begin work. "The phone usually starts ringing at 9:30 a. m.," he remarked, for he must also attend to the needs of his parish.

Once a copyreader takes the rough edges off a manuscript, Mrs. Florence Adam, 67 Forest ln., Elk Grove Village, types it into final form ("she's flawless"). His wife, Elsa, assists him in indexing his books. His deadlines are disciplined by royalty advances made by the publisher, although he adds: "The reason my sermons are realy on Sunday is because it is Sunday."

Journalist Urges 'Work Toward Peace'

Rotarians Asked To Push Petition

A northwest suburban journalist, in an address before the Wheeling Rotary club last week, urged the civic organization to sponsor a unique peace movement.

Tom Edwards, editor of the Wheeling Herald, one of Paddock Publications' 14 weekly newspapers, suggested that the Wheeling chapter of Rotary petition for conducting all negotiations between the world's powers "openly and in full public view."

Edwards, who passed out a petition to the Rotarians, called for full access by representatives of the organs of public information to "any and all joint meetings between the world's opposing powers, and that all the proceedings of these meetings be transmitted forthwith to all peoples of the world."

IF SUCH negotiations were subject to the glare of television's klieg lights and the scrutiny of the press, he feels, world leaders would negotiate in better faith than they have previously demonstrated.

The Wheeling editor said he would like to see Wheeling Rotarians carry the petition to its state organization for endorsement, which he was hopeful would bear it on to the national group for approval and on to its adoption by Rotary International.

A precedent for this action, Edwards said, was similar action taken by two members of the Junior Chamber of Commerce in Garden City, Mich., who secured approval of the state organization for urging a constitutional convention which is now in the process of being called to rewrite Michigan's archaic constitution.

Edwards' petition stated that ". . . the magnitude and violence of another world conflict would threaten the very existence of civilization, the survival of the human race, and even the existence of all life on earth."

The document scored the siphoning off of the world's natural resources for war preparedness, noting they are being ". . . drained and forced into channels away from constructive endeavors and productivity to the common good, (and) are being used instead for developing destructive potential and endeavors, therefore wasting much human effort and resources and the earth's raw materials."

It contained the plea for "... the peoples and governments of the world, particularly the atomic powers, the United States, Russia, Great Britain and France, to negotiate in good faith for disarmament, especially of atomic weapons, but continuously for elimination of all machines, devices and organizations of war."

EDWARDS reminded his listeners that President Kennedy had warned, "The weapons of war must be abolished before they abolish us." He added that former President Eisenhower had cautioned against the influences of a military-technological elite.

He quoted Frank McCallister, newly elected chairman of the Chicago area Committee for a Sane Nuclear Policy, that what the country needed more than fallout shelters were "peace shelters" in order to "surmount the dangerously hypnotic effects of the armaments race."

McCallister, according to Edwards, added that the ". . . dance Macabre, the dance of death" must be ended.

Edwards remarked that he thought is was to China's advantage, with all her internal problems, to keep the United States and Russia "at odds externally while she develops the atomic bomb."

The editor said he did not sanction communism but that he did not sanction war either, nothing that perpetual crisis bore with it the threat of forging two garrison prison states.

"If the Rotary club were to launch a peace effort, I'm sure the women's clubs and mothers would join us," he ventured.

EDWARDS LED into discussion of his peace petition by noting that the atomic bomb was hanging over "all our heads," relating this danger to the tension which accompanied Wheeling in the daily pursuit of its local problems.

He also suggested that the Rotary club help develop a park owned by the Wheeling Chamber of Commerce into a "beauty site complete with swings, trees and bushes." He observed that the community did not have a single municipal park.

He reminded the Rotarians of their motto: "Service above self," and declared that the image of Wheeling cannot be changed by empty words but by action.

"A movie we saw recently put out by Westbrook Farms subdivision was a mockery," he asserted. "If you want to see what Wheeling is like, look behind the billboards and you'll see rows of town houses being built behind homes; country type living like that extolled in the movie is disappearing."

He called for orderly development for Wheeling, and chided those Rotarians who were in the organization to "improve business relations and do nothing for the town."

"When I look at Wheeling, I get excited," he told his audience. "Wheeling could be a flower of the northwest suburbs.

"BUT IT needs planning. Just because you once dumped raw sewage in a stream doesn't mean you keep doing it: you build a sewage treatment plant. You always keep trying to improve.

"I would like to see Wheeling consumed by a fire — an intelligent and emotional fire." It was at this point that he reminded his audience of the fires of thermonuclear destruction which were in danger of being touched off. (B8

Board Moving on New School

Plans were materializing swiftly this week for the proposed fourth high school in district 214 which is to be constructed on a 66-acre plot adjacent to the village of Wheeling by September, 1964.

Last Thursday, the board of education met at the conference table with the newly-appointed architectural firm of Berger-Kelley-Unteed and Associates to hammer out preliminary contract agreements.

At that meeting, the board and the architectural firm made specific recommendations about the wording of the contract. A tentative meeting between the board and architects has been set for Monday night, Jan. 15, to reach final accord on the contract terms.

The preliminary contract which was aired Thursday night was a combination of a model established by the American Institute of Architects, provisions requested by the board, and a few conditions desired by the firm.

ALTHOUGH a number of points still need to be ironed out before the contract is ready to be signed, the school board and the architects seemed to be in accord on all major portions of the first draft of the contract.

Meanwhile, the first steps are being initiated this week for the formation of a lay committee to work with the board of education on recommendations on the type of school to be constructed.

The lay committee hopes to take shape in January, and will make a progress report to the school board at the meeting on January 15. The lay committee will have 50 members, as was the case in past lay committees.

UNOFFICIALLY, board members discussed the possibilities of having a bond referendum on the proposed school sometime this spring.

However, Daryl Oldaker, board member, suggested no date for the bond referendum be set until the architects propose a target date when school construction should start so that the building will be ready for occupancy by the 1964 fall term.

Oldaker also cautioned the board that the lay committee should be given plenty of time to work on the proposed school so it would not feel the school board was "railroading" the referendum.

"I FEEL THAT a lay committee is an important asset," Oldaker stated, "but I don't feel that such a committee should be running the school board. It is important we outline its committee's duties at the outset, so there will be no conflicts once work starts."

The new high school is slated to have a room for the blind and a room for educable mentally handicapped students. It is also slated to have all of the facilities that Arlington, Prospect, and Forest View high schools have or will have.

Superintendent H. L. Slichenmyer told the board that an ordinance was passed in Wheeling in 1959, which states schools will be exempt from all fees except water and sewage hook-on fees. He stated further the board needed to apply for a building permit, and would not have to go before the plan commission in Wheeling.

L. S. KELLEY, one of the partners in the architectural firm, told the board Berger-Kelley-Unteed and Associates would start preliminary work immediately on the new school site.

He directed the board to have a survey made of the property. Meanwhile, his firm will be making preliminary sketches of what it considers an ideal high school.

Kelley asked the board not to disclose what it hoped to get in the referendum. "For the first plans, we would just as soon work uninhibited by budgets and costs," Kelley said.

HE TOLD the board that there would be plenty of time to hack the first plans apart, shuffle costs, and settle on the final plans.

The architects will receive compensation figured as a percentage of the total cost of the building. Their fee system works on a sliding scale depending on the entire cost of the project.

For instance, if the entire cost of the project were to be $2,000,000, then the fee would be five per cent of that cost. If it were to be $1,000,000, then the fee would be six per cent of the total cost.

BERGER-Kelley-Unteed and Associates, a Champaign and Villa Park firm, specializes in the architectural work for educational buildings, college dormitories, public buildings, public housing, churches, hospitals, commercial buildings, and office buildings.

In the past, the firm has concentrated in downstate construction, but recently has designed several schools in the Chicago area. The most recent project was the Mundelein high school.

The total cost of the Mundelein school was $11.97 per square foot, compared to the national average of $15.54 per square foot. (B8

Air Force Examinations Set for Prospect High

The United States Air Force aptitude examination is available to young men and women of this area at no cost to them and without any obligation whatsoever, states Sgt. Frankie G. Akers, Arlington Heights, local Air Force representative.

According to Sgt. Akers, a special testing session has been established, and Air Force personnel will administer the Air Force Airman Qualification Examination (AQE), better known as Air Force aptitude in Room 133 of Prospect high school, 301 W. Foundry, Mount Prospect, at 9 a.m., January 20.

THIS IS a timed examination and the maximum time allowed is 2½ hours. Persons interested in taking this examination report to room 133 at least ten minutes before test starting time.

Sgt. Akers said, "a special invitation is being extended to all high school seniors attending Arlington, Barrington, Glenbrook, and Palatine high schools in the area, plus all high school graduates and any college students interested in taking this examination."

"THE AIR Force aptitude examination is a proven test," said Sgt. Akers. "It has been administered to hundreds of thousands of young men and women and has been periodically improved so that it is extremely reliable."

We are qualified to counsel young men and women, on the basis of the examination results, said the Sergeant, "and show them in what area they are best qualified. At the same time," he added, "We can show them what opportunities the Air Force offers high school graduates with their aptitudes."

Speaking to high school seniors and college students, Sgt. Akers said, "Regardless of whether or not you are presently considering a career in the Air Force, the examination and our counseling will be of great value to you in choosing your life's career."

Further information regarding the Air Force aptitude examination can be obtained at the recruiting office, 8 W. Miner st., Arlington Heights, or call Sgt. Akers at home during the evening — 259-1139 (Rolling Meadows). The recruiting office hours are Monday, Tuesday, and Thursday; 8:30 a.m. to 5:00 p.m.; Wednesday and Friday; 8:30 a.m. to 9:00 p.m.; Saturday; 8:30 a.m. to 4:00 p.m.

Kimball Hill Elected Vice President of Area

The National Association of Home Builders has elected Kimball Hill, developer of Rolling Meadows and a Life Director in the Home Builders Association of Chicagoland, to the position of area VII vice president.

The area division of territory covered by the Association is new this year and replaces the regional system formerly used by NAHB. Hill's administrative duties will cover the states of Illinois, Indiana, and Michigan.

Hill is a graduate lawyer and mortgage finance expert, holding B.A. and J.D. degrees from Northwestern university. The new area vice president presently serves as chairman of HBAC's legislative committee and is a member of NAHB's mortgage finance and community facilities committee and the economic planning for industry committee.

The newly created office to which Hill was elected during the NAHB Convention-Exposition in McCormick Place, December 3-7, is part of the association's program designed to facilitate administration of national policies in smaller areas of the United States, Puerto Rico, Hawaii, and Alaska.

UPI Staffer Says:

Americans Are Living Longer, Driving More

by FRANK L. SPENCER
United Press International

Americans are living longer and driving more and those facts are merging to confront the nation with an over-age headache today, tomorrow and in the years to come.

Ever since citizens began killing themselves in traffic mishaps safety experts have sweated to reduce the tolls. They have worked, by and large, to save the lives of Americans of all ages and if any one age group has received special attention it's been the young.

There is no reason to abandon efforts directed at teenager's driving habits but there appears to be cause for concern about those of their grandparents.

According to population reports the number of licensed drivers in the United States over 65 years of age will increase by at least 25 per cent in the next eight years.

THIS DOES NOT imply that older persons are necessarily bad drivers. Many a man of 75 rides behind the steering wheel today accident-free after several decades of motoring. But the National Safety Council says "Older persons have special difficulties in driving."

Moreover, the Council says, "Older people are more susceptible to injury and death — what may be a minor accident for a young person might be serious or fatal for an older person."

"Failure to understand traffic problems and ignorance of his own physical limitations are the senior citizen's principal handicaps in traffic," the Council says.

ANOTHER factor is inability to judge speed of approaching vehicles, the Council said. It pointed out that "most older people do not see and hear as well as when they were young- (and) even if perception and judgment remain near normal, the sheer physical ability to react with the speed and vigor required in an emergency is usually dulled."

Of about 87 million licensed drivers in the United States last year, an estimated 6.7 per cent were over 65. This 6.7 per cent was involved in 5.5 per cent of the 18.5 million accidents and 7 per cent of the fatal accidents.

Figures that would have more meaning would show involvement rate based on the number of miles driven. Such statistics aren't available.

ACCORDING TO the Illinois Insurance Information Service, "the amount of exposure to accident possibility is on a continuously declining arc from the age of 65."

Safety men fear the toll will rise when more "exposure" results from more driving by the expected 25 per cent increase.

There is also a belief that the problem is going to be a sticky one to solve. E. R. Klamm of Arlington Heights, an executive of Allstate Insurance companies, expressed this fear during a National Safety Congress (cq) meeting here last October.

"We must recognize that the senior citizen will not accept driving restrictions without a struggle," Klamm said. "In fact, the senior citizen can assemble quite a force to prevent any restrictions from being administered if he so desires."

IF ANY restrictions are imposed, Klamm said, the senior citizen "will rebel to his political friends or he may employ a lawyer to protect his so-called rights and some indicate they will even go directly to the governor's office to prevent any injustice from being imposed upon themselves as far as their driving privileges are concerned."

Such resistance is nothing new. Last year federal regulations were imposed requiring retirement of pilots of scheduled airliners who reach the age of 60. The pilots' union fought the rule on the ground that a man's chronological age has no bearing on his "functional" age. The union appealed to the U. S. Supreme Court but lost.

The nation's railroads have no overall policy on retiring the men who "drive" their trains. Some retire their locomotive engineers at 70 but others keep them working as long as they can pass physical examinations. There has been no clamor for benching older engineers.

IN BOTH CASES great stress has been placed on a man's physical and mental condition. The railroads and the airlines both make sure their engineers and pilots go through rigorous checkups. Most safety experts think such examinations would be good for automobile drivers, too.

The Illinois Insurance Information Service says flatly that the basic answer to the problem of the older driver lies in "statutory, periodic re-examination as a qualification for continued possession of a license." Pennsylvania requires complete physical examinations for all drivers as part of the license requirement. What has been the story there?

STATE TRAFFIC Safety told the UPI, "We can say the program has been very successful thus far. Hundreds of drivers with extreme mental and physical disabilities have been eliminated from our streets and highways.

"A substantial number of people, especially in the older-age bracket, have turned in their licenses voluntarily when faced with the prospect of undergoing physical exams."

Pennsylvania officials said that of the first group ordered reexamined about 18,000 did not show up for the tests and forfeited their rights to drive. About 650 more were rejected on the basis of the exams.

"The public response to this program, although cautious at first, has been overwhelmingly favorable," Shipley said.

THE TRAFFIC death rate in Pennsylvania last year was 4.0 per 100 million miles. The rate so far this year is 3.5.

In Illinois, Secretary of State Charles F. Carpentier, whose office administers drivers licenses, said persons who drive while suffering serious physical and mental impairments are "carriers of communicable death."

Carpentier said that recently drivers who "blacked out" caused the deaths of 10 persons. He said he asked Gov. Otto Kerner to include in a call for the legislature passage of a law requiring physicians and psychiatrists to report any disabilities which would affect a person's ability to drive a car safely. THE Golden Years

by THOMAS COLLINS

"Please say something kind about the working wife who retires, too, and comes home to a retired husband who won't even put out the cat. . ."

This comes from a working wife who is about to retire and comes home to a retired husband who, etc., etc.

"In all my married life I was never retired. I held down, and still do, a 40-hour job. Sometimes 48 hours. My husband never seems to think I have two jobs, one where I am employed and the other at home. My earnings go into the house budget the same as his.

"His major contribution to my work at home is mouthing. Where energy is to be put forth, he saves his.

"We working wives who are nearing retirement can look forward to coming home to retired husbands who will expect to be waited on hand and foot, while they grunt and groan. We'd like to do that, too, once in a while.

"But there are dishes to do, cooking, washing, ironing, mending, cleaning, going to market, picking up after the dear man . . . while we listen to him tell us how we should have done said chores yesterday, or put them off until tomorrow.

"It would make life more pleasant for the old lady if the old man would just be agreeable . . ."

The working wife who retires presumably would have a pension and Social Security in her own name. So she is not exactly helpless in her relationship with a lazy retired husband. It is still customary for him to support her, so she can take her retirement income and go traveling for a spell, or pay a visit to Cousin Minnie in Missouri.

The left-at-home husband will protest. Good and long. For nothing makes a retired man so miserable as losing the woman who has been waiting on him. But if the wife has the nerve to pull such a "vacation" for herself she will usually come home to a repentant man — for a couple of weeks anyway.

Then when his good behavior begins to wear off she can always peer at him over the coffee cup and sweetly say, "I'll do it again."

The wife who lets her husband reach retirement age without being considerate of her problems has failed somewhere back down the line . . . possibly at the time when sex played out as a factor in her influence on him. That's no help now, of course, unless the wife can see in it the need of acquiring some new weapon.

Companionship is a weapon because a retired man sorely needs it. The wife can take it away. Household toil is a weapon. This, too, a wife can take with her to Missouri.

In time he'll even be buying medicine for his supposed ailments — with her money, if he can. (A14

A $100 CHECK from the Jewel Tea Foundation is presented to Mrs. D. E. Allison, president of the Northwest Cooperative Mental Health Assn. by grocery and market managers, Steve Hilgart and Len Mglej of the Jewel Food store in Hoffman Estates. The gift was made, according to Jewel representatives, in recognition of the importance of the help given by the mental health association to those who are mentally retarded.

STATE TRAFFIC Safety told the UPI, "We can say the program has been very successful thus far. Hundreds of drivers with extreme mental and physical disabilities have been eliminated from our streets and highways.

"A substantial number of people, especially in the older-age bracket, have turned in their licenses voluntarily when faced with the prospect of undergoing physical exams."

Pennsylvania officials said that of the first group ordered reexamined about 18,000 did not show up for the tests and forfeited their rights to drive. About 650 more were rejected on the basis of the exams.

"The public response to this program, although cautious at first, has been overwhelmingly favorable," Shipley said.

THE TRAFFIC death rate in Pennsylvania last year was 4.0 per 100 million miles. The rate so far this year is 3.5.

In Illinois, Secretary of State Charles F. Carpentier, whose office administers drivers licenses, said persons who drive while suffering serious physical and mental impairments are "carriers of communicable death."

Carpentier said that recently drivers who "blacked out" caused the deaths of 10 persons. He said he asked Gov. Otto Kerner to include in a call for the legislature passage of a law requiring physicians and psychiatrists to report any disabilities which would affect a person's ability to drive a car safely. THE Golden Years

by THOMAS COLLINS

"Please say something kind about the working wife who retires, too, and comes home to a retired husband who won't even put out the cat. . ."

This comes from a working wife who is about to retire and comes home to a retired husband who, etc., etc.

"In all my married life I was never retired. I held down, and still do, a 40-hour job. Sometimes 48 hours. My husband never seems to think I have two jobs, one where I am employed and the other at home. My earnings go into the house budget the same as his.

"His major contribution to my work at home is mouthing. Where energy is to be put forth, he saves his.

"We working wives who are nearing retirement can look forward to coming home to retired husbands who will expect to be waited on hand and foot, while they grunt and groan. We'd like to do that, too, once in a while.

"But there are dishes to do, cooking, washing, ironing, mending, cleaning, going to market, picking up after the dear man . . . while we listen to him tell us how we should have done said chores yesterday, or put them off until tomorrow.

"It would make life more pleasant for the old lady if the old man would just be agreeable . . ."

The working wife who retires presumably would have a pension and Social Security in her own name. So she is not exactly helpless in her relationship with a lazy retired husband. It is still customary for him to support her, so she can take her retirement income and go traveling for a spell, or pay a visit to Cousin Minnie in Missouri.

The left-at-home husband will protest. Good and long. For nothing makes a retired man so miserable as losing the woman who has been waiting on him. But if the wife has the nerve to pull such a "vacation" for herself she will usually come home to a repentant man — for a couple of weeks anyway.

Then when his good behavior begins to wear off she can always peer at him over the coffee cup and sweetly say, "I'll do it again."

The wife who lets her husband reach retirement age without being considerate of her problems has failed somewhere back down the line . . . possibly at the time when sex played out as a factor in her influence on him. That's no help now, of course, unless the wife can see in it the need of acquiring some new weapon.

Companionship is a weapon because a retired man sorely needs it. The wife can take it away. Household toil is a weapon. This, too, a wife can take with her to Missouri.

In time he'll even be buying medicine for his supposed ailments — with her money, if he can. (A14

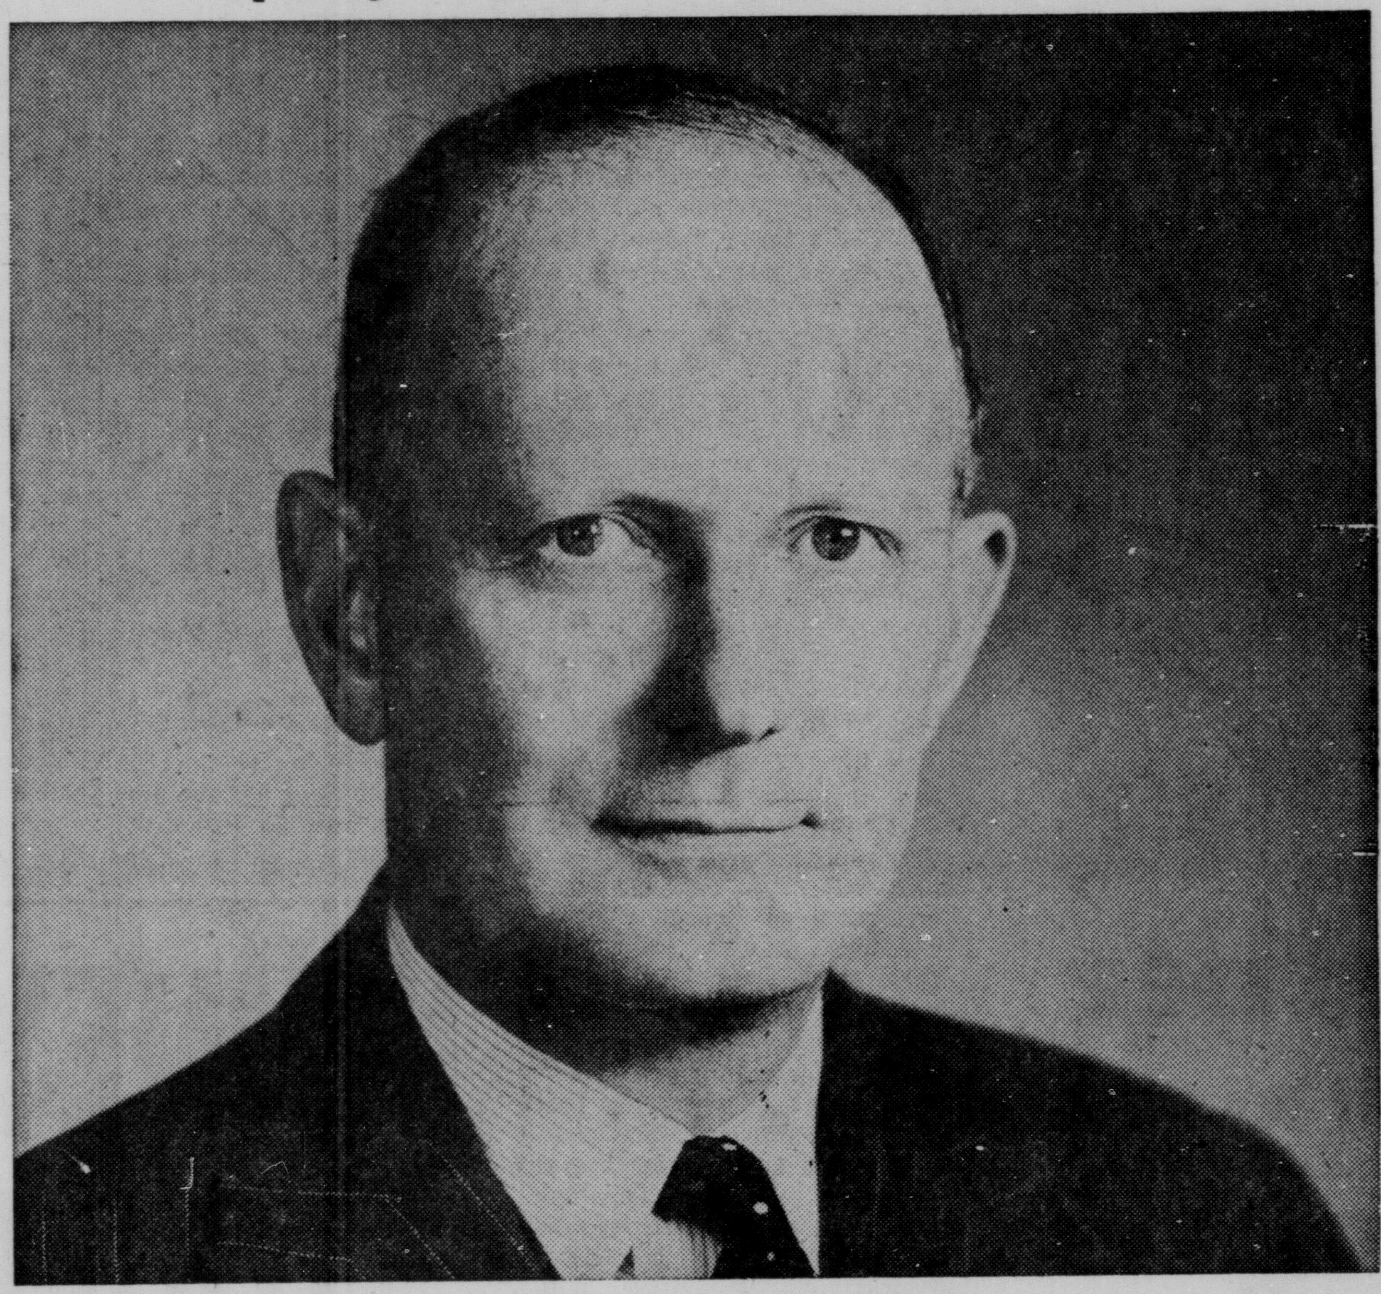
A well-earned thank you to hundreds of thousands of Savings Bond volunteers

by Douglas Dillon, Secretary of the U.S. Treasury



AS THE Twentieth Anniversary Year of the United States Savings Bond Program draws to a close I want to thank, on behalf of the Treasury and the United States Government, all those volunteers who have given their time and effort to increase the sale of bonds.

They and other Americans who have bought and who are, in increasing numbers, continuing to buy bonds, can take pride in a very real contribution to the strength of our nation.

To all those then, who have, over the last 20 years, invested their time and their money in the welfare of their country, I say thank you and well done.

Our task, however, is not over. It is, in a sense, just beginning. As we enter upon the future, such patriotic efforts become increasingly more important. I do not have to remind you of the peril to freedom in the world today. By purchasing bonds, and by encouraging others to do so, through state, county, and local volunteer Savings Bond efforts, Americans contribute significantly to our defense against that peril.

Cagers Engage in Road Games Friday

KICKIN' IT AROUND

by BOB FRISK

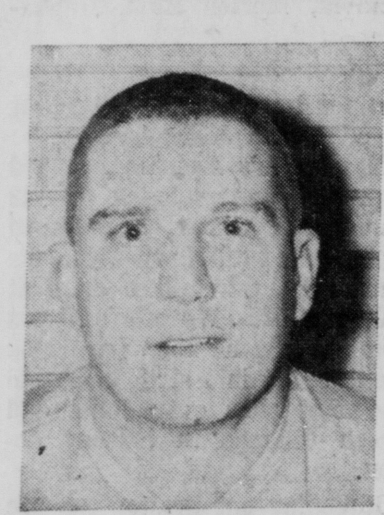
THE BASKETBALL STOCK at both Arlington and Prospect high schools soared to impressive heights last week as the District 214 representatives exhibited some solid hardwood performances in holiday spectaculars at Pontiac and Kankakee.

Heading into the cage attractions with slim hopes for any earth-shaking achievements, the Cardinals and Knights put on some first-class exhibitions in bringing home consolation and third place honors and five victories in seven outings.

Both Norm Patberg and Dick Kinneman were pleased with their squads' efforts in the two tourneys which always command a lot of attention around the state. Granted, neither brought home the coveted team championships but both units came out of the firing with the knowledge that they played some effective basketball—basketball that drew plaudits from coaches and fans alike.



NORM PATBERG

Patberg's Arlington crew rebounded from an opening two-point setback to Springfield and rocked three straight opponents, including Decatur's state-ranked Reds. Some observers called the Cardinals possibly the finest team in the tourney after the opening round.

That 61-57 victory over Decatur was particularly impressive with the Cards definite underdogs heading into the tussle. The Reds, ranked No. 2 in the state by the Associated Press, had dropped their opening game of the tourney to Bloom but could pass off that setback to the absence of two starters.

All-State candidate Ken Barnes had keyed the Reds to a 27-16 lead over Bloom with 13 points and some brilliant board work when he suffered a sprained ankle with 6:22 remaining before halftime. With Barnes on the sidelines for the remainder of the game and with guard Jim Hallihan shelved by illness, Decatur fell apart and Bloom roared home a 75-74 victor.

Barnes and Hallihan returned when the Reds initiated action in the consolation bracket and paced the Big 12 club to two straight one-sided victories. Decatur was a solid favorite in the battle with Arlington but the well-balanced Cardinals simply outclassed the downstate entry and waltzed in with a deceiving four-point decision.

Arlington held a 50-35 lead heading into the final quarter when standouts Don Kolstad and Chuck Close fouled out. Decatur rallied but couldn't climb past the West Suburban entry.

Arlington got some clutch scoring from its top six players with the boys taking turns at delivering points. Vince Furlong was the only member of that top six who failed to hit double figures in at least one game, but Vince gave Patberg some steady work as he once again had to concede height at the important pivot slot.

Junior Gary Brodnan was Arlington's top point-producer with 53 points, including a big 26-point effort against Clinton, and Close followed with 47. Kolstad, a "sneaky-type" player who gets the job done but goes unnoticed in the process, collected 44.

Arlington 'sPatberg, enjoying an 8-3 record in his first year as head man of the varsity Cardinals, had some other celebrating to do in addition to that consolation championship. Norm became the proud father of his second cheerleader a few minutes after he arrived home from Pontiac. Mother and baby are doing fine.

Both Arlington and Prospect have been invited back to their respective holiday tournaments and will make return trips in December of 1962.

ALTHOUGH PROSPECT WAS THE defending champion at Kankakee, the small (in basketball parlance) Knights weren't expected to make much noise in the eight-team field.

In fact, the Mt. Prospect outfit was a slight underdog when it took the floor against a highly-regarded St. Patrick's team.

Prospect proceeded to dump St. Pat's with relative ease, bow to East Aurora in a tight game, and clobber Central of Clifton.

Kinneman felt his team showed its first basketball of the season at Kankakee and only hopes it carries into the important Interim league competition.

Sophomore Dave White, a recent addition to the varsity, has become a fixture in the starting alignment with some capable scoring and outstanding floor play over the holidays. Tommy Thomas continued his impressive scoring with 55 points in the three tourney games and topped all scorers at Kankakee.

In addition, Thomas, who now owns 200 markers in 11 games this season, was named to the all-tourney team. Mike Francek was a third team selection and Ken Groh was named on the honorable mention list.

THE PROUD SUBURBAN LEAGUE, basketball conscious this year because of the apparent strength of some of its schoolboy entries, came out of the holiday hardwood scrambling minus any of the prestige it had mustered in the first few weeks of the 1961-62 campaign.

Prior to the holiday tournaments, the Suburban league appeared headed for a big year with several quintets touted as strong enough to play with any clubs in the area if not in the entire state.

New Trier fans said "this was the year." The Indians were ranked first in the state in the initial prep poll and rolled along unbeaten until upended by Proviso East in a double overtime. Heading into the Centralia holiday meet, New Trier was seeded No. 3 and accorded a good chance at picking off the coveted holiday title.

Host Centralia clobbered New Trier, 72-47, in the second round.

Proviso East's overtime victory over New Trier gave the Pirates some new-found followers and the Maywood school was one of the pre-meet favorites in the 16-team DeKalb affair.

Unheralded Belvidere shocked Proviso in the first game.

Morton East, another highly-regarded club, headed into the Kankakee tournament with hopes of the team title and dropped two straight games.

Waukegan's Bulldogs appeared to be getting stronger and were hooked up at Pontiac. Waukegan came home after two straight setbacks.

Any respect the Suburban league commanded in the early stages of the basketball campaign was smashed with those holiday tourney performances. Now it'll be up for the league entries to prove all that early ballyhoo was warranted.

Pontiac Holiday Tourney

Cardinals Outclass Decatur Reds for Consolation Crown

Arlington's Cardinals were the talk of the town last week in Pontiac, Ill.

Coach Norm Patberg's West Suburban league entry recovered from a shaky start to sweep past three straight opponents and annex the consolation championship in the 16-team Pontiac Holiday tournament.

Exhibiting a well-balanced attack with clutch work from each member of the starting alignment and the reserves, the Cardinals bounced defending champion Clinton with east (67-41), Anna - Jonesboro (59-15) and highly-regarded Decatur (61-57) en route to the consolation crown.

THE VICTORY over Decatur's state-ranked Reds was the most impressive with the Big 12 squad tabbed as the second best schoolboy team in Illinois prior to the tourney. Injuries hampered Decatur in its opening one-point loss to Bloom, but the Reds were healthy and intact for their clash with Arlington.

Peoria Richwoods remained unbeaten for the season in dumping Bloom, 62-61, for the Pontiac championship and Princeton bounced Lockport for third place.

After an opening 48-46 setback to Springfield's Solons, Arlington entered the consolation bracket and proceeded to show as much class as was evident from any quintet in the tournament.

HOWEVER, impressive victories over defending champ Clinton and Anna-Jonesboro didn't give the Cardinals the favorite's role when they took the floor Friday evening against Decatur. The Reds had recovered sufficiently from that opening loss to Bloom to rout Watseka (75-52) and LaSalle Peru (74-53) and were considered too strong for Patberg's determined crew of Cardinals.

It didn't take long for Arlington to capture the fancy of the crowd in that consolation headliner.

With Chuck Close sending home four baskets and four other boys chipping in points, Arlington raced off to a 20-14 first period lead. The two clubs battled on even terms in the second stanza and the Cards enjoyed a 32-26 lead at the intermission.

ARLINGTON put the game away with an explosive third period as Close continued his phenomenal shooting. Chuck canned five baskets and the Cards moved out to an astounding 50-35 lead heading into the final eight minutes of play.

Decatur	14	12	9	22—57

Regulars Don Kolstad and Close, Arlington's two leading scorers in the finale, both left the game via five fouls in the fourth period and Decatur staged a rally that cut the final margin to four points. Center Ken Barnes, the Reds' All-State candidate, was a one-man show in that final stanza with nine points on two baskets and a five of six effort from the charity line.

Close, who hit 10 of 11 shots in a brilliant display of marksmanship, was Arlington's top scorer with 21 points and Kolstad chipped in with 14. Barnes potted 24 for Decatur.

FOLLOWING that opener with Springfield, it appeared doubtful if Arlington could rebound in the consolation bracket. A miserable effort at the free throw line sealed the Cardinals' fate in the first round clash with only six of 16 finding the mark.

Employing a full-court press in the final seconds with the score tied at 46-all, Arlington stole the ball and set up for the final shot. However, a traveling violation gave Springfield the ball and the Solons capitalized on the break.

Bob Trumpy, the Solons' 6-5 center, fired up a 20-footer that fell off but he followed his own shot and netted a layup that gave Springfield a 48-46 decision.

Arlington trailed by one at halftime but rallied to take a one-point lead going into the final period.

Close sparked the Cardinals with 15 points, 11 in the final half, and Ross Retterer added 12.

ARLINGTON needed a solid second half to dispose of Clinton 67-41 in the first game of the consolation bracket.

It's back to conference competition this weekend for the Cardinals of Arlington and Knights of Prospect.

Fresh from creditable performances in holiday basketball tournaments, the two hardwood entries will engage in road encounters Friday evening against formidable league opponents.

Arlington, standing 2-1 in league warfare, will journey to Glen Ellyn to meet the Glenbard West Hilltoppers (1-2) and Prospect, 4-3 in the Interim, will tackle Glenbrook's Spartans (3-3).

ARLINGTON WILL be idle Saturday but Prospect's Knights will come home to host the Evanston Wildkits of the Suburban league in a non-conference headliner.

Arlington's game will be preceded by a frosh-soph encounter with junior-varsity prelims for Prospect's battles. The opening contests begin at 7 p.m.

Arlington will carry a three-game winning streak into Friday's West Suburban tussle thanks to an impressive effort in last week's Pontiac holiday tournament. Following an opening loss to Springfield, the Cards bumped Clinton, Anna-Jonesboro, and Stephen Decatur and picked off the consolation championship.

BRODNAN'S 26-point performance was the top output by an Arlington varsity performer since Jim Clabaugh rimmed 29 against Palatine in the "Sleigh Bells" battle of 1960.

Arlington will need a good game Friday if it hopes to topple the Toppers. Glenbard has been an off-and-on club all season but does own a victory over touted Wheaton and a near-miss with highly-regarded York (56-52).

Coach Dave Billings has a big boy in the pivot in 6-6 Dave Muller and Dave owns 30 points in the two league games in which he's worked. He was sidelined when LaGrange ran over the Bards, 72-43.

BRIAN FARNEY, a 6-2 forward-guard, is another key man in the Glenbard attack. Brian was he squad's leading scorer in the WSC as a junior with 183 points in 14 games and has 35 through the first three loop tests this winter.

Other probable starters Friday include Bill Patterson (6-2), Tom Hancock (6-2), and Walt Larsen (6-1).

In one year Glenbrook's Spartons, Prospect's opponent Friday evening, have developed from the league "patsy" into a formidable hardwood power.

GLENBROOK has an even split in six Interim league games with victories over West Leyden (84-60), Proviso West (71-40), and Glenbard East (61-46).

Kankakee Tournament

Prospect Knights Roll Past Central in 3rd Place Test

Prospect high's Knights played their best basketball of the young season last week and came home with an impressive third place in the eight-team Kankakee Christmas tournament.

Coach Dick Kinneman's Foundry rd. representative, easy victor in the 1960 meet, outclassed a highly-regarded St. Patrick's five in the opener, 57-48, and after bowing to East Aurora by eight (54-46), bounced back with a solid 64-39 rout of Central of Clifton in the third place tussle.

In addition to bringing home the third place trophy, the Knights also claimed the coveted Jaycee Sportsmanship Award.

HOST KANKAKEE whipped East Aurora 42-38 for the championship and St. Patrick's toppled Decatur MacArthur 64-59 for the consolation prize in the 1961 tournament.

Prospect jumped off to an 18-12 lead in the first quarter against St. Pat's with Ken Groh sparking the the initial outburst on three baskets. All five starters scored for Kinneman's outfit in the opening eight minutes and the Knights went into the locker room at intermission with a 27-24 edge.

Prospect increased its advantage in the third period as Tommy Thomas popped in three baskets and outscored the favored St. Pat's quintet by three markers in the final eight minutes of play.

KINNEMAN got double figures from three of his starters with Groh collecting 19, Thomas 15, and Mike Francek 11. Tom Moriarity was high for St. 20 points.

Prospect's key man offensively in the first half was Thomas with nine markers and Francek sparked the second half surge with all 11 of his points. Groh chipped in with nine and White added six and played an outstanding floor game.

JEFF FRANTZ sparked East Aurora with 18 points, 12 in the final 16 minutes of the game. Three other boys scored in double figures for the winners.

Prospect had no trouble racing past an outmanned Central of Clifton squad in the battle for third place with the Foundry rd. entry piling up a 28-15 halftime lead, then coasting home with an impressive triumph.

TOMMY THOMAS

Central had bumped Decatur MacArthur 56-55 in the tourney's first round but had fallen to eventual champion Kankakee 59-48 in the semi-finals.

THOMAS ENJOYED another productive night for the Knights and keyed the first half explosion against Central with 13 points, eight in the opening stanza. Tommy finished with six baskets in the final half, 25 points for the game, and 55 for the tourney.

Guards Bob Gerrard and White backed Thomas with 11 and 10 respectively and Francek turned in another steady game and finished with nine points.

by BOB FRISK

THE BASKETBALL STOCK at both Arlington and Prospect high schools soared to impressive heights last week as the District 214 representatives exhibited some solid hardwood performances in holiday spectaculars at Pontiac and Kankakee.

Heading into the cage attractions with slim hopes for any earth-shaking achievements, the Cardinals and Knights put on some first-class exhibitions in bringing home consolation and third place honors and five victories in seven outings.

Both Norm Patberg and Dick Kinneman were pleased with their squads' efforts in the two tourneys which always command a lot of attention around the state. Granted, neither brought home the coveted team championships but both units came out of the firing with the knowledge that they played some effective basketball—basketball that drew plaudits from coaches and fans alike.

NORM PATBERG

Patberg's Arlington crew rebounded from an opening two-point setback to Springfield and rocked three straight opponents, including Decatur's state-ranked Reds. Some observers called the Cardinals possibly the finest team in the tourney after the opening round.

That 61-57 victory over Decatur was particularly impressive with the Cards definite underdogs heading into the tussle. The Reds, ranked No. 2 in the state by the Associated Press, had dropped their opening game of the tourney to Bloom but could pass off that setback to the absence of two starters.

All-State candidate Ken Barnes had keyed the Reds to a 27-16 lead over Bloom with 13 points and some brilliant board work when he suffered a sprained ankle with 6:22 remaining before halftime. With Barnes on the sidelines for the remainder of the game and with guard Jim Hallihan shelved by illness, Decatur fell apart and Bloom roared home a 75-74 victor.

Barnes and Hallihan returned when the Reds initiated action in the consolation bracket and paced the Big 12 club to two straight one-sided victories. Decatur was a solid favorite in the battle with Arlington but the well-balanced Cardinals simply outclassed the downstate entry and waltzed in with a deceiving four-point decision.

Arlington held a 50-35 lead heading into the final quarter when standouts Don Kolstad and Chuck Close fouled out. Decatur rallied but couldn't climb past the West Suburban entry.

Arlington got some clutch scoring from its top six players with the boys taking turns at delivering points. Vince Furlong was the only member of that top six who failed to hit double figures in at least one game, but Vince gave Patberg some steady work as he once again had to concede height at the important pivot slot.

Junior Gary Brodnan was Arlington's top point-producer with 53 points, including a big 26-point effort against Clinton, and Close followed with 47. Kolstad, a "sneaky-type" player who gets the job done but goes unnoticed in the process, collected 44.

Arlington 'sPatberg, enjoying an 8-3 record in his first year as head man of the varsity Cardinals, had some other celebrating to do in addition to that consolation championship. Norm became the proud father of his second cheerleader a few minutes after he arrived home from Pontiac. Mother and baby are doing fine.

Both Arlington and Prospect have been invited back to their respective holiday tournaments and will make return trips in December of 1962.

ALTHOUGH PROSPECT WAS THE defending champion at Kankakee, the small (in basketball parlance) Knights weren't expected to make much noise in the eight-team field.

In fact, the Mt. Prospect outfit was a slight underdog when it took the floor against a highly-regarded St. Patrick's team.

Prospect proceeded to dump St. Pat's with relative ease, bow to East Aurora in a tight game, and clobber Central of Clifton.

Kinneman felt his team showed its first basketball of the season at Kankakee and only hopes it carries into the important Interim league competition.

Sophomore Dave White, a recent addition to the varsity, has become a fixture in the starting alignment with some capable scoring and outstanding floor play over the holidays. Tommy Thomas continued his impressive scoring with 55 points in the three tourney games and topped all scorers at Kankakee.

In addition, Thomas, who now owns 200 markers in 11 games this season, was named to the all-tourney team. Mike Francek was a third team selection and Ken Groh was named on the honorable mention list.

As a team, Prospect finished second in field goal shooting with a .473 mark and first in work at the charity line with a .694 standard.

THE PROUD SUBURBAN LEAGUE, basketball conscious this year because of the apparent strength of some of its schoolboy entries, came out of the holiday hardwood scrambling minus any of the prestige it had mustered in the first few weeks of the 1961-62 campaign.

Prior to the holiday tournaments, the Suburban league appeared headed for a big year with several quintets touted as strong enough to play with any clubs in the area if not in the entire state.

New Trier fans said "this was the year." The Indians were ranked first in the state in the initial prep poll and rolled along unbeaten until upended by Proviso East in a double overtime. Heading into the Centralia holiday meet, New Trier was seeded No. 3 and accorded a good chance at picking off the coveted holiday title.

Host Centralia clobbered New Trier, 72-47, in the second round.

Proviso East's overtime victory over New Trier gave the Pirates some new-found followers and the Maywood school was one of the pre-meet favorites in the 16-team DeKalb affair.

Unheralded Belvidere shocked Proviso in the first game.

Morton East, another highly-regarded club, headed into the Kankakee tournament with hopes of the team title and dropped two straight games.

Waukegan's Bulldogs appeared to be getting stronger and were hooked up at Pontiac. Waukegan came home after two straight setbacks.

Any respect the Suburban league commanded in the early stages of the basketball campaign was smashed with those holiday tourney performances. Now it'll be up for the league entries to prove all that early ballyhoo was warranted.

Pontiac Holiday Tourney

Cardinals Outclass Decatur Reds for Consolation Crown

Arlington's Cardinals were the talk of the town last week in Pontiac, Ill.

Coach Norm Patberg's West Suburban league entry recovered from a shaky start to sweep past three straight opponents and annex the consolation championship in the 16-team Pontiac Holiday tournament.

Exhibiting a well-balanced attack with clutch work from each member of the starting alignment and the reserves, the Cardinals bounced defending champion Clinton with east (67-41), Anna - Jonesboro (59-15) and highly-regarded Decatur (61-57) en route to the consolation crown.

THE VICTORY over Decatur's state-ranked Reds was the most impressive with the Big 12 squad tabbed as the second best schoolboy team in Illinois prior to the tourney. Injuries hampered Decatur in its opening one-point loss to Bloom, but the Reds were healthy and intact for their clash with Arlington.

Peoria Richwoods remained unbeaten for the season in dumping Bloom, 62-61, for the Pontiac championship and Princeton bounced Lockport for third place.

After an opening 48-46 setback to Springfield's Solons, Arlington entered the consolation bracket and proceeded to show as much class as was evident from any quintet in the tournament.

HOWEVER, impressive victories over defending champ Clinton and Anna-Jonesboro didn't give the Cardinals the favorite's role when they took the floor Friday evening against Decatur. The Reds had recovered sufficiently from that opening loss to Bloom to rout Watseka (75-52) and LaSalle Peru (74-53) and were considered too strong for Patberg's determined crew of Cardinals.

It didn't take long for Arlington to capture the fancy of the crowd in that consolation headliner.

With Chuck Close sending home four baskets and four other boys chipping in points, Arlington raced off to a 20-14 first period lead. The two clubs battled on even terms in the second stanza and the Cards enjoyed a 32-26 lead at the intermission.

ARLINGTON put the game away with an explosive third period as Close continued his phenomenal shooting. Chuck canned five baskets and the Cards moved out to an astounding 50-35 lead heading into the final eight minutes of play.

Regulars Don Kolstad and Close, Arlington's two leading scorers in the finale, both left the game via five fouls in the fourth period and Decatur staged a rally that cut the final margin to four points. Center Ken Barnes, the Reds' All-State candidate, was a one-man show in that final stanza with nine points on two baskets and a five of six effort from the charity line.

Close, who hit 10 of 11 shots in a brilliant display of marksmanship, was Arlington's top scorer with 21 points and Kolstad chipped in with 14. Barnes potted 24 for Decatur.

FOLLOWING that opener with Springfield, it appeared doubtful if Arlington could rebound in the consolation bracket. A miserable effort at the free throw line sealed the Cardinals' fate in the first round clash with only six of 16 finding the mark.

Employing a full-court press in the final seconds with the score tied at 46-all, Arlington stole the ball and set up for the final shot. However, a traveling violation gave Springfield the ball and the Solons capitalized on the break.

Bob Trumpy, the Solons' 6-5 center, fired up a 20-footer that fell off but he followed his own shot and netted a layup that gave Springfield a 48-46 decision.

Arlington trailed by one at halftime but rallied to take a one-point lead going into the final period.

Close sparked the Cardinals with 15 points, 11 in the final half, and Ross Retterer added 12.

ARLINGTON needed a solid second half to dispose of Clinton 67-41 in the first game of the consolation bracket.

Arlington will need a good game Friday if it hopes to topple the Toppers. Glenbard has been an off-and-on club all season but does own a victory over touted Wheaton and a near-miss with highly-regarded York (56-52).

Coach Dave Billings has a big boy in the pivot in 6-6 Dave Muller and Dave owns 30 points in the two league games in which he's worked. He was sidelined when LaGrange ran over the Bards, 72-43.

BRIAN FARNEY, a 6-2 forward-guard, is another key man in the Glenbard attack. Brian was he squad's leading scorer in the WSC as a junior with 183 points in 14 games and has 35 through the first three loop tests this winter.

Other probable starters Friday include Bill Patterson (6-2), Tom Hancock (6-2), and Walt Larsen (6-1).

In one year Glenbrook's Spartons, Prospect's opponent Friday evening, have developed from the league "patsy" into a formidable hardwood power.

GLENBROOK has an even split in six Interim league games with victories over West Leyden (84-60), Proviso West (71-40), and Glenbard East (61-46).

Prospect Knights Roll Past Central in 3rd Place Test

Prospect high's Knights played their best basketball of the young season last week and came home with an impressive third place in the eight-team Kankakee Christmas tournament.

Coach Dick Kinneman's Foundry rd. representative, easy victor in the 1960 meet, outclassed a highly-regarded St. Patrick's five in the opener, 57-48, and after bowing to East Aurora by eight (54-46), bounced back with a solid 64-39 rout of Central of Clifton in the third place tussle.

In addition to bringing home the third place trophy, the Knights also claimed the coveted Jaycee Sportsmanship Award.

HOST KANKAKEE whipped East Aurora 42-38 for the championship and St. Patrick's toppled Decatur MacArthur 64-59 for the consolation prize in the 1961 tournament.

Prospect jumped off to an 18-12 lead in the first quarter against St. Pat's with Ken Groh sparking the the initial outburst on three baskets. All five starters scored for Kinneman's outfit in the opening eight minutes and the Knights went into the locker room at intermission with a 27-24 edge.

Prospect increased its advantage in the third period as Tommy Thomas popped in three baskets and outscored the favored St. Pat's quintet by three markers in the final eight minutes of play.

KINNEMAN got double figures from three of his starters with Groh collecting 19, Thomas 15, and Mike Francek 11. Tom Moriarity was high for St. 20 points.

JEFF FRANTZ sparked East Aurora with 18 points, 12 in the final 16 minutes of the game. Three other boys scored in double figures for the winners.

Prospect had no trouble racing past an outmanned Central of Clifton squad in the battle for third place with the Foundry rd. entry piling up a 28-15 halftime lead, then coasting home with an impressive triumph.

WHO ARE THE BEST BASKETBALL TEAMS in the Suburban area and the state of Illinois? The holiday tournaments give the best indication of how teams should be rated over the state. They also have given a good idea of the comparative strength of the suburban conferences. While some teams have a letdown when they meet non-league competition most of them look upon tournaments as a way to gain prestige.

Hinsdale is the holiday tournament standout of the suburban area and the West Suburban appears to be the strongest circuit. Hinsdale took the Joliet tourney by beating Wheaton (Interim leader) 76-60. Wheaton had beaten North Chicago by one point and had whipped Joliet, leaders of the Tri-county and South Suburban conferences. York, also of the West Suburban, won the DeKalb 16 team tourney by crushing Freeport in the final. Maine East won the Proviso West tournament beating Morton West 62-58. Arlington took the consolation bracket for first round losers at the 16 team Pontiac tournament by beating Clinton, Anna-Jonesboro, and Decatur.

Holiday tournaments emphasize the fact that the strongest teams in Illinois basketball are down state but there may be more good teams in this area. Centralia and Benton are southern Illinois leaders as are also Carmi, Madison, and Alton. Moline, Danville, and Richwoods of Peoria are mid-state powers on the hardwood. The suburban area has a number of teams which are good but not great and are very evenly matched. Leagues like the North Suburban and the Little Seven, which were considered below the level of the larger suburban circuits and the Big Eight, have teams which can knock off more than half of the members of the larger conferences.

The Little Seven has one of the strongest suburban leagues. Naperville, the league leader won the Canton tournament meeting strong central Illinois teams. Belvidere knocked off Proviso East and went to the DeKalb semi-finals. St. Charles was beaten by Palatine 67-65 in the finals of their own 4 team tourney but advanced to the semi-finals among 16 teams at DeKalb. Batavia won its own tournament as did Geneva.

THE NORTH SUBURBAN TEAMS raised the prestige of the league over the holidays. Unbeaten Zion-Benton lost to North Chicago in a scheduled game 68-66 but the winner is one of the top-rated suburban teams. McHenry won the 8 team Grayslake tourney coming from 5 points behind in the last period to beat Lake Forest, 71-67. Palatine took the St. Charles tourney playing its best ball of the season to beat the host school, 67-65. They then took the 8 team Fenton tourney whipping Glenbrook, 68-62 in the final for a repeat of last year's victory. Woodstock with one victory in the North Suburban took the Marengo tourney. In a round robin with East and West Rockford and LaGrange, Libertyville lost by 4 points to East Rockford and beat West High rather handily.

The Big Eight, over the years one of the state's strongest basketball circuits, seems way below par. Auburn of Rockford, rated the best, lost early in the Centralia tournament. The best any teams were able to do was a poor finalist showing by Freeport at DeKalb and a finals loss of 42 to 38 by East Aurora to tournament host, Kankakee.

The best team in the Chicagoland and possibly in the state, at this time, is DuSable of Chicago, winner of the Chicago tournament with a 67-35 victory over Carver. Jim Brown's DuSable boys number 6 who stand over 6' 3" and 4 who exceed 6' 4". Lonnie Lynn, a 6' 6" center, will be lost by the midyear graduations which will weaken the team for the state series of tournaments but authorities state that the team has very capable reserves to fill the breach.

LOCALLY, CONGRATULATIONS TO Coach Dick Kolze and his cagers on winning 6 basketball games between December 21 and 29 and two tournament trophies and compiling a 10-2 record, the best in 18 years at this stage of the season for a Palatine team. Congratulations also to Prospect for winning third in the Kankakee tournament, Arlington for a consolation trophy at Pontiac, and Lake Park for a consolation prize at the Fenton tourney. Also, to Fred Gluck (95) and Jim Nordin (103) for championships in the Palatine Holiday Wrestling tournament, the strongest meet in the 7 years it has been held. A word of praise also to Ron Kozlicki for making the all-tournament team at the Fenton meet and scoring 70 points in 3 games and to John Seehausen and John Roberts who played as well as Palatine players did last year who made the all-tournament team. Also, a word of special praise to Don Skinner who sat out much of the tournament with a sprained ankle but who went in after one quarter of the championship game with Glenbrook and contributed the smooth, steady playing, and accurate shooting which made the difference in the outcome of the game.

20 YEARS AGO

The crucial Palatine-Bensenville game is coming up this week. Palatine leads the league 4-0 and Bensenville has a 3-1 record. Palatine has won 20 conference games in a row and has a string of 19 straight victories at home against all competition. It is Gutnik, Custer, Bornack, Bumann, and Kernats for the Bisons against Schwolow, Harris, Birks, Howes, and Warder for the Palatine Pirates.

10 YEARS AGO

Palatine opposes Barrington Friday and Coach Moylan has moved "Tinker" Meyer and Pete Abramson to the varsity from the sophs, faced by a 3-8 overall record and 3-3 in the conference. The sophs will join Paul Schrage and Dick Abrahamson, juniors; and 6' 6" Don Buenzow, senior center. Barrington has a string of 8 straight over the Pirates and a 6-0 Northwest record this season.

Naperville Claims Seventh Palatine Invitational Title

Naperville's powerful wrestling squad picked off six individual championships and scored a high total of 86 points last weekend to claim top team honors at the Seventh Annual Palatine Invitational Wrestling tournament.

The Little Seven Conference Redskins, who also walked off with the First Annual Prospect Invitational team prize December 21-22, topped runner-up Oak Lawn by a hefty 18 points.

Oak Lawn piled up 64 counters while DeKalb nudged Palatine for third, 49-47. Aurora West placed fifth, North Chicago took sixth while Arlington and Libertyville wound up in a dead heat for seventh.

EACH OF Naperville's six finalists came through with a first place effort. Capturing individual championships for the Redskins were Larry Shum at 112, Bill Hoyt at 120, Rich Klingbeil at 127, Loren Kittel at 138, Rod Landorf at 145 and Bill Truxes at heavyweight.

In addition to those six firsts, Coach Bob Funston's squad acquired two third place medals thanks to the efforts of Jim Philpott (103) and Mark Meyers (145).

Second place Oak Lawn, meanwhile, qualified five boys for the finals of which only Steve Bisbikis (120) survived. The Southwest Suburban Spartans took home four second place, one third place and two fourth place finishes.

DEKALB, WHICH narrowly edged Palatine, landed four berths in the finals but salvaged only one title. At 145, Ben Fagenbush squeaked out a tight 3-1 decision over Gary Sayers of Oak Lawn.

The host Pirates racked up the evening's first two titles as their only two finalists came through with impressive victories. At 95 pounds, Mike Gluck pinned Jim Cliffe of DeKalb in 4:40.

Jim Nordin successfully defended his 103-pound crown by posting a 5-2 decision over Bill Walters, also of DeKalb.

Gluck rolled into the finals by outpointing Jack Overcash of Naperville, 5-0, and Don Morgan of Aurora West, 3-2. Nordin beat Wally Hines of Aurora, 8-2, and Sim Philpott of Naperville, 5-0, in his preliminary matches.

ARLINGTON forfeited at 95 while Cardinal Jim Vernado was pinned in 5:04 by Tim Morrison of Libertyville in first round activity at 103.

Schum of Naperville handled Jim Kupchick of Libertyville, 5-2, in the 112 finale. Both Larry Travis of Palatine and Bob Conti of Arlington claimed first round wins but both were eliminated by the eventual finalists in the semis.

Travis then whipped Conti, 6-3, for consolation honors.

Hoyt of Napervile had his hands full with Bob Evans of Oak Lawn but he finally subdued the Spartan grappler, 9-6, for the 120-pound crown.

MARK WALKER of Palatine, who blanked Arlington's Bob Gray, 5-0, in a first round match, went on to take third place at 120 by edging Dave Heeg of Aurora, 3-2.

Klingbeil made it three in a row for the Redskins at 127 by decisioning Ted Bulow of Oak Lawn, 8-4. Both Seth Norton of Palatine and Ken Adams of Arlington bowed out in first round action.

In one of the evening's most exciting bouts, Bisbikis of Oak Lawn outpointed George Oldham of DeKalb, 7-5, for 133 honors. Oldham whipped Pirate Ted Meyers, 7-1, in the first round to eliminate the latter.

TERRY WITT of Arlington edged Ken Strubbler of Naperville in the opening round but lost to Oldham, 5-2, in the semis. Wrestling for third place, Witt routed George Patterson of North Chicago, 9-0.

Naperville's Kittel dumped Steve Serfling of Libertyville, 9-4, at 138. Local entries Jim Seagraves of Palatine and Bob Jennings of Arlington dropped out in the first round.

Enroute to the 145-pound title, DeKalb's Fagenbush dumped Rich Keller of Arlington, 3-1, in an opener. Palatine's Jim Smith also took it on the chin in the first round.

ONE OF the meet's most shocking upsets occurred in the semi-finals of the 154-pound class. Favored George McCreey of Palatine whipped Bill Taylor of Aurora West, 10-5, in first round action but then was pinned by Ladendorf of Naperville in the semis.

Landorf went on to take the title while McCreery pinned Bob Clark of Arlington in 2:38 for third place.

Doug Clinscales took 165 as Bob Bacon of Oak Lawn was forced to default. Jack LaGreca of Palatine and Roy Woodruff of Arlington were eliminated after first round losses.

HAL SELECK brought home Arlington's lone championship as he breezed through the 180-pound division. Selleck butchered Palatine's Kent Wilson, 11-1, in his opener and then pinned Gene Humes of DeKalb to move into the finals.

In that final test, Selleck hammered out a decisive 9-0 win over Ron Gabbett of Aurora.

Naperville's Bill Truxes was tops in the heavyweight class thanks to a second period pin of Aurora's Ed Hess. Denny Thune of Palatine qualified for the semis with a 7-3 conquest of Herb Odum of North Chicago but the Pirate wrestler was pinned by Truxes in 3:08.

Thune came back to take third place by pinning Ray Bockman of Oak Lawn in a snappy 1:17. Bockman had pinned Jim Bland of Arlington in 3:49 of their first round engagement.

Risk 6-Game Win Skein

Currently riding the crest of an impressive six-game string of consecutive victories, Palatine will face the acid test Saturday when it journeys to West Chicago for a non-conference battle opposite the rugged Wildcats.

Coach Dick Kolze's Pirates are on the move. Displaying steady improvement with each outing, Palatine currently boasts an outstanding 10-2 won-loss record, its best showing at this point of the season for the past 18 years.

The Pirates equaled and then bettered their victory output of last season at the Fenton tournament and already are assured of their best overall campaign in several years.

PALATINE additionally holds the distinction of being the only school in the state to retire two tournament titles during the joyous holiday season.

Yet, now is not the time to fall back upon one's laurels. Lying immediately ahead of the Pirates is its most formidable opponent as yet to be engaged.

The talent-laden Wildcats have lost only three games in 10 outings thus far and boast one of the state's best big men in six-foot eight-inch senior Keith Sponholtz.

ST. ED'S whipped the Wildcats, 39-37, in the season's opener. Other We-Go losses were to Naperville (57-50) and to Batavia (69-65); Naperville has been beaten only by Lockport (a four-pointer) in 13 games.

On the other side of the ledger, West Chicago owns victories over such formidable opponents as Thornton, St. Procopius, Geneva, St. Charles, Marengo, Sycamore and Kaneland.

In Little Seven Conference play, We-Go is 3-1 and is currently tied for second place behind Naperville.

AS A MEANS of comparison, West Chicago toppled St. Charles, 50-43, as compared to Palatine's 67-65 conquest of the Fighting Saints.

day tourney and hit 100 points in a 100-35 rout of hapless Ridgewood.

Key man in the Glenbrook offensive setup is 6-3 Denny Pietrzak. In six loop contests Denny has popped in 104 points with 26-point efforts against both Glenbard East and Maine West.

THE SPARTANS' second leading Interim scorer is 6-2 Doug Rader, a steady forward. Rader has 68 points in the six games and a high of 19 against West Leyden.

Other Glenbrook starters will be Tim Shannon (5-10), Randy Dean (5-7), and Fred Stewart (6-2).

In the non-league game Saturday evening at Prospect the Foundry rd. crew will be meeting a creditable Evanston five sparked by sharpshooting Don Cleveland (6-1) and John Scott (6-2).

CLEVELAND, only a junior, is in his second year as an Evanston starter and hits from all over the floor. He is one of five returning lettermen on Coach Jack Burmaster's quintet.

After a 2-17 year in the 1960-61 campaign Evanston had nowhere to go but up. The Kits have been playing some creditable basketball and with Cleveland and Scott experiencing "hot nights" the Suburban league five is capable of giving anyone a good game.

Other probable starters for Evanston will be Charles Johnson (6-1), Dick Kuehne (5-9), and Roamy Taylor (5-9).

PROSPECT'S Kinneman plans to work with the same alignment that clicked so effectively in the Kankakee tournament. That means sophomore Dave White, a 5-9 speedster will operate in the backcourt with Ken Groh.

Tommy Thomas, carrying an 18.2 per game scoring average this winter, will occupy his familiar forward position opposite Jim Hogarty and 6-2 Mike Francek will be at center.

Prospect stands 6-5 in overall competition this season and boasts four victories in its last five outings.

Hinsdale's Devils Best In Suburbs!

For the third straight week the Suburban Press and Radio Association's poll of the top high school quintets in the Chicago Suburban area has a new leader.

In the initial ranking New Trier of the Suburban league held the coveted top position.

Last week Joliet Twp. ranked at the top of the schoolboy ratings.

This week it's Hinsdale of the West Suburban conference.

Coach Larry Hoff's hustling Red Devils, impressive victor in the rough Joliet holiday tourney last week, polled 256 points for a decisive edge over runnerup York which collected 182.

Beaten only once in ten outings this winter, Hinsdale collected first place votes on all but one of the ballots.

The Suburban Press and Radio Association, composed of sportswriters and broadcasters in the suburban area, is undertaking the ranking of high school quintets for the first time. Ballots are delivered to one central location and then made available to association members.

BOB FRISK and Dick Gottsegen of Paddock Publications are included among the members who rank the Chicago Suburban area squads.

York moved from seventh to second in the poll on the strength of a brilliant, runaway victory in the 16-team DeKalb holiday meet. Joliet dropped from its lofty perch when it was dumped by Wheaton in the first round of the Joliet tourney.

Naperville's Redskins, tagged with only one setback in 13 games this winter, hold fourth in the poll with North Chicago's Warhawks, third place titlist at Joliet, in fifth. Wheaton's Tigers climbed from the honorable mention list into sixth thanks to one-point wins over Joliet and North Chicago in tourney action.

Rounding out the top ten are New Trier (6-2), Lockport (9-3), Proviso East (8-2), and Bloom (7-4).

BEST IN SUBURBS

1. Hinsdale (9-1)
2. York (9-1)
3. Joliet Twp. (10-1)
4. Naperville (12-1)
5. No Chicago (7-1)
6. Wheaton (10-4)
7. New Trier (10-2)
8. Lockport (9-3)

Warriors Head Fenton Tourney All-Star Unit

Willowbrook, third place finisher at the Fenton Holiday Basketball tournament, landed two berths to head the second annual all-tourney squad as selected by the sports staff of Paddock Publications.

Brooks named to the star unit were Forward Bill Bornemann and Guard Harlan Krafft. Others selected were Ron Kozlicki of Palatine, Denny Pietrazak of Glenbrook and Kip Jensen of Elmwood Park.

Bornemann, a six foot-two-inch junior, was one of the tournament's leading scorers and best rebounders. Bill whipped in 21 points to spark the Brooks to a surprisingly easy conquest of Lake Park in first round play.

PALATINE then held Bornemann to eight points as the Warriors bowed out of championship play but the strong junior rebounded with 20 counters as Willowbrook topped Antioch for third place honors.

LOCALLY, CONGRATULATIONS TO Coach Dick Kolze and his cagers on winning 6 basketball games between December 21 and 29 and two tournament trophies and compiling a 10-2 record, the best in 18 years at this stage of the season for a Palatine team. Congratulations also to Prospect for winning third in the Kankakee tournament, Arlington for a consolation trophy at Pontiac, and Lake Park for a consolation prize at the Fenton tourney. Also, to Fred Gluck (95) and Jim Nordin (103) for championships in the Palatine Holiday Wrestling tournament, the strongest meet in the 7 years it has been held. A word of praise also to Ron Kozlicki for making the all-tournament team at the Fenton meet and scoring 70 points in 3 games and to John Seehausen and John Roberts who played as well as Palatine players did last year who made the all-tournament team. Also, a word of special praise to Don Skinner who sat out much of the tournament with a sprained ankle but who went in after one quarter of the championship game with Glenbrook and contributed the smooth, steady playing, and accurate shooting which made the difference in the outcome of the game.

20 YEARS AGO

The crucial Palatine-Bensenville game is coming up this week. Palatine leads the league 4-0 and Bensenville has a 3-1 record. Palatine has won 20 conference games in a row and has a string of 19 straight victories at home against all competition. It is Gutnik, Custer, Bornack, Bumann, and Kernats for the Bisons against Schwolow, Harris, Birks, Howes, and Warder for the Palatine Pirates.

10 YEARS AGO

Palatine opposes Barrington Friday and Coach Moylan has moved "Tinker" Meyer and Pete Abramson to the varsity from the sophs, faced by a 3-8 overall record and 3-3 in the conference. The sophs will join Paul Schrage and Dick Abrahamson, juniors; and 6' 6" Don Buenzow, senior center. Barrington has a string of 8 straight over the Pirates and a 6-0 Northwest record this season.

Naperville Claims Seventh Palatine Invitational Title

Naperville's powerful wrestling squad picked off six individual championships and scored a high total of 86 points last weekend to claim top team honors at the Seventh Annual Palatine Invitational Wrestling tournament.

The Little Seven Conference Redskins, who also walked off with the First Annual Prospect Invitational team prize December 21-22, topped runner-up Oak Lawn by a hefty 18 points.

Oak Lawn piled up 64 counters while DeKalb nudged Palatine for third, 49-47. Aurora West placed fifth, North Chicago took sixth while Arlington and Libertyville wound up in a dead heat for seventh.

EACH OF Naperville's six finalists came through with a first place effort. Capturing individual championships for the Redskins were Larry Shum at 112, Bill Hoyt at 120, Rich Klingbeil at 127, Loren Kittel at 138, Rod Landorf at 145 and Bill Truxes at heavyweight.

In addition to those six firsts, Coach Bob Funston's squad acquired two third place medals thanks to the efforts of Jim Philpott (103) and Mark Meyers (145).

Second place Oak Lawn, meanwhile, qualified five boys for the finals of which only Steve Bisbikis (120) survived. The Southwest Suburban Spartans took home four second place, one third place and two fourth place finishes.

DEKALB, WHICH narrowly edged Palatine, landed four berths in the finals but salvaged only one title. At 145, Ben Fagenbush squeaked out a tight 3-1 decision over Gary Sayers of Oak Lawn.

The host Pirates racked up the evening's first two titles as their only two finalists came through with impressive victories. At 95 pounds, Mike Gluck pinned Jim Cliffe of DeKalb in 4:40.

Jim Nordin successfully defended his 103-pound crown by posting a 5-2 decision over Bill Walters, also of DeKalb.

Gluck rolled into the finals by outpointing Jack Overcash of Naperville, 5-0, and Don Morgan of Aurora West, 3-2. Nordin beat Wally Hines of Aurora, 8-2, and Sim Philpott of Naperville, 5-0, in his preliminary matches.

ARLINGTON forfeited at 95 while Cardinal Jim Vernado was pinned in 5:04 by Tim Morrison of Libertyville in first round activity at 103.

Schum of Naperville handled Jim Kupchick of Libertyville, 5-2, in the 112 finale. Both Larry Travis of Palatine and Bob Conti of Arlington claimed first round wins but both were eliminated by the eventual finalists in the semis.

Travis then whipped Conti, 6-3, for consolation honors.

Hoyt of Napervile had his hands full with Bob Evans of Oak Lawn but he finally subdued the Spartan grappler, 9-6, for the 120-pound crown.

MARK WALKER of Palatine, who blanked Arlington's Bob Gray, 5-0, in a first round match, went on to take third place at 120 by edging Dave Heeg of Aurora, 3-2.

Klingbeil made it three in a row for the Redskins at 127 by decisioning Ted Bulow of Oak Lawn, 8-4. Both Seth Norton of Palatine and Ken Adams of Arlington bowed out in first round action.

In one of the evening's most exciting bouts, Bisbikis of Oak Lawn outpointed George Oldham of DeKalb, 7-5, for 133 honors. Oldham whipped Pirate Ted Meyers, 7-1, in the first round to eliminate the latter.

TERRY WITT of Arlington edged Ken Strubbler of Naperville in the opening round but lost to Oldham, 5-2, in the semis. Wrestling for third place, Witt routed George Patterson of North Chicago, 9-0.

Naperville's Kittel dumped Steve Serfling of Libertyville, 9-4, at 138. Local entries Jim Seagraves of Palatine and Bob Jennings of Arlington dropped out in the first round.

Enroute to the 145-pound title, DeKalb's Fagenbush dumped Rich Keller of Arlington, 3-1, in an opener. Palatine's Jim Smith also took it on the chin in the first round.

ONE OF the meet's most shocking upsets occurred in the semi-finals of the 154-pound class. Favored George McCreey of Palatine whipped Bill Taylor of Aurora West, 10-5, in first round action but then was pinned by Ladendorf of Naperville in the semis.

Landorf went on to take the title while McCreery pinned Bob Clark of Arlington in 2:38 for third place.

Doug Clinscales took 165 as Bob Bacon of Oak Lawn was forced to default. Jack La-Greca of Palatine and Roy Woodruff of Arlington were eliminated after first round losses.

HAL SELECK brought home Arlington's lone championship as he breezed through the 180-pound division. Selleck butchered Palatine's Kent Wilson, 11-1, in his opener and then pinned Gene Humes of DeKalb to move into the finals.

In that final test, Selleck hammered out a decisive 9-0 win over Ron Gabbett of Aurora.

Naperville's Bill Truxes was tops in the heavyweight class thanks to a second period pin of Aurora's Ed Hess. Denny Thune of Palatine qualified for the semis with a 7-3 conquest of Herb Odum of North Chicago but the Pirate wrestler was pinned by Truxes in 3:08.

Thune came back to take third place by pinning Ray Bockman of Oak Lawn in a snappy 1:17. Bockman had pinned Jim Bland of Arlington in 3:49 of their first round engagement.

Risk 6-Game Win Skein

Currently riding the crest of an impressive six-game string of consecutive victories, Palatine will face the acid test Saturday when it journeys to West Chicago for a non-conference battle opposite the rugged Wildcats.

Coach Dick Kolze's Pirates are on the move. Displaying steady improvement with each outing, Palatine currently boasts an outstanding 10-2 won-loss record, its best showing at this point of the season for the past 18 years.

The Pirates equaled and then bettered their victory output of last season at the Fenton tournament and already are assured of their best overall campaign in several years.

PALATINE additionally holds the distinction of being the only school in the state to retire two tournament titles during the joyous holiday season.

Yet, now is not the time to fall back upon one's laurels. Lying immediately ahead of the Pirates is its most formidable opponent as yet to be engaged.

The talent-laden Wildcats have lost only three games in 10 outings thus far and boast one of the state's best big men in six-foot eight-inch senior Keith Sponholtz.

ST. ED'S whipped the Wildcats, 39-37, in the season's opener. Other We-Go losses were to Naperville (57-50) and to Batavia (69-65); Naperville has been beaten only by Lockport (a four-pointer) in 13 games.

On the other side of the ledger, West Chicago owns victories over such formidable opponents as Thornton, St. Procopius, Geneva, St. Charles, Marengo, Sycamore and Kaneland.

In Little Seven Conference play, We-Go is 3-1 and is currently tied for second place behind Naperville.

AS A MEANS of comparison, West Chicago toppled St. Charles, 50-43, as compared to Palatine's 67-65 conquest of the Fighting Saints.

Saturday night's game is shaping up as battle of the giants. Saddled with the chore of watching West Chicago's Sponholtz will be six-foot-seven-inch junior Ron Kozlicki.

day tourney and hit 100 points in a 100-35 rout of hapless Ridgewood.

Key man in the Glenbrook offensive setup is 6-3 Denny Pietrzak. In six loop contests Denny has popped in 104 points with 26-point efforts against both Glenbard East and Maine West.

THE SPARTANS' second leading Interim scorer is 6-2 Doug Rader, a steady forward. Rader has 68 points in the six games and a high of 19 against West Leyden.

Other Glenbrook starters will be Tim Shannon (5-10), Randy Dean (5-7), and Fred Stewart (6-2).

In the non-league game Saturday evening at Prospect the Foundry rd. crew will be meeting a creditable Evanston five sparked by sharpshooting Don Cleveland (6-1) and John Scott (6-2).

CLEVELAND, only a junior, is in his second year as an Evanston starter and hits from all over the floor. He is one of five returning lettermen on Coach Jack Burmaster's quintet.

After a 2-17 year in the 1960-61 campaign Evanston had nowhere to go but up. The Kits have been playing some creditable basketball and with Cleveland and Scott experiencing "hot nights" the Suburban league five is capable of giving anyone a good game.

Other probable starters for Evanston will be Charles Johnson (6-1), Dick Kuehne (5-9), and Roamy Taylor (5-9).

PROSPECT'S Kinneman plans to work with the same alignment that clicked so effectively in the Kankakee tournament. That means sophomore Dave White, a 5-9 speedster will operate in the backcourt with Ken Groh.

Tommy Thomas, carrying an 18.2 per game scoring average this winter, will occupy his familiar forward position opposite Jim Hogarty and 6-2 Mike Francek will be at center.

Prospect stands 6-5 in overall competition this season and boasts four victories in its last five outings.

Hinsdale's Devils Best In Suburbs!

For the third straight week the Suburban Press and Radio Association's poll of the top high school quintets in the Chicago Suburban area has a new leader.

In the initial ranking New Trier of the Suburban league held the coveted top position.

Last week Joliet Twp. ranked at the top of the schoolboy ratings.

This week it's Hinsdale of the West Suburban conference.

Coach Larry Hoff's hustling Red Devils, impressive victor in the rough Joliet holiday tourney last week, polled 256 points for a decisive edge over runnerup York which collected 182.

Beaten only once in ten outings this winter, Hinsdale collected first place votes on all but one of the ballots.

The Suburban Press and Radio Association, composed of sportswriters and broadcasters in the suburban area, is undertaking the ranking of high school quintets for the first time. Ballots are delivered to one central location and then made available to association members.

BOB FRISK and Dick Gottsegen of Paddock Publications are included among the members who rank the Chicago Suburban area squads.

York moved from seventh to second in the poll on the strength of a brilliant, runaway victory in the 16-team DeKalb holiday meet. Joliet dropped from its lofty perch when it was dumped by Wheaton in the first round of the Joliet tourney.

Naperville's Redskins, tagged with only one setback in 13 games this winter, hold fourth in the poll with North Chicago's Warhawks, third place titlist at Joliet, in fifth. Wheaton's Tigers climbed from the honorable mention list into sixth thanks to one-point wins over Joliet and North Chicago in tourney action.

Rounding out the top ten are New Trier (6-2), Lockport (9-3), Proviso East (8-2), and Bloom (7-4).

BEST IN SUBURBS

1. Hinsdale (9-1)
2. York (9-1)
3. Joliet Twp. (10-1)
4. Naperville (12-1)
5. No Chicago (7-1)
6. Wheaton (10-4)
7. New Trier (10-2)
8. Lockport (9-3)
9. Proviso East (8-2)
10. Bloom (7-4)

Honorable Mention — LaGrange, Loyola Academy, Carl Sandburg, Rich East, Thornton, Zion - Benton, Joliet Catholic, Batavia, Morton East, Kankakee

Warriors Head Fenton Tourney All-Star Unit

Willowbrook, third place finisher at the Fenton Holiday Basketball tournament, landed two berths to head the second annual all-tourney squad as selected by the sports staff of Paddock Publications.

Brooks named to the star unit were Forward Bill Bornemann and Guard Harlan Krafft. Others selected were Ron Kozlicki of Palatine, Denny Pietrazak of Glenbrook and Kip Jensen of Elmwood Park.

Bornemann, a six foot-two-inch junior, was one of the tournament's leading scorers and best rebounders. Bill whipped in 21 points to spark the Brooks to a surprisingly easy conquest of Lake Park in first round play.

PALATINE then held Bornemann to eight points as the Warriors bowed out of championship play but the strong junior rebounded with 20 counters as Willowbrook topped Antioch for third place honors.

Highland Park has won four titles in the eight-year history of the Riverside Invitational but the Suburban league Little Giants aren't included in the 1962 alignment. Other title holders at R-B include the host school, Maine East, and the defending champion from Hinsdale.

Willowbrook Five To Meet Proviso Friday Evening

Willowbrook's varsity Warriors, fresh from a solid third place finish in the Fenton holiday tournament, will resume Interim league warfare this Friday evening when they journey to Proviso West in Hillside.

Coach Jim Toman's Villa Park crew stands 3-2 in the Interim and will be tackling a Proviso five that has won just two games in seven loop outings.

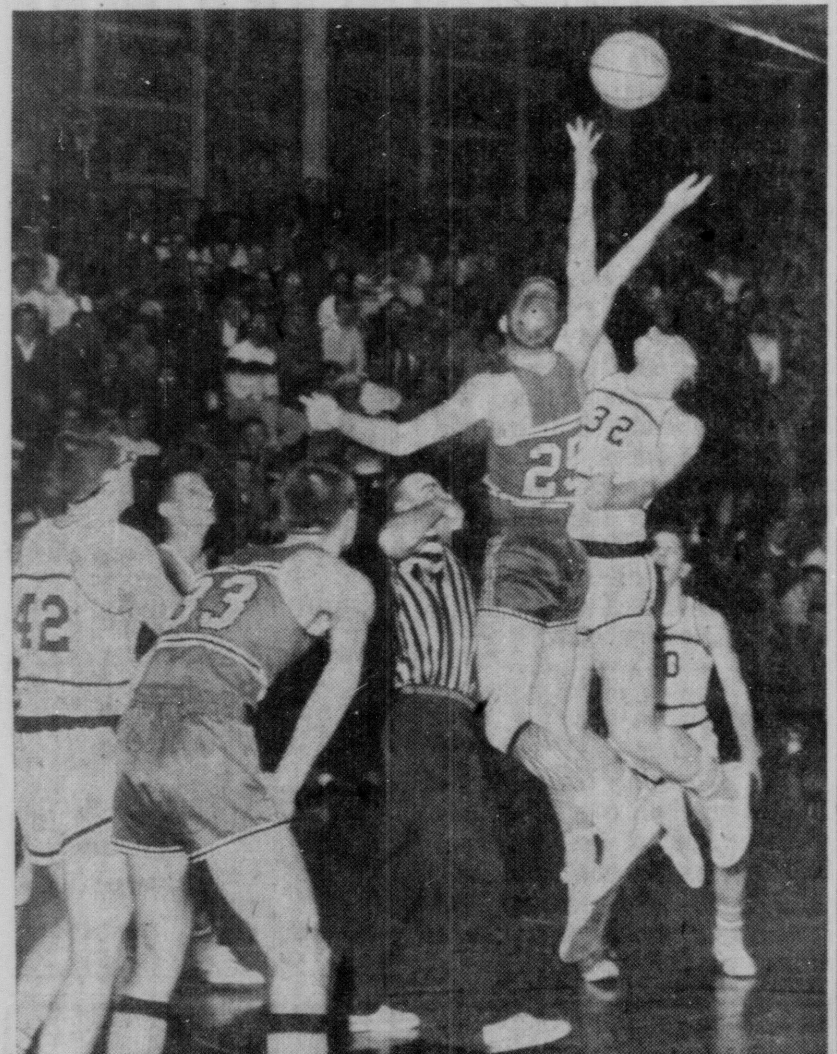
The varsity contest will be preceded by a junior - varsity preliminary at 7 o'clock in the Hillside gymnasium.

WILLOWBROOK bounced Antioch 78-61 for third place in the Fenton tournament and Bill Bornemann and Harlan Krafft were named to the all-star team. The Brooks opened with a 69-52 victory over Lake Park, fell before eventual champ Palatine 63-59, then rocked Antioch.

Proviso West Coach Joe Hartley has had trouble finding an effective alignment this winter but hopes to have his Panthers ready for the important stretch run in January and February.

Proviso's top scorer in Interim play is junior Les Worchester, a 6-3, 220-pounder who has pumped in 61 points in the seven league games. Backing Worchester are 5-11 soph Chuck Simon with 54 and 6-6 senior Ed Silkaitis with 48.

The Panthers own loop decisions over Deerfield (79-31) and Niles West (51-44) and have been bumped by East Leyden (60-49), Prospect (55-41), Glenbrook (71-40), Maine West (79-44), and West Leyden (53-47).



BATTLING FOR THIS tip are Don Skinner (25) of Palatine and Doug Rader (32) of Glenbrook during Friday's Fenton championship contest. Ready for action are Spartans Denny Pietrzak (42) and Randy Dean (10) along with Pirate Ron Kozlicki (33).

Joining the Blue Demons of Park Ridge will be host Fenton, Palatine, and Prospect.

First round bouts will get underway at 2 p.m. with the finals at 7 p.m. in the Fenton high gymnasium. Admission will be 50 cents for students with identification and $1.00 for adults.

At weight classes 95, 120, 138 and 168 Fenton will meet Maine East and Palatine will battle Prospect. At 103, 127, 145, and 180 it'll be Fenton vs. Palatine and Maine East vs. Prospect. At 112, 133, 154, and heavyweight the matches will be set up with Fenton vs. Prospect and Maine East vs. Palatine.

Team scoring will be based on ten points for first, seven for second, four for third, and two for fourth. In addition to scoring one point for a fall, forfeit, or default, a point shall also be awarded for each match won throughout the meet, except the final first and third place matches when the advancement point is not scored.

Prospect's Sophs Stop Niles West

Prospect's frosh-soph basketball Knights rolled past an outmanned Niles West team last week, 68-34, in an Interim league tussle.

Dan Sherman registered 18 points and Ron Moehling tossed in 17 as the young Knights chalked up their fourth straight victory.

Prospect jumped off to a 17-9 lead in the first period and held a 39-22 advantage at halftime.

Also scoring in double figures for the Knights were Dick Freyman and Tom McClellan with ten each.

Second Annual Meet

Ed Rudolph Wins Paddock Trophy in Skating Carnival

The pride of Northbrook, Ill. did it again.

Ed Rudolph, the National Senior men's champion, took the measure of some of the best skaters in the country and, in the process, won a second leg of the Paddock Publications trophy and the championship of the Senior Men's division in the Mt. Prospect Skating Club's 2nd Annual Winter Carnival last Sunday.

Rudolph was pushed hard by Ken Bartholomew, 14 times National champ, and Bob Fenn of New York, but there was never any doubt that he had the situation well in hand. He won the one-sixth mile and the half mile events and then completed a sweep in his division by taking the featured event of the meet, the Paddock Men's Mile, for the second consecutive year.

KAREN KAPER of the Pierce Skating Club also looked impressive in the Senior Women's division in winning the one-sixth and three-quarter mile races. Miss Kaper has not been defeated this year.

The meet was held at Lions Park in Mt. Prospect under almost perfect skating conditions. During the intermission, hundreds of tagged balloons were released with a prize to be given to the boy or girl whose name appears on the balloon which travels the greatest distance. Last year the winning balloon landed in Canada. In addition, Terry Browne, the World's Amateur Barrel Jumping Champion, entertained the crowd with his high-flying barrel-jumping feats and figure skating exhibitions were given by Dee Fee Behnson, Patty Hookansen and Mike and Janet Bickler.

THE HOST Mount Prospect Skating Club scored 16 points in the meet, 10 of which were contributed by two promising skaters in the Junior division, Jim Rybarczyk and Jim Zuckermandel.

Rybarczyk took a second in the 440 yard event and thirds in the one-sixth mile and half-mile races while Zuckermandel took a second place in the half-mile event. Other points were scored by Gary Jonland and Billy Grady in the Pony Boys division, the latter taking a second place in the one-sixth mile and a fourth in the half-mile races.

Next Saturday, Jan. 6, the Mt. Prospect Skating Club will travel to Lombard, Ill., for the Lilacia Championships and on Sunday, Jan. 7, will enter the Illinois State Outdoor Championships to be held at Lake Ellyn in Glen Ellyn.

Willowbrook Five To Meet Proviso Friday Evening

Willowbrook's varsity Warriors, fresh from a solid third place finish in the Fenton holiday tournament, will resume Interim league warfare this Friday evening when they journey to Proviso West in Hillside.

Coach Jim Toman's Villa Park crew stands 3-2 in the Interim and will be tackling a Proviso five that has won just two games in seven loop outings.

The varsity contest will be preceded by a junior - varsity preliminary at 7 o'clock in the Hillside gymnasium.

WILLOWBROOK bounced Antioch 78-61 for third place in the Fenton tournament and Bill Bornemann and Harlan Krafft were named to the all-star team. The Brooks opened with a 69-52 victory over Lake Park, fell before eventual champ Palatine 63-59, then rocked Antioch.

Proviso West Coach Joe Hartley has had trouble finding an effective alignment this winter but hopes to have his Panthers ready for the important stretch run in January and February.

Proviso's top scorer in Interim play is junior Les Worchester, a 6-3, 220-pounder who has pumped in 61 points in the seven league games. Backing Worchester are 5-11 soph Chuck Simon with 54 and 6-6 senior Ed Silkaitis with 48.

The Panthers own loop decisions over Deerfield (79-31) and Niles West (51-44) and have been bumped by East Leyden (60-49), Prospect (55-41), Glenbrook (71-40), Maine West (79-44), and West Leyden (53-47).

Second Annual Meet

Ed Rudolph Wins Paddock Trophy in Skating Carnival

The pride of Northbrook, Ill. did it again.

Ed Rudolph, the National Senior men's champion, took the measure of some of the best skaters in the country and, in the process, won a second leg of the Paddock Publications trophy and the championship of the Senior Men's division in the Mt. Prospect Skating Club's 2nd Annual Winter Carnival last Sunday.

Rudolph was pushed hard by Ken Bartholomew, 14 times National champ, and Bob Fenn of New York, but there was never any doubt that he had the situation well in hand. He won the one-sixth mile and the half mile events and then completed a sweep in his division by taking the featured event of the meet, the Paddock Men's Mile, for the second consecutive year.

KAREN KAPER of the Pierce Skating Club also looked impressive in the Senior Women's division in winning the one-sixth and three-quarter mile races. Miss Kaper has not been defeated this year.

The meet was held at Lions Park in Mt. Prospect under almost perfect skating conditions. During the intermission, hundreds of tagged balloons were released with a prize to be given to the boy or girl whose name appears on the balloon which travels the greatest distance. Last year the winning balloon landed in Canada. In addition, Terry Browne, the World's Amateur Barrel Jumping Champion, entertained the crowd with his high-flying barrel-jumping feats and figure skating exhibitions were given by Dee Fee Behnson, Patty Hookansen and Mike and Janet Bickler.

THE HOST Mount Prospect Skating Club scored 16 points in the meet, 10 of which were contributed by two promising skaters in the Junior division, Jim Rybarczyk and Jim Zuckermandel.

Rybarczyk took a second in the 440 yard event and thirds in the one-sixth mile and half-mile races while Zuckermandel took a second place in the half-mile event. Other points were scored by Gary Jonland and Billy Grady in the Pony Boys division, the latter taking a second place in the one-sixth mile and a fourth in the half-mile races.

Next Saturday, Jan. 6, the Mt. Prospect Skating Club will travel to Lombard, Ill., for the Lilacia Championships and on Sunday, Jan. 7, will enter the Illinois State Outdoor Championships to be held at Lake Ellyn in Glen Ellyn.

JUST DOGS

by DAVE TERRILL

First of the year—

The new year gets off to a fast start as far as the dog show going public is concerned. The Weaton Kennel club will hold its seventh annual AKC licensed All-Breed Dog Show and Obedience Trial on Sunday, Jan. 14, at the Du-Page County Fairgrounds in Wheaton.

Eleven judges will be on hand to pick the winners in this mid-winter event which starts the season for shows in the area. The judging will get under way at 9 a. m. and the final curtain comes down at 9 p. m. It should be a busy day, as this event is sort of a jumping off point for many folks who are starting out new dogs in the show ring for the first time. As mentioned a few weeks ago, if you want any more information contact Robert Hoyt at NE 4-3414.

Help needed—

Watching a young mother struggle along with a dog on a leash, an armful of bundles and a youngster who was of no help at all, trying to do some holiday shopping, got your editor to thinking about how important even a small amount of obedience training can be.

It is sometimes amusing to watch people a sthey take a do gout for a walk, regardless if the dog is on or off leash. In many cases the dog is trainin gthe owner when it should be the other way around. People just can't seem to realize that a little time and a few sharp corrections can eliminate that tugging, pulling dog that wants to go in just the opposite direction. The case in point was rather a sad one, the mother just could not compete with a dog that ended up by wrapping itself leash and all around both mother and the small youngster.

THERE ARE enough books and also dog training clubs where a person can obtain the desired information to at least train the family dog to the point of where it will do what you want it to do and not what it wants to do.

With new dogs for Christmas gifts in many homes, owners would do well to think about training the new member of the family to do at least some basic things, such as walk at heel, come when called, sit, down, stay, and also the meaning of the word "no."

It takes a little time, but the results are well worth the effort and at least you end up training the dog, and not the dog training you.

By the boards—

The year 1961 went out with a few changes, needless to say the changes were in dogs also. The Boxer has dropped out of the top 10 from the standpoint of registration by the AKC. So it goes, the fickle public. This is the first time in years that the Boxer has not been in the limelight.

Winnie Lohse Entered

Bowlers Open Play In 21st BPAA Meet

Winnie Lohse of Palatine is listed among an outstanding field competing for top prizes at the 21st Annual BPAA All-Star tournament which began yesterday (Wednesday) in the Miami Beach Convention Hall.

Mrs. Lohse qualified for the tournament, which will be concluded January 13, by capturing top individual honors in the Northwest Suburban BPA eliminations last October.

Most prominent in the records for the BPAA event are Don Carter and Billy Welu of St. Louis, Sylvia Wene of Philadelphia and Marion Ladewig of Grand Rapids, Mich.

CARTER, A four-time champion, hasn't finished first since the 1953 meet at Minneapolis. Welu won in 1959 at Buffalo, N. Y., Miss Wene was victor in 1955 and 1960 while Mrs. Ladewig took the last of her seven All-Star titles in 1959.

Welu is now atop the lifetime All-Star averages with 207-76 for 482 games, having passed Carter with his performance a year ago at San Bernardino, Cal., when he finished fourth and Durable Don missed the finals for the first time in 10 straight years. Carter now has a 206-842 average for 989 games.

Bill Lillard of St. Louis, 1955 champion, stands third in this department with 205-1031 for 1,136 games, followed by Ray Bluth of St. Louis with 205-639 for 744 games.

CARTER IS THE leading all-time All-Star money winner with $19,977.50 from 10 tourneys and is followed by Harry Smith of St. Louis, 1960 victor, with $12,050, and Lillard with $11,655.

Mrs. Ladewig is still highest in the lifetime All-Star women's averages with 196-203 for 664 games and Miss Wene ranks second with 192-118 for 568 games, followed by defending champion Phyllis Notaro of Brant, N. Y., with 190-140 for 304 games.

Marvelous Marion also leads the all-time money winners with $13,665 from 12 tourneys and Miss Wene again is second with $9,247.50, followed by Miss Notaro with $6,087.

MRS. LADEWIG has been in all 12 women's finals, never finishing below fourth place, while Sylvia has been in 10 finals, missing last year when she was injured in a fall from a bus and had to withdraw.

A number of scoring records will be challenged this year if tne last few tournaments, especially the 1961 test, are any indication of the trend.

The field of 240 men last year averaged 198-6915 overall, an all-time high and far above the 190-1021 clip at which 71 bowlers operated in the initial tourney in December, 1941.

Bill Tucker of St. Louis smashed a few marks on his way to the title. He rolled the highest average in the finals for a winner, 217-36, and also had the highest 64-game final round pinfall of 13,924, the best 100-game (entire tournament) pinfall of 21,535, as well as the top four-game series in the finals, 995.

EQUALED LAST year but, of course, unbeatable is the single game record for the preliminary round, 300. Lillard connected for a 12-striker on the fourth day on an 8 a.m. squad but it didn't help him into the finals.

In all, seven men have rolled perfect games in the All-Star over the years, Ray Schanen of Milwaukee, Connie Schwoegler of Madison, Wis., Carl Richard of Joplin, Mo., Buzz Fazio of Detroit, Junie McMahon of River Edge, N. J., Lou Campi of Dumont, N. J., and Lillard.

Bill Bunetta of Chicago, who emerged as the qualifying round leader with a 36-game total of 7808, second only to the 7906 posted by Ray Bluth of St. Louis in 1960, set a best first 30-games total record of 6555 at San Bernardino.

THE FIELD OF 96 women a year ago averaged 183-2145 overall, not quite equal to the record of 186-384 set in 1960.

All of the distaff records broken at San Bernardino were in the qualifying round and Mrs. Ladewig accounted for four of them. She had the best first four-game total of 900, the best first eight-game total of 1714, the best first 20-game total of 4087 and the highest 24-game qualifying round aggregate of 4898.

Robbie Frey, then of Dallas, Tex., and now of Torrance, Cal., had the best first 12-game total of 2530 and the best first 16-game total of 3324. Elvira Toepfer of Detroit had the highest semi-final round 12-game cluster of 2483.

Only one 300 game has ever been registered in the womens division of the All-Star. Miss Wene did it in the preliminary round of the 1960 tourney at Omaha, Neb.

Paddock Classic League

Kahn, Pro Sport Center Cop Four Points to Claim Lead

The top three teams in the Paddock Classic Traveling League's first half standings are again at the top as second half play got under way Saturday night at Beverly Lane in Arlington Heights.

The main difference is that first half champion Nelson Realty of Mt. Prospect is in third place despite the night's team series, 3006. Taking over top position by virtue of winning all four points are S. M. Kahn Electrical Contractors of Chicago and Pro Sport Center of Mt. Prospect.

Kahn, maintaining a steady pace, set Jeffery Lanes of Wheeling down in all three games. Pro Sport Center, shooting 927 or better every time, dealt Moyle Construction of Carpentersville three losses as the best it could do was between 901 and 907.

THE ONLY reason that Nelson Realty didn't join the two league leaders was that Chris Pulos of Crystal Lake rolled the night's high individual game, 262, for Martinetti's Restaurant of Crystal Lake to pin a 41-pin loss on the Nelson Realty five.

Then Nelson Realty, rolling out of Bowlway in Elgin, hit games of 1016 and 1062 to make sure as three members hit 600 or better. Leroy Papineau of Algonquin had a 640 total, including games of 227 and 214. Casper Dewitz of Chicago netted 608 on games of 221 and 229 for a 602 total. As could be expected, all the high scores were in the second and third games. Pulos finished Saturday with a 641 series, second high for the league.

Leading the Paddock Classic and the Kahn team which bowls out of River-Rand in Des Plaines was Bob Rogers of Des Plaines. He had games of 192, 204 and 252 for a 648 series which boosted his league-leading average to within 11 pins of 200 for 48 games.

NO ONE ELSE in Kahn's match against Jeffery Lanes had a 600 series. Despite a 224 by Ed Melton of Northbrook in the opener, a 213 by George Stone of Deerfield in the second game, and a 211 by Hec Healey of Northbrook in the last game, Jeffery was unable to win a single game.

Like Jeffery, Moyle Construction, rolling put of Country Lanes in Lake Zurich, failed to come up with an individual 600 series. Herb Lohman of Lake Zurich, coming up with the best game, 211, and best series, 571.

On the other side, Paul Zubak of Elk Grove Village pounded home a 627 total and teammate Earl Fenimore of Arlington posted 617. Fenimore had 210 and Zubak 203 in the opener. Zubak hit 211 in the next game and in the final Zubak and Fenimore each had 213, aided by a 206 by Ward Siewert of Palatine.

ALTHOUGH Beverly Lanes won only one game, its margin of victory was enough to enable it to tie Wheeling Furniture of Wheeling for the point for high series. Herb Engstrom of Palatine with 617 and Don Oberg of Itasca with 606 paced Wheeling Furniture, which calls Hi-Way Recreation in Palatine home, and Warren Walter of Arlington Heights was high for Beverly with 590.

After Wheeling Furniture had won the opener on a 211 by Engstrom and a 207 by Oberg, Beverly waxed hot as Dick Nickol of Palatine had 221, Lee Adams of Mt. Prospect 212 and Walter 209. In the final, it was Wheeling Furniture winning with Oberg getting 211 and Ted Zimmerman of Des Plaines 200.

One Change Found In Examination Of Two Systems

Last spring at a meeting of the Rules committee and advisory board of the Paddock Classic traveling league it was decided to adopt the "4-point system" of determining championships instead of the won-loss system used in the past.

Under this new system one point is awarded for each game won and one point for the high series on each night of competition.

With the first round of the Paddock Classic league for 1961-62 now a matter of record an examination of the "old" and "new" systems of determining champions indicated that in only one case would there be any difference in team ranking.

UNDER THE won-loss system Moyle Construction would have finished fifth in the first round of firing with Jeffery Lanes sixth. As it turned out, Jeffery edged Moyle by one point under the "4-point system."

Elsewhere in the eight-team alignment, final positions would have remained the same with Nelson Realty in first, Pro Sport Center in second, Kahn Electric in third, Beverly Lanes in fourth, Martinetti's in seventh, and Wheeling Furniture in eighth.

Nelson Realty won the first half crown with 38 points. Under the won-loss system the realtors racked up 27 victories in 48 games.

Local Skaters Gain 17 Points

On Saturday, Dec. 30, twenty-nine members of the Mount Prospect Skating Club skated in the North Shore Open Meet at Northbrook, Ill. This was the first outdoor meet of the year and the local club showed the beneficial results of its intensive training program and practice sessions by scoring 17 points.

Jim Rybarczyk of Mt. Prospect showed mid-season form in winning the 440 yd. race in the Junior Boys' division and tied Mike Passerella of Northwest Skating Club for the individual Junior Boys championship. Also in the Junior Boys 440 yd. final event, Jim Zuckermandel of Mt. Prospect took a fourth place medal.

In the Pony Boys' division (8 and 9 year old skaters) Bert Gastorf, Billy Grady and Dick Solley came through with impressive performances and won medals in the one-sixth and one-twelfth mile races.

Bob Grady finished second to National champ Ray Novak in both his Juvenile Boys' events, the one-sixth mile and 440 yd. events and scored six points for the Mt. Prospect club.

17 More

Women's Classic

Moyle Construction Off to Fast Start

Moyle Construction of Carpentersville isn't waiting around this half. Finishing fourth in the first half of the Paddock Women's Classic Traveling Leaague, Moyle handed Morton Pontiac of Arlington Heights three consecutive losses Saturday at Sims Bowl in Des Plaines.

This gave Moyle Construction, rolling out of Country Lanes in Lake Zurich, the second half lead as runners-up Steve's Restaurant of Wheeling and Ridge Motors of Des Plaines each lost one game.

Individually, Rosemary Babich of North Chicago made other members of the league sit up and take notice as she rolled 642, within one pin of the season's high series. She had games of 245, 219 and 178.

MOYLE Construction had a relatively easy tife against Morton Pontiac, which bowls out of Beverly Lanes in Arlington Heights, until the last game, which was a 10-pin squeaker. For that win, Moyle can thank Bonnie Kuhn of Mundelein who registered 206 for a 555 series. Morton Pontiac's high series came from Carol Haste of River Grove with 529.

Steve's Restaurant, first round titlist, had games of 867, 874 and 882, which should have netted it three triumphs. However, Northfield Bowl came up with an 883 middle game with a trio of 180's to upset the champions. The only 200 game in the match was a 220 by Ann Neumann of Morton Grove who finished with a 553 series.

The middle game in which Rosemary Babich had her 245 game was the lone loss for Ridge Motors of Des Plaines. A 215 by Connie Labo of Rolling Meadows gave River-Rand its only triumph. Ridge Motors won the opener on Rosemary's 219 game and the last game on team balance. While Rosemary was high for Ridge Motors with 642, Alice Ulrich of Chicago paced River-Rand Bowl with 553.

Next Saturday action shifts to another Des Plaines bowling center, River-Rand, where Steve's Restaurant and Ridge Motors will meet in the top game.

Winnie Lohse Entered

Bowlers Open Play In 21st BPAA Meet

Winnie Lohse of Palatine is listed among an outstanding field competing for top prizes at the 21st Annual BPAA All-Star tournament which began yesterday (Wednesday) in the Miami Beach Convention Hall.

Mrs. Lohse qualified for the tournament, which will be concluded January 13, by capturing top individual honors in the Northwest Suburban BPA eliminations last October.

Most prominent in the records for the BPAA event are Don Carter and Billy Welu of St. Louis, Sylvia Wene of Philadelphia and Marion Ladewig of Grand Rapids, Mich.

CARTER, A four-time champion, hasn't finished first since the 195[illegible] meet at Minneapolis. Welu won in 1959 at Buffalo, N. Y., Miss Wene was victor in 1955 and 1960 while Mrs. Ladewig took the last of her seven All-Star titles in 1959.

Welu is now atop the lifetime All-Star averages with 207-76 for 482 games, having passed Carter with his performance a year ago at San Bernardino, Cal., when he finished fourth and Durable Don missed the finals for the first time in 10 straight years. Carter now has a 206-842 average for 989 games.

Bill Lillard of St. Louis, 1955 champion, stands third in this department with 205-1031 for 1,136 games, followed by Ray Bluth of St. Louis with 205-639 for 744 games.

CARTER IS THE leading all-time All-Star money winner with $19,977.50 from 10 tourneys and is followed by Harry Smith of St. Louis, 1960 victor, with $12,050, and Lillard with $11,655.

Mrs. Ladewig is still highest in the lifetime All-Star women's averages with 196-203 for 664 games and Miss Wene ranks second with 192-118 for 568 games, followed by defending champion Phyllis Notaro of Brant, N. Y., with 190-140 for 304 games.

Marvelous Marion also leads the all-time money winners with $13,665 from 12 tourneys and Miss Wene again is second with $9,247.50, followed by Miss Notaro with $6,087.

MRS. LADEWIG has been in all 12 women's finals, never finishing below fourth place, while Sylvia has been in 10 finals, missing last year when she was injured in a fall from a bus and had to withdraw.

A number of scoring records will be challenged this year if the last few tournaments, especially the 1961 test, are any indication of the trend.

The field of 240 men last year averaged 198-6915 overall, an all-time high and far above the 190-1021 clip at which 71 bowlers operated in the initial tourney in December, 1941.

Bill Tucker of St. Louis smashed a few marks on his way to the title. He rolled the highest average in the finals for a winner, 217-36, and also had the highest 64-game final round pinfall of 13,924, the best 100-game (entire tournament) pinfall of 21,535, as well as the top four-game series in the finals, 995.

EQUALED LAST year but, of course, unbeatable is the single game record for the preliminary round, 300. Lillard connected for a 12-striker on the fourth day on an 8 a.m. squad but it didn't help him into the finals.

In all, seven men have rolled perfect games in the All-Star over the years, Ray Schanen of Milwaukee, Connie Schwoegler of Madison, Wis., Carl Richard of Joplin, Mo., Buzz Fazio of Detroit, Junie McMahon of River Edge, N. J., Lou Campi of Dumont, N. J., and Lillard.

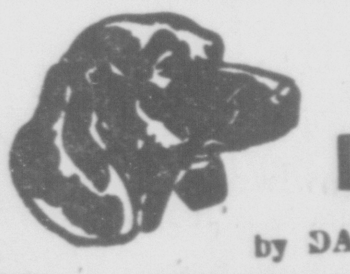
Bill Bunetta of Chicago, who emerged as the qualifying round leader with a 36-game total of 7808, second only to the 7906 posted by Ray Bluth of St. Louis in 1960, set a best first 30-games total record of 6555 at San Bernardino.

THE FIELD OF 96 women a year ago averaged 183-2145 overall, not quite equal to the record of 186-384 set in 1960.

All of the distaff records broken at San Bernardino were in the qualifying round and Mrs. Ladewig accounted for four of them. She had the best first four-game total of 900, the best first eight-game total of 1714, the best first 20-game total of 4087 and the highest 24-game qualifying round aggregate of 4898.

Robbie Frey, then of Dallas, Tex., and now of Torrance, Cal., had the best first 12-game total of 2530 and the best first 16-game total of 3324. Elvira Toepfer of Detroit had the highest semi-final round 12-game cluster of 2483.

Only one 300 game has ever been registered in the womens division of the All-Star. Miss Wene did it in the preliminary round of the 1960 tourney at Omaha, Neb.



JUST DOGS

by DAVE TERRILL

First of the year—

The new year gets off to a fast start as far as the dog show going public is concerned. The Weaton Kennel club will hold its seventh annual AKC licensed All-Breed Dog Show and Obedience Trial on Sunday, Jan. 14, at the DuPage County Fairgrounds in Wheaton.

Eleven judges will be on hand to pick the winners in this midwinter event which starts the season for shows in the area. The judging will get under way at 9 a. m. and the final curtain comes down at 9 p. m. It should be a busy day, as this event is sort of a jumping off point for many folks who are starting out new dogs in the show ring for the first time. As mentioned a few weeks ago, if you want any more information contact Robert Hoyt at NE 4-3414.

Watching a young mother struggle along with a dog on a leash, an armful of bundles and a youngster who was of no help at all, trying to do some holiday shopping, got your editor to thinking about how important even a small amount of obedience training can be.

It is sometimes amusing to watch people a sthey take a do gout for a walk, regardless if the dog is on or off leash. In many cases the dog is trainin gthe owner when it should be the other way around. People just can't seem to realize that a little time and a few sharp corrections can eliminate that tugging, pulling dog that wants to go in just the opposite direction. The case in point was rather a sad one, the mother just could not compete with a dog that ended up by wrapping itself leash and all around both mother and the small youngster.

THERE ARE enough books and also dog training clubs where a person can obtain the desired information to at least train the family dog to the point of where it will do what you want it to do and not what it wants to do.

With new dogs for Christmas gifts in many homes, owners would do well to think about training the new member of the family to do at least some basic things, such as walk at heel, come when called, sit, down, stay, and also the meaning of the word "no."

It takes a little time, but the results are well worth the effort and at least you end up training the dog, and not the dog training you.

By the boards—

The year 1961 went out with a few changes, needless to say the changes were in dogs also. The Boxer has dropped out of the top 10 from the standpoint of registration by the AKC. So it goes, the fickle public. This is the first time in years that the Boxer has not been in the limelight.

Paddock Classic League

Kahn, Pro Sport Center Cop Four Points to Claim Lead

The top three teams in the Paddock Classic Traveling League's first half standings are again at the top as second half play got under way Saturday night at Beverly Lane in Arlington Heights.

The main difference is that first half champion Nelson Realty of Mt. Prospect is in third place despite the night's team series, 3006. Taking over top position by virtue of winning all four points are S. M. Kahn Electrical Contractors of Chicago and Pro Sport Center of Mt. Prospect.

Kahn, maintaining a steady pace, set Jeffery Lanes of Wheeling down in all three games. Pro Sport Center, shooting 927 or better every time, dealt Moyle Construction of Carpentersville three losses as the best it could do was between 901 and 907.

THE ONLY reason that Nelson Realty didn't join the two league leaders was that Chris Pulos of Crystal Lake rolled the night's high individual game, 262, for Martinetti's Restaurant of Crystal Lake to pin a 41-pin loss on the Nelson Realty five.

Then Nelson Realty, rolling out of Bowlway in Elgin, hit games of 1016 and 1062 to make sure as three members hit 600 or better. Leroy Papineau of Algonquin had a 640 total, including games of 227 and 214. Casper Dewitz of Chicago netted 608 on games of 221 and 229 for a 602 total. As could be expected, all the high scores were in the second and third games. Pulos finished Saturday with a 641 series, second high for the league.

Leading the Paddock Classic and the Kahn team which bowls out of River-Rand in Des Plaines was Bob Rogers of Des Plaines. He had games of 192, 204 and 252 for a 648 series which boosted his league-leading average to within 11 pins of 200 for 48 games.

NO ONE ELSE in Kahn's match against Jeffery Lanes had a 600 series. Despite a 224 by Ed Melton of Northbrook in the opener, a 213 by George Stone of Deerfield in the second game, and a 211 by Hec Healey of Northbrook in the last game, Jeffery was unable to win a single game.

Like Jeffery, Moyle Construction, rolling put of Country Lanes in Lake Zurich, failed to come up with an individual 600 series. Herb Lohman of Lake Zurich, coming up with the best game, 211, and best series, 571.

On the other side, Paul Zubak of Elk Grove Village pounded home a 627 total and teammate Earl Fenimore of Arlington posted 617. Fenimore had 210 and Zubak 203 in the opener. Zubak hit 211 in the next game and in the final Zubak and Fenimore each had 213, aided by a 206 by Ward Siewert of Palatine.

ALTHOUGH Beverly Lanes won only one game, its margin of victory was enough to enable it to tie Wheeling Furniture of Wheeling for the point for high series. Herb Engstrom of Palatine with 617 and Don Oberg of Itasca with 606 paced Wheeling Furniture, which calls Hi-Way Recreation in Palatine home, and Warren Walter of Arlington Heights was high for Beverly with 590.

After Wheeling Furniture had won the opener on a 211 by Engstrom and a 207 by Oberg, Beverly waxed hot as Dick Nickol of Palatine had 221, Lee Adams of Mt. Prospect 212 and Walter 209. In the final, it was Wheeling Furniture winning with Oberg getting 211 and Ted Zimmerman of Des Plaines 200.

One Change Found In Examination Of Two Systems

Last spring at a meeting of the Rules committee and advisory board of the Paddock Classic traveling league it was decided to adopt the "4-point system" of determining championships instead of the won-loss system used in the past.

Under this new system one point is awarded for each game won and one point for the high series on each night of competition.

With the first round of the Paddock Classic league for 1961-62 now a matter of record an examination of the "old" and "new" systems of determining champions indicated that in only one case would there be any difference in team ranking.

UNDER THE won-loss system Moyle Construction would have finished fifth in the first round of firing with Jeffery Lanes sixth. As it turned out, Jeffery edged Moyle by one point under the "4-point system."

Elsewhere in the eight-team alignment, final positions would have remained the same with Nelson Realty in first, Pro Sport Center in second, Kahn Electric in third, Beverly Lanes in fourth, Martinetti's in seventh, and Wheeling Furniture in eighth.

Nelson Realty won the first half crown with 38 points. Under the won-loss system the realtors racked up 27 victories in 48 games.

Local Skaters Gain 17 Points

On Saturday, Dec. 30, twenty-nine members of the Mount Prospect Skating Club skated in the North Shore Open Meet at Northbrook, Ill. This was the first outdoor meet of the year and the local club showed the beneficial results of its intensive training program and practice sessions by scoring 17 points.

Jim Rybarczyk of Mt. Prospect showed mid-season form in winning the 440 yd. race in the Junior Boys' division and tied Mike Passerella of Northwest Skating Club for the individual Junior Boys championship. Also in the Junior Boys 440 yd. final event, Jim Zuckermandel of Mt. Prospect took a fourth place medal.

In the Pony Boys' division (8 and 9 year old skaters) Bert Gastorf, Billy Grady and Dick Solley came through with impressive performances and won medals in the one-sixth and one-twelfth mile races.

Bob Grady finished second to National champ Ray Novak in both his Juvenile Boys' events, the one-sixth mile and 440 yd. events and scored six points for the Mt. Prospect club.

17 More

Women's Classic

Moyle Construction Off to Fast Start

Moyle Construction of Carpentersville isn't waiting around this half. Finishing fourth in the first half of the Paddock Women's Classic Traveling Leaague, Moyle handed Morton Pontiac of Arlington Heights three consecutive losses Saturday at Sims Bowl in Des Plaines.

This gave Moyle Construction, rolling out of Country Lanes in Lake Zurich, the second half lead as runners-up Steve's Restaurant of Wheeling and Ridge Motors of Des Plaines each lost one game.

Individually, Rosemary Babich of North Chicago made other members of the league sit up and take notice as she rolled 642, within one pin of the season's high series. She had games of 245, 219 and 178.

MOYLE Construction had a relatively easy tife against Morton Pontiac, which bowls out of Beverly Lanes in Arlington Heights, until the last game, which was a 10-pin squeaker. For that win, Moyle can thank Bonnie Kuhn of Mundelein who registered 206 for a 555 series. Morton Pontiac's high series came from Carol Haste of River Grove with 529.

Steve's Restaurant, first round titlist, had games of 867, 874 and 882, which should have netted it three triumphs. However, Northfield Bowl came up with an 883 middle game with a trio of 180's to upset the champions. The only 200 game in the match was a 220 by Ann Neumann of Morton Grove who finished with a 553 series.

The middle game in which Rosemary Babich had her 245 game was the lone loss for Ridge Motors of Des Plaines. A 215 by Connie Labo of Rolling Meadows gave River-Rand its only triumph. Ridge Motors won the opener on Rosemary's 219 game and the last game on team balance. While Rosemary was high for Ridge Motors with 642, Alice Ulrich of Chicago paced River-Rand Bowl with 553.

Next Saturday action shifts to another Des Plaines bowling center, River-Rand, where Steve's Restaurant and Ridge Motors will meet in the top game.

Paddock Meet

List Startng Schedule for Men's Tourney

Women's Entries Due By Saturday, Dec. 30

The men's alignment is shaping up.

Many entries for the Paddock men's bowling tournament were still pouring in over the weekend, though the list below of starting times is fairly complete, according to tourney promoter Bob Paddock.

Bowlers are urged to check with their team captains to make sure they are aware of times scheduled for competition. Complete list of starting times and lanes, handicaps and other data will appear next week.

Eight positions still are open for the 1:30 p. m. shift on Saturday, Jan. 13.

THE BIG DAY IS APPROACHING for the men! Competition will be held on Saturday and Sunday, Jan. 13-14, at Gunnell's Bowling Lanes in Mt. Prospect.

Saturday is an important day for the women as entry blanks and team entry fees are due at Tournament Headquarters, Paddock Publications, Arlington Heights. First place teams in the various local leagues as of Saturday, Dec. 30, are eligible for the gals' tourney slated for Jan. 21 at Pioneer Lanes in Addison.

League secretaries and team captains are urged to make time requests known to Mrs. Phillips (CLearbrook 3-1520) as soon as possible so that tourney promoters can schedule competition to the desires of the bowlers wherever feasible.

Free Tickets for Fishing Derby at Standard Dealers

Four talented fishermen will soon be spending ten-day winter vacations in the Caribbean. They will be the top winners in the Second Annual Standard Oil Dealers 1962 Trout Fishing Derby to be held in conjunction with the Sports, Boat and Vacation Show at Navy Pier, January 13th through the 21st. The event is sponsored by the Standard Dealers' Advisory Council, and in last year's competition over 50,000 fishermen participated.

Free tickets for the fishing derby are now available at local Standard Oil dealers. No purchase is necessary, and the tickets entitle you to free fishing, the right to keep the fish you catch, and also to be eligible for a number of valuable prizes. In addition to the four grand prizes, there will be daily prizes of an outboard fishing motor, a nationally advertised rod, reel and tackle box, and one nationally advertised rod and reel.

The winners are determined by the largest number of trout caught in a given period, and in case of ties the winners are determined by the total weight of the catch.

All Standard Oil dealers in the area served by the Paddock Publications, have tickets for the fishing derby.

"One lump, or two?"

Maybe the enthusiastic keglers who do their timber toppling here don't outnumber the nation's rabbit population, but they run into a respectable number. Stop in for a minute, look over the layout, and try a few frames on our ABC sanctioned alleys.

List Startng Schedule for Men's Tourney

Women's Entries Due By Saturday, Dec. 30

The men's alignment is shaping up.

Many entries for the Paddock men's bowling tournament were still pouring in over the weekend, though the list below of starting times is fairly complete, according to tourney promoter Bob Paddock.

Bowlers are urged to check with their team captains to make sure they are aware of times scheduled for competition. Complete list of starting times and lanes, handicaps and other data will appear next week.

Eight positions still are open for the 1:30 p. m. shift on Saturday, Jan. 13.

THE BIG DAY IS APPROACHING for the men! Competition will be held on Saturday and Sunday, Jan. 13-14, at Gunnell's Bowling Lanes in Mt. Prospect.

Saturday is an important day for the women as entry blanks and team entry fees are due at Tournament Headquarters, Paddock Publications, Arlington Heights. First place teams in the various local leagues as of Saturday, Dec. 30, are eligible for the gals' tourney slated for Jan. 21 at Pioneer Lanes in Addison.

League secretaries and team captains are urged to make time requests known to Mrs. Phillips (CLearbrook 3-1520) as soon as possible so that tourney promoters can schedule competition to the desires of the bowlers wherever feasible.

Free Tickets for Fishing Derby at Standard Dealers

Four talented fishermen will soon be spending ten-day winter vacations in the Caribbean. They will be the top winners in the Second Annual Standard Oil Dealers 1962 Trout Fishing Derby to be held in conjunction with the Sports, Boat and Vacation Show at Navy Pier, January 13th through the 21st. The event is sponsored by the Standard Dealers' Advisory Council, and in last year's competition over 50,000 fishermen participated.

Free tickets for the fishing derby are now available at local Standard Oil dealers. No purchase is necessary, and the tickets entitle you to free fishing, the right to keep the fish you catch, and also to be eligible for a number of valuable prizes. In addition to the four grand prizes, there will be daily prizes of an outboard fishing motor, a nationally advertised rod, reel and tackle box, and one nationally advertised rod and reel.

The winners are determined by the largest number of trout caught in a given period, and in case of ties the winners are determined by the total weight of the catch.

All Standard Oil dealers in the area served by the Paddock Publications, have tickets for the fishing derby.

Beauty Plays a Part In Community's Life

Just as man does not live by bread alone, good schools and a sound village government do not constitute the entire assets of a village or contribute exclusively to its attractiveness to industry or prospective residents.

Beauty plays a part, perhaps a vital one.

During 1962, Arlington Heights residents can expect vigorous action in a number of areas which will affect the appearance of the village, particularly with regard to downtown revitalization, beautifying the railroad right-of-way, and a reforestation program.

THESE MATTERS received serious attention during 1961 and with the groundwork laid and opinions gathered, action can be expected during 1962.

Revitalization of the downtown area is of prime although not exclusive concern. A big step was taken with sale of the old village hall. Jewel Tea will build a large modern facility on the site, and another large department store or similar facility is talked of for the immediate area.

More definite aspects of this problem may be explored next Monday at the village board's first meeting of the new year, when a committee report is expected on a proposal for vacation of part of Davis st. adjacent to the Arlington Heights National bank, and creation of more parking spaces and a "commuter" street along the railroad track.

THIS IS ONLY a part, however, of the bigger problem of appearance and parking involving the whole downtown area including the area north of the railroad tracks. With the sale of the village hall, the administration opened the door for more extensive remodeling of the business district, and has since indicated it will be receptive to proposals from merchant groups for initiation of an overall development program.

Individually, more than one village board member recommends active participation of a citizens committee to help in planning ways to make attractive the railroad right-of-way along Northwest hwy.

This committee's function could be extended to include helping determine what trees to plant in residential areas as part of a comprehensive forestation program.

VILLAGE MANAGER L. A. Hanson has done preliminary groundwork on a reforestation program, and with the urging of Trustee Norval Stephens caused a tree survey to be taken.

The next step will be to determine priorities for planting and types of trees to be planted. Planning of this nature can be expected during the remaining months of winter, with planting beginning this spring.

Action concerning renovation of the downtown area will depend primarily on formation of a coordinated plan of development by village merchants and the village board which would be mutually beneficial to the merchants and the village as a whole. (A

'Miracle Worker' Review For Arlington Women

Louise Watkins, reviewer of books and plays, will present the broadway hit, "The Miracle Worker," at the January meeting of the literature study group of Arlington Heights Woman's club. The program will be presented at 1:30 p.m. in the Federal Savings and Loan community room, Arlington Heights.

"The Miracle Worker" was written by William Gibson and tells the story of the early life of Helen Keller and her encounter with a world she could neither see nor hear. It is the story of the late Annie Sullivan who taught Helen Keller.

THIS PLAY was one of three chosen by the state department to represent the United States on a tour of Europe and Latin America. Currently it is playing in Tel-Aviv. Mrs. Watkins is a graduate of Christian college in Columbia, Mo., and the University of Oklahoma school of drama, and attended the American Academy of Dramatic Art in New York City.

Hostesses for the day will be Mrs. Douglas Schinke and Mrs. G.Rex Volz, who may be called at CL 5-6981 or CL 9-1230 for reservations. (A

Notes from Arlington Acres

Marie Marshall CLearbrook 5-2936

A welcome to Arlington Acres goes to Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Dassonville who, with sons Dennis and Dale, have recently moved to 428 S. Phelps from Mount Prospect. Mr. Dassonville is with Westinghouse Air Brake company of Chicago.

Dale celebrated his December 27 birthday a few days late with a bowling party for several friends, after which the group returned to Dale's house for lunch.

David Kucera, son of the William Bayuks, 408 S. Forrest, 6 December 28, was guest of honor at lunch attended by his grandparents, Mrs. Anthony Kucera of Chicago and Mr. and Mrs. Richard Niemz of Edgebrook.

December 30 was Marty Lindquist's ninth birthday and his dad took him and his brother, Teddy, with friends, Ricky Baranowski and Mike O'Neill, to the movies at Golf Mill. Following this they went to the Choo-Choo inn at Des Plaines for hamburgers and then returned to Marty's home, 436 S. Prindle, for cake and ice cream. Marty is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl K. Lindquist.

THREE-YEAR-OLD Nancy Johnson frightened her parents, the S. L. Johnsons, 512 S. Prindle, last week when she swallowed medicine not intended for her. Nancy had her stomach washed and is now fully recovered.

Mrs. Leo Smolinski, 2105 E. Grove, took five cub scouts on a trip to the Northwest Obedience Club dog training class, Palatine, December 27. The boys were Scott Nye of Greenview Estates and Brian Smolinski, John Kruse, Steve Post and Dave Brady of Arlington Acres.

When Janice May, co-ed daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Al May, 509 S. Prindle, came home for Christmas, she had no idea that one week of her vacation would be spent in Detroit. The trip was a business-pleasure trip for Mr. May and since Detroit is his and his wife Elsie's hometown, they decided to surprise their relatives living there. It was the first time in several years that the whole family was together.

Janice returned to school in Valparaiso on Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. James Glynn and Mr. and Mrs. Hampton Braun were hosts at a champagne cocktail party New Year's eve at the Glynn home, 2123 E. Grove. The party, attended by 36 guests, preceded the Elks' dance at Golden Acres country club, Roselle.

ANOTHER pre-dance cocktail party was given New Year's eve by Mr. and Mrs. Fred W. Both, 433 S. Phelps. Guests were the Bud Caps of Chicago, Ed Boths of Elmhurst, Menard Heydaneks of Berwyn and the Doug Kirps of Arlington Heights. They later attended the Elks' dance at Des Plaines.

Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Soderberg, 436 S. Phelps, ushered in the new year with a champagne party. Guests were long time friends from Elk Grove, Chicago and Arlington Heights.

A pre-New Year party was given Saturday evening by Mr. and Mrs. Don Allison, 515 S. Gibbons. Guests were Mr. and Mrs. J. Ederer and Carl Hahn of Winnetka.

Sunday evening the Allisons were hosts at a smorgasbord attended by friends, the Leonard Banesses, Kenneth Seegers, and Arthur Wolfingers of Scarsdale and the Howard Griesbachs, James Dwyers, Jack O'Neills and Roger Huggs of Arlington Heights.

On December 23, the Wendell Swensons, 428 S. Forrest, with Paul, Wendy, Tommy and Lisa, left to spend a week in Duluth with Mrs. Swenson's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Anderson. On Christmas day they attended a family gathering at Svithiod hall where 45 relatives enjoyed a Christmas program and a visit from Santa.

THE TRAVELERS returned in time to attend the 15th annual New Year's breakfast given by Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Henrickson.

The Gust Hermansons, Lyle Longries and the Wendell Swensons, all of S. Forrest, saw the new year in together at a party at the home of the John Lynches, 433 S. Forrest.

Another Arlington Acres couple giving a champagne party to celebrate New Year's eve, was Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Knutsen, 432 S. Prindle. Guests were Mr. and Mrs. James Yanan of Chicago, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Williams of Medinah, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Ozmanski of Elmhurst, Richard Hansen of Chicago and Miss Roberta Lindahl of Elmhurst.

Entertain At Hospital

Fifteen members of Arlington Heights' Merle Guild post 208, American Legion, travelled to Chicago State hospital December 18 to present a program of entertainment for patients.

Entertainment provided at the state-operated mental institution was as follows:

The pre-Christmas visit was under the direction of chairmen Irene Weidner, Arlene Brown and William Griffith, post service officer. (A

There's a big difference between making money and making the most of it

"How do they make their money go so far?"

How do they do it?—those families who always seem to have more, even though their income may be less.

Often you'll discover the answer in the way they use their full-service bank. They keep their budget on the track with a checking account that spots overspending before it becomes serious. They have a savings account for emergencies—and use low-cost bank loans to take advantage of cash bargains that save them money.

A full-service bank—such as ours—can help make your money go further, too. For here all your money matters are handled at the same place. Make it a point, this week, to see how much more we can do for you—and your money.

Challenge of 1962

Merchants, Residents Look to Active Year

With a rekindled awareness of the necessity of working together for the common good, merchants and residents of Arlington Heights appear ready to meet the challenge of 1962 with dynamic action destined to strengthen civic esprit de corps and knit the community closer together.

As the new year gets under way, the village Chamber of Commerce is making bold plans, the Jaycees are trying to increase their participation in community projects, the village Inter-American Friendship program is getting up a head of steam, and increased citizen participation in government seems inevitable.

Collectively, this augers well for the village.

THE CHAMBER has had its difficulties but during 1961 strengthened its organizational bonds, promoted or helped promote a number of worthwhile projects, and hopes to enter its next 12 months of operation in a sound financial position and with a continuation of the spirit evidenced during 1961.

It can be expected to work actively with the village board in finding solutions for community problems and it undoubtedly will become increasingly important as a sounding board for proposals to revitalize the downtown area and enhance the attractiveness of the village.

The Jaycees, with a corps of dedicated workers who have been carrying the bulk of the workload in the organization, are trying to enlist more active support from other members.

THE COMMUNITY survey the Jaycees completed during 1961 should provide a valuable basis of reference for future projects of the Jaycees and other village organizations.

With only minor clashes of factions and temporary lapses, village residents and organizations worked in close harmony in 1961 to produce the 125th anniversary celebration, and there is a possibility a weekend fall festival will become an annual event in the village.

The unique Inter-American Friendship program initiated during 1961, through which the village "adopted" a poverty-stricken sister suburb in Peru, Pampa de Comas, is getting its second wind and is ready for its more ambitious phases.

IN THE overall picture, new neighborhood civic and improvement associations have sprung up and old ones have taken on renewed vigor, clear evidence of renewed civic spirit.

If the momentum village groups and residents picked up during 1961 can be sustained and even increased, 1962 should be quite a year in Arlington Heights. (A

QUESTION IS HOW MUCH?

Arlington Heights Is Going To Prosper in '62: Editor

by JIM DAVIES

Arlington Heights is going to grow during 1962, but just how much? And what will the growth represent — residential areas, apartment house sites, or commercial and industrial property?

These are questions village board members are asking themselves this week as the new year begins, and the indications are that they will ask for an increasing amount of help from village residents in arriving at the answers.

During the past year, the village has extended its boundaries as far south as the toll road, and across Rand rd. on the north. Another 200 to 300 acres is expected to be added to the village in the coming weeks, both north and south, and another 600 to 700 acres are just around the corner as soon as contiguity can be provided.

USE OF THIS land and of undeveloped land already within the village limits is a matter of prime concern. The village board has as yet been unable to arrive at a satisfactory philosophy concerning apartment house construction, although it has assumed a definite posture on annexation and attracting light industry.

In the latter two areas, the board has taken the position that to annex, an area must represent an asset to the village, and that light industry, or more properly offices and buildings, would be desireable.

An "office and reasearch" zoning classification has already been adopted and will become effective soon, and creation of a formally organized, non-profit citizens committee to attract office and research facilities is all but accomplished.

THROUGH such commercial development, the board hopes to broaden the tax base with a minimal increase in a demand for services and facilities, and resultant expenditure.

While most village residents are in favor of broadening the tax base, this desire conflicts with the fear that light industry might bring with it an undesireable change in the character of the village. Working with the village board, it is hoped the citizens committee can help resolve this apparent dilemma.

But even assuming that only attractive and desireable office and research facilities could be lured to Arlington Heights, this raises another problem. Many white and blue collar workers are unmarried and will need some place to live at a reasonable rent.

APARTMENT houses appear to be an answer, but again this presents a conflict in interest. While somewhat inconclusive studies show apartment buildings have the same effect on the tax structure as light industry, i.e., favorable, an inordinate number of them might prove detrimental to the village's character.

Or so the argument goes.

Directly relating to the resolution of these conflicts is another aspect of what is essentially the same problem—the changes in the village and its tax structure through processes over which the board has little no control.

PRINCIPALLY this amounts to the impact of shopping centers and discount houses built outside the village limits and the resultant shift in buying habits of village residents.

During the past two years, the village's share of sales tax on goods sold in the northwest suburbs has been decreasing steadily and now is slightly more than 41 per cent compared to almost 49 per cent two years ago.

Since sales tax receipts represent a significant part of village income, other sources must be found to take up the slack. Already license fees in most categories have been increased, but other revenue must be uncovered.

DURING 1962, vigorous, positive action will have to be taken and definite policies formulated to provide for planned, economically - sound growth of the village. Village residents might do well to muli over these problems, because from all indications the village board is going to call upon them to help make the decisions. (A

Civil Defense

Night Classes Offered Again

In cooperation with the local Civil Defense organization, Arlington high school will again offer evening classes—beginning next week in the basic civil defense course "Family Survival Under Nuclear Attack."

Classes will be held Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday each week for six weeks, with the course requiring attendance one evening each week. The first classes will be January 8, 9 and 10.

Each of the six lessons in the course will be two hours long, from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. The only cost is a $1 registration fee, payable the night of the first class.

FOR THE BENEFIT of residents who travel during the week, the same course will be offered on successive Saturday mornings, to be completed in four three-hour sessions, from 9 a.. to noon, beginning January 13.

This is primarily a lecture course which provides detailed instruction in the protective steps and survival techniques required for family survival under nuclear bombing attack. Instruction manuals are provided.

It also includes numerous films showing typical nuclear bomb detonations and their effects, and demonstrating how families can protect themselves to minimize resulting injury and death.

THE LOCAL Civil Defense organization strongly urges attendance at the course by at least one adult from each village family, emphasizing that in the event of nuclear war, each family will be largely on its own temporarily, and knowledge gained in the course could mean the difference between life and death for the family.

Classes will be limited to 30 persons each, and registrations will be taken in the order of first come, first served, beginning at 7:15 p.m. each of the three class evenings, and at 8:50 a.m. Saturday, January 13, with all classes to be held in Room 237 at Arlington Heights high school. (A

Merchants, Residents Look to Active Year

With a rekindled awareness of the necessity of working together for the common good, merchants and residents of Arlington Heights appear ready to meet the challenge of 1962 with dynamic action destined to strengthen civic esprit de corps and knit the community closer together.

As the new year gets under way, the village Chamber of Commerce is making bold plans, the Jaycees are trying to increase their participation in community projects, the village Inter-American Friendship program is getting up a head of steam, and increased citizen participation in government seems inevitable.

Collectively, this augers well for the village.

THE CHAMBER has had its difficulties but during 1961 strengthened its organizational bonds, promoted or helped promote a number of worthwhile projects, and hopes to enter its next 12 months of operation in a sound financial position and with a continuation of the spirit evidenced during 1961.

It can be expected to work actively with the village board in finding solutions for community problems and it undoubtedly will become increasingly important as a sounding board for proposals to revitalize the downtown area and enhance the attractiveness of the village.

The Jaycees, with a corps of dedicated workers who have been carrying the bulk of the workload in the organization, are trying to enlist more active support from other members.

THE COMMUNITY survey the Jaycees completed during 1961 should provide a valuable basis of reference for future projects of the Jaycees and other village organizations.

With only minor clashes of factions and temporary lapses, village residents and organizations worked in close harmony in 1961 to produce the 125th anniversary celebration, and there is a possibility a weekend fall festival will become an annual event in the village.

The unique Inter-American Friendship program initiated during 1961, through which the village "adopted" a poverty-stricken sister suburb in Peru, Pampa de Comas, is getting its second wind and is ready for its more ambitious phases.

something NEW IN 62

QUESTION IS HOW MUCH?

Arlington Heights Is Going To Prosper in '62: Editor

by JIM DAVIES

Arlington Heights is going to grow during 1962, but just how much? And what will the growth represent — residential areas, apartment house sites, or commercial and industrial property?

These are questions village board members are asking themselves this week as the new year begins, and the indications are that they will ask for an increasing amount of help from village residents in arriving at the answers.

During the past year, the village has extended its boundaries as far south as the toll road, and across Rand rd. on the north. Another 200 to 300 acres is expected to be added to the village in the coming weeks, both north and south, and another 600 to 700 acres are just around the corner as soon as contiguity can be provided.

USE OF THIS land and of undeveloped land already within the village limits is a matter of prime concern. The village board has as yet been unable to arrive at a satisfactory philosophy concerning apartment house construction, although it has assumed a definite posture on annexation and attracting light industry.

In the latter two areas, the board has taken the position that to annex, an area must represent an asset to the village, and that light industry, or more properly offices and buildings, would be desireable.

An "office and reasearch" zoning classification has already been adopted and will become effective soon, and creation of a formally organized, non-profit citizens committee to attract office and research facilities is all but accomplished.

THROUGH such commercial development, the board hopes to broaden the tax base with a minimal increase in a demand for services and facilities, and resultant expenditure.

While most village residents are in favor of broadening the tax base, this desire conflicts with the fear that light industry might bring with it an undesireable change in the character of the village. Working with the village board, it is hoped the citizens committee can help resolve this apparent dilemma.

But even assuming that only attractive and desireable office and research facilities could be lured to Arlington Heights, this raises another problem. Many white and blue collar workers are unmarried and will need some place to live at a reasonable rent.

APARTMENT houses appear to be an answer, but again this presents a conflict in interest. While somewhat inconclusive studies show apartment buildings have the same effect on the tax structure as light industry, i.e., favorable, an inordinate number of them might prove detrimental to the village's character.

Or so the argument goes.

Directly relating to the resolution of these conflicts is another aspect of what is essentially the same problem—the changes in the village and its tax structure through processes over which the board has little no control.

PRINCIPALLY this amounts to the impact of shopping centers and discount houses built outside the village limits and the resultant shift in buying habits of village residents.

During the past two years, the village's share of sales tax on goods sold in the northwest suburbs has been decreasing steadily and now is slightly more than 41 per cent compared to almost 49 per cent two years ago.

Since sales tax receipts represent a significant part of village income, other sources must be found to take up the slack. Already license fees in most categories have been increased, but other revenue must be uncovered.

DURING 1962, vigorous, positive action will have to be taken and definite policies formulated to provide for planned, economically - sound growth of the village. Village residents might do well to mull over these problems, because from all indications the village board is going to call upon them to help make the decisions. (A

If the momentum village groups and residents picked up during 1961 can be sustained and even increased, 1962 should be quite a year in Arlington Heights. (A

Quite Contrary by Mary

A Neat New Year

Christmas week is like one big blur in my mind. I apparently came in under the wire. What I mean is that everyone seemed to be sitting down and, besides, the living room is full of toys and boxes so we must have had Christmas. However, it was one of the closest things of the century.

There I stood in the middle of the floor with my long blacksnake whip in my hand cracking it over the heads of the workmen. Who, I am sure, were positive they were working in a booby hatch. As soon as the tile man looked as though he was on the last stretch, I was on the phone telling the carpeting man that the coast was clear and any time he wanted to show up with his little tacks and things, I would welcome him with open arms.

I did welcome him too. It is just after they get started that I start lashing them across their broad backs. When that man looked into my smiling face and said that three closet doors had to have at least a half an inch sawed off of them I almost swooned. Visions of sleeping cuddled next to three closet doors throughout Christmas danced through my wee little head. I have a few accomplishments like being able to tango and such but sawing isn't one of them.

Back to the phone and to a door man I just happen to know as we went steady a while back. During my door phase. I was all set to promise him anything and give him Arpege to boot if he would get over here and saw. With a sincere whine in my voice, I explained my plight. I cried, I wheedled, I cajoled, I never let the poor man speak up. When I finally ran out of breath and reasons, he quietly asked if ten minutes was too long for me to wait for a man to get there. That set me back on my heels.

As everyone was busy sawing and tacking, I got back on the phone to beckon my furniture deliverers in my direction. They must have been sitting on Go as they followed hot on the heels of Mr. Carpet. At least we were put together. Draped, tiled, carpeted, bookcased and furnished. I took one look at the finished product and went right back to the phone. To call a friend of mine. To tell her it looked just like a furniture store and certainly not like little old sloppy me.

But, once we got our usual sloppy tree put up, I felt more at home. So, Happy New Year and it will be too. And, neat.

A Neat New Year

Christmas week is like one big blur in my mind. I apparently came in under the wire. What I mean is that everyone seemed to be sitting down and, besides, the living room is full of toys and boxes so we must have had Christmas. However, it was one of the closest things of the century.

There I stood in the middle of the floor with my long blacksnake whip in my hand cracking it over the heads of the workmen. Who, I am sure, were positive they were working in a booby hatch. As soon as the tile man looked as though he was on the last stretch, I was on the phone telling the carpeting man that the coast was clear and any time he wanted to show up with his little tacks and things, I would welcome him with open arms.

I did welcome him too. It is just after they get started that I start lashing them across their broad backs. When that man looked into my smiling face and said that three closet doors had to have at least a half an inch sawed off of them I almost swooned. Visions of sleeping cuddled next to three closet doors throughout Christmas danced through my wee little head. I have a few accomplishments like being able to tango and such but sawing isn't one of them.

Back to the phone and to a door man I just happen to know as we went steady a while back. During my door phase. I was all set to promise him anything and give him Arpege to boot if he would get over here and saw. With a sincere whine in my voice, I explained my plight. I cried, I wheedled, I cajoled, I never let the poor man speak up. When I finally ran out of breath and reasons, he quietly asked if ten minutes was too long for me to wait for a man to get there. Couple Repeats Vows Amid Christmas Motif

Friends and relatives of Donald J. Stuprich, son of the Jack Stupriches, 2005 S. Forest, Palatine, traveled to Alton, Ill. December 2 to witness his marriage to Miss Jo Ellen Hornsey, daughter of Mrs. Ben O. Moore of Alton. A Christmas motif was used in the church decor and also in the ensembles of the bride and her attendants.

The service took place in St. Mary Catholic church where Rev. James Suddes said the 11:30 o'clock nuptial mass amid a setting of white mums, red Christmas carnations and ornaments. Standards of red and white snapdragons and red carnations stood in the sanctuary and in the church and the pews were marked with red satin bows and ornaments with white pine and holly.

THE BRIDE'S attendants were in street-length dresses of light green fashioned with bell skirts and jade green cummerbunds. Each wore a single cabbage rose, veiled hat and shoes in the jade and carried green satin muffs with silver and gold ornaments, Christmas roses and holly.

Miss Susan Meyer of Alton was maid of honor and bridesmaids were Miss Marjorie Weaver and the bride's niece. Miss Suzannah Moore, both of Alton.

A princess gown of white peau de soie with detachable white velvet train was chosen by the bride for her marriage. The train extended from the shoulders and was banded in the peau and a small bow topped cluster pleats on the skirt. Her shoulder-length veil was secured to a crown of pearls and she carried a large crescent of white camellias with yule accents of holly and mistletoe.

MR. STUPRICH was attended by Albert Muszynski of Santa Ana, Cal. as best man and groomsmen were Richard Markowski of Glenview and John Michaelis of Manitowish Waters, Wis. Ushers were Ben B. Moore and the bride's uncle, David L. Hornsey.

Following the service, Mr. and Mrs. Moore entertained the wedding guests with a brunch in Alton's Stratford hotel.

The bride was graduated from St. John hospital school of nursing in St. Louis and has been employed by Chicago Wesley Memorial hospital. Mr. Stuprich attended St. Procopius academy in Lisle and DePaul university, Chicago. His local fraternity is Phi Kappa Alpha and he is employed as a manufacturer's representative by Keller and Thackery in the Merchandise Mart, Chicago.

The couple is living in a home they have purchased at 3717 S. Wilke, Rolling Meadows. (S

Ballet Exercises Good for Reducing

Holiday partying, entertaining and snacking always leave their unwanted toll of extra poundage and to help lose this added weight, the stretch and bend exercises of a ballet dancer can do much to help slenderize.

Any teenager or her mother can "practice" by using the kitchen sink instead of a ballet bar. For grace and figure control, do each of the following five times.

FOR LEGS, WAIST: Face bar, hold on with one hand, put other foot up to side on bar. Stretch toward toes, then away. Keep free hand high.

FOR THIGHS, POSTURE: Hold on to bar and raise leg to side as high as you can. Keep free hand over head.

FOR BOSOM, MIDRIFF, TUMMY: Kneel, bend back to grasp heels. Pull up slightly with muscles tensed, arms pushed forward.

Dear Sue

A TEENAGER'S POINT OF VIEW
BY SUE McDONALD

All across the country teens are learning a new dance craze. It has various names and several variations of style.

I've heard it called "The Twist," "The Hulley Gulley," "The Pony," and "The Fly." Steps vary, but they all add up to the same general effect—a new dance that makes our parents sigh and say "What's happened to the younger generation?"

Recently I saw an article in the newspaper that said that doctors have reported new ailments that they attribute to this dance. They say that their patients are suffering from back, leg, and shoulder aches because of the weird contortions of the latest fad.

Weird or not, the dance must have achieved some kind of respectability because national dance studios are now including it in their program.

And now to the letters for this week.

DEAR SUE,

What do you think about girl surfers? I am 15 and go with a 16-year-old boy who is a surfer. I want to learn how to surf very much and am thinking of getting a board. But some kids say that surfing is just for boys. So I am undecided. My boy friend wants me to learn so I can go with him.

Dion

Dear Dion,

Unless there is some kind of local attitude that makes surf board riding unladylike surf board riding unladylike, I think it would be great for you to learn to surf. Sounds like fun! Be careful, though; I've heard that it's dangerous.

Sue

DEAR SUE,

What do you think about teenagers being allowed to vote? I think that if we are old enough to be drafted, we ought to be allowed to pick the men who are going to decide whether we fight or not.

Tom

Dear Tom,

I approve of allowing 18-year-olds to vote because I think it makes teenagers take an interest in current events and in politics. I also agree with your point about the draft.

Sue

DEAR SUE,

How do you like the new above-the-knee skirts that are so much in style now. I have several, but my mothers won't let me wear them to school. A lot of the girls in my class do wear them to school.

Janice

Dear Janice,

I'm inclined to agree with your mother if you mean the real short kilts and knee-ticklers. Of course, as I've said before, a lot depends on local custom. I think they are darling for informal parties and jam sessions.

Baby Feeding Problem Cited

by HAROLD N. SCHWINGER, M.D.

Although most knowledge and abilities are acquired, the ability to swallow is one with which most of us are born. But just as there are exceptions to all rules, there are exceptions here, too, and some recent studies have brought these to light.

In a report presented at a recent medical meeting which I attended, a team of pediatric radiologists informed the group of their discovery that many infants with feeding problems, at first considered to be physically or mentally defective, simply didn't know how to swallow their food. The babies, all under seven months of age, developed severe choking or vomiting upon being fed.

X-ray motion picture studies showed that the usual liquid feeding was taking three routes instead of one. Rather than taking a direct route down the esophagus to the stomach, the food was traveling up into the nose and down into the trachea, as well. Food entering the nose and the trachea caused the natural reactions of choking and vomiting. Because a thorough examination of the infants disclosed no other physical or mental difficulty, it was finally decided that these infants were merely lacking the ability to swallow correctly.

In order to remedy this condition, they were given a thickened feeding while being held in an upright position. This made it much easier for the food to travel a direct route to the stomach. All responded well to the changed feeding technique and eventually learned what the rest of us know instinctively — how to eat.

Of course, not all infant feeding problems are so simply explained. Many times difficulty in feeding is truly an indication that a more serious problem exists. For this reason, any infant who seems unable to feed properly should be seen by a physician. Whatever his problem may be, chances are that, one way or another, your doctor will be able to remedy it. Among Patrick's recent gifts was a pair of ice skates. I found out today that this was a sad mistake, since if Patrick went skating someone had to go along to help him and that someone turned out to be me. Before this afternoon, it had been two years since I'd been on the ice, however, I felt sure that it would be just like bicycle riding — once you learn you never forget. I guess you don't really forget how to skate, you just forget how slippery the ice is!

Patrick, Bridget and I arrived at the park and the two of them hurried to the edge of the pond, while I fastened my skates. "Be careful, Patrick," I called out the window, "Wait for Mother to help you!"

Before I could reach the ice, he had started out on it. I was amazed to see how well he could stand up and with what assurance he tried to imitate the older children around him — I think all his practice up and down the slippery driveway and sidewalk gave him the needed confidence. Unfortunately, I wasn't able to imitate the older children as well. As I swept out onto the ice with my right foot, something happened to my left foot — it seemed to be caught in a snow bank! Anyway it didn't follow as it was supposed to and down I went at the feet of my 5 year old.

"Now, just a minute, dear," I moaned. "And Mother will help you."

"I can help you up, Mama," my new little skater insisted.

"No, no, dear, Mama's been skating a long time — I can get up all right." And with that and a great deal of effort I pulled myself to a somewhat standing position.

"Take my hand, Patrick, and we'll see if we can skate together. Here we go — one and two and one two!"

"I can help you up, Mama," my new little skater insisted.

Miraculously, he was able to slip and slide in all directions and still maintain his balance. Whereas I seemed to be able to go nowhere except forward and that was not the course we were about to proceed along.

"I think my blades need sharpening." I offered. Excuses were in vain. I could see from Bridget's expression that she had mixed feelings of sympathy and disbelief in my explanation.

"Maybe you'd better wait in the warming house, Mom," she said while tugging at my arm in an all out effort to get me back on my feet. Although I was inclined to agree with her, I refused to be so easily defeated — especially with Patrick looking on. Once more I tried mind over matter. I concentrated: I am Sonja Henie — I am Sonja Henie. Well, my mind might have been Sonja Henie, but after three steps my matter was on the ice!

"I think I'll just go up to the warming house and take a look at these skates. There must be something wrong." And I hobbled off of the ice. Fearlessly, I am going to try again tomorrow — I may not teach Patrick to skate but he'll sure know how to get from sitting position to a standing position.

Patty

Here's How to Make 'June in January'

by BETTY AINSLIE

How can you make January feel like June in this part of the country aside from turning up the thermostat? Well, after the rush and fun of the holidays are over there is a slump. Spirits drag. Kid's feet seem to tarck in endless miles of dirty snow and mud, and there you are left with a house denuded of Christmas finery and almost as dull and drab as your disposition.

The bank account is too low to think about a trip South. Anyway, the children are in school and pop has work up to here, so he says, so what can you do?

LOTS OF things. You as the heart of the home can be the one to come up with suggestions for fun when week-ends tend to drag, and the children are sick, sick, sick of school.

Get everyone interested in a hobby. Not so impossible when you think about it for a moment. The older girls might enjoy making some clothes for themselves, so that they and Spring might blossom out together. The boys will enjoy the paint by number sets and even the little ones can use the colored pencils supplied in the smaller and easier sets.

You might try making those mosaic designs. A new top for a badly scarred end table can keep the whole family busy for this one night a week hobby. Always end up with hot chocolate and cookies or ice cream with different toppings for those around-eight-o'clock - ice - box raiders. Don't push this happy thing. One night a week reserved for something special will have everyone trying a hand at something they enjoy.

BREAKING the routine is the main idea. Doing something different. A show night when you can review your old slides. Or a game night when everyone plays Scrabble or Monopoly.

Ever think about having a winter picnic? Once in a great while good old Pop might be prevailed upon to set up the barbecue in the garage and cook the good old pot roast favorite. Pop won't mind the mittens and earmuffs for a special family treat on a dull Sunday, and the meat cooked outdoors but eaten indoors is a good tonic for jaded appetities. Some fireplaces lend themselves beautifully to broiling indoors. Even hot dogs held over the fire brings back a bit of summer magic.

SO SANTA brought the family a toboggan? An hour or two out in the crisp air will do wonders in wearing down the children's energy and you won't always break a leg. Besides it's wonderful for your complexion. Lots of families enjoy ice skating together — or if all this sounds too athletic, a short walk through the winter woods is a delight. The quiet of snow edged trees and untrampled paths does something to smooth out frayed nerves.

With the wind howling outside and sleety snow hitting the windows, there are bound to be nights when the whole family is home and bored. And much to everyone's surprise your suggestion of doing something together will be pounced upon. Some of the old fashioned things like making popcorn balls, or having a taffy pull are made for this season. Even the most sophisticated son or daughter will grudgingly admit that "every once in a while ma does come up with some good ideas."

Ballet Exercises Good for Reducing

Any teenager or her mother can "practice" by using the kitchen sink instead of a ballet bar. For grace and figure control, do each of the following five times.

FOR LEGS, WAIST: Face bar, hold on with one hand, put other foot up to side on bar. Stretch toward toes, then away. Keep free hand high.

FOR THIGHS, POSTURE: Hold on to bar and raise leg to side as high as you can. Keep free hand over head.

FOR BOSOM, MIDRIFF, TUMMY: Kneel, bend back to grasp heels. Pull up slightly with muscles tensed, arms pushed forward.

Dear Sue

A TEENAGER'S POINT OF VIEW
BY SUE McDONALD

All across the country teens are learning a new dance craze. It has various names and several variations of style.

I've heard it called "The Twist," "The Hulley Gulley," "The Pony," and "The Fly." Steps vary, but they all add up to the same general effect—a new dance that makes our parents sigh and say "What's happened to the younger generation?"

Recently I saw an article in the newspaper that said that doctors have reported new ailments that they attribute to this dance. They say that their patients are suffering from back, leg, and shoulder aches because of the weird contortions of the latest fad.

Weird or not, the dance must have achieved some kind of respectability because national dance studios are now including it in their program.

DEAR SUE,

What do you think about girl surfers? I am 15 and go with a 16-year-old boy who is a surfer. I want to learn how to surf very much and am thinking of getting a board. But some kids say that surfing is just for boys. So I am undecided. My boy friend wants me to learn so I can go with him.

Dion

Dear Dion,

Unless there is some kind of local attitude that makes surf board riding unladylike surf board riding unladylike, I think it would be great for you to learn to surf. Sounds like fun! Be careful, though; I've heard that it's dangerous.

Sue

DEAR SUE,

What do you think about teenagers being allowed to vote? I think that if we are old enough to be drafted, we ought to be allowed to pick the men who are going to decide whether we fight or not.

Tom

Dear Tom,

I approve of allowing 18-year-olds to vote because I think it makes teenagers take an interest in current events and in politics. I also agree with your point about the draft.

Sue

DEAR SUE,

How do you like the new above-the-knee skirts that are so much in style now. I have several, but my mothers won't let me wear them to school. A lot of the girls in my class do wear them to school.

Janice

Dear Janice,

I'm inclined to agree with your mother if you mean the real short kilts and knee-ticklers. Of course, as I've said before, a lot depends on local custom. I think they are darling for informal parties and jam sessions.

Baby Feeding Problem Cited

by HAROLD N. SCHWINGER, M.D.

Although most knowledge and abilities are acquired, the ability to swallow is one with which most of us are born. But just as there are exceptions to all rules, there are exceptions here, too, and some recent studies have brought these to light.

In a report presented at a recent medical meeting which I attended, a team of pediatric radiologists informed the group of their discovery that many infants with feeding problems, at first considered to be physically or mentally defective, simply didn't know how to swallow their food. The babies, all under seven months of age, developed severe choking or vomiting upon being fed.

X-ray motion picture studies showed that the usual liquid feeding was taking three routes instead of one. Rather than taking a direct route down the esophagus to the stomach, the food was traveling up into the nose and down into the trachea, as well. Food entering the nose and the trachea caused the natural reactions of choking and vomiting. Because a thorough examination of the infants disclosed no other physical or mental difficulty, it was finally decided that these infants were merely lacking the ability to swallow correctly.

In order to remedy this condition, they were given a thickened feeding while being held in an upright position. This made it much easier for the food to travel a direct route to the stomach. All responded well to the changed feeding technique and eventually learned what the rest of us know instinctively — how to eat.

Of course, not all infant feeding problems are so simply explained. Many times difficulty in feeding is truly an indication that a more serious problem exists. For this reason, any infant who seems unable to feed properly should be seen by a physician. Whatever his problem may be, chances are that, one way or another, your doctor will be able to remedy it. That's the Law

Explain How Lawsuit Is Begun, Answered

(This is another in a series of articles provided as a public service by the Illinois State Bar Association for Paddock Publications.)

We read every day about cases that are brought in court for breach of contract, for damages for personal injuries, for eviction, and so forth. But have you never wondered how a lawyer goes about beginning a law suit and getting all the parties before the court?

Assume Prentice Carter was injured in an automobile accident by Sheldon Moore, and that they disagree as to who is to blame and are unable to adjust their difference in an amicable manner.

Prentice consults the lawyer of his choice and they decide to file a law suit against Sheldon the "defendant." Often a single case has many plaintiffs and defendants, but in this case there will be only one of each.

PRENTICE'S lawyer will first obtain all the facts concerning the accident, and will attempt to interview anyone who witnessed the occurrence. He will then select the legal theory on which to base the suit. In making this decision it is often necessary for the lawyer to review pertinent statutes and to research for previous decisions in similar cases to see how they have been presented and decided.

Having collected this information, Prentice's lawyer will choose the court in which he will bring the suit. For example, he may want to sue in the federal court, the state circuit court, the state county court or the local municipal or city court.

Different courts have different functions and powers, and so the law suit may or may not be proper for one or the other of these courts, depending generally upon where the accident occurred, the amount of damages to which Prentice believes himself entitled, where the parties reside, and so forth.

AFTER CHOOSING the proper court, Prentice's lawyer will prepare a "complaint" which is the formal statement of Prentice's claim against Sheldon. This statement will contain Prentice's version of how the accident happened and the amount he wants to recover.

Prentice's lawyer will take the complaint to the office of the clerk of the court, pay a fee, and file the complaint. At this time, he may ask for a trial by jury if he desires.

Next he obtains from the clerk a "summons" which he delivers to the sheriff or some other officer who will formally serve a copy of this summons together with a copy of Prentice's complaint on Sheldon.

Prentice's lawyer pays the sheriff's service fee, and the sheriff then serves Sheldon as directed and files a statement in court that he has done so.

SHELDON now must respond to the complaint. He may ask the court to dismiss the suit, or he may file his answer to the assertions made by the complaint and proceed to trial. He may ask for a jury trial when he files his answer, if the plaintiff has not done so.

Then, with the pleadings on file, the disputed questions appear and the case proceeds to trial. Generally and simply stated, this is the way in which a law suit is instituted.

This column is written to inform and not to advise. No person should ever apply or interpret any law without consulting his attorney. Even a slight difference in the facts may change the result under the law. (The names used in this series are fictitious.)

That's the Law

Explain How Lawsuit Is Begun, Answered

(This is another in a series of articles provided as a public service by the Illinois State Bar Association for Paddock Publications.)

We read every day about cases that are brought in court for breach of contract, for damages for personal injuries, for eviction, and so forth. But have you never wondered how a lawyer goes about beginning a law suit and getting all the parties before the court?

Assume Prentice Carter was injured in an automobile accident by Sheldon Moore, and that they disagree as to who is to blame and are unable to adjust their difference in an amicable manner.

Prentice consults the lawyer of his choice and they decide to file a law suit against Sheldon the "defendant." Often a single case has many plaintiffs and defendants, but in this case there will be only one of each.

PRENTICE'S lawyer will first obtain all the facts concerning the accident, and will attempt to interview anyone who witnessed the occurrence. He will then select the legal theory on which to base the suit. In making this decision it is often necessary for the lawyer to review pertinent statutes and to research for previous decisions in similar cases to see how they have been presented and decided.

Having collected this information, Prentice's lawyer will choose the court in which he will bring the suit. For example, he may want to sue in the federal court, the state circuit court, the state county court or the local municipal or city court.

Different courts have different functions and powers, and so the law suit may or may not be proper for one or the other of these courts, depending generally upon where the accident occurred, the amount of damages to which Prentice believes himself entitled, where the parties reside, and so forth.

AFTER CHOOSING the proper court, Prentice's lawyer will prepare a "complaint" which is the formal statement of Prentice's claim against Sheldon. This statement will contain Prentice's version of how the accident happened and the amount he wants to recover.

Prentice's lawyer will take the complaint to the office of the clerk of the court, pay a fee, and file the complaint. At this time, he may ask for a trial by jury if he desires.

Next he obtains from the clerk a "summons" which he delivers to the sheriff or some other officer who will formally serve a copy of this summons together with a copy of Prentice's complaint on Sheldon.

Prentice's lawyer pays the sheriff's service fee, and the sheriff then serves Sheldon as directed and files a statement in court that he has done so.

SHELDON now must respond to the complaint. He may ask the court to dismiss the suit, or he may file his answer to the assertions made by the complaint and proceed to trial. He may ask for a jury trial when he files his answer, if the plaintiff has not done so.

Then, with the pleadings on file, the disputed questions appear and the case proceeds to trial. Generally and simply stated, this is the way in which a law suit is instituted.

This column is written to inform and not to advise. No person should ever apply or interpret any law without consulting his attorney. Even a slight difference in the facts may change the result under the law. (The names used in this series are fictitious.)

Income Tax Filing Period Has Begun

The 1962 Federal Income Tax filing period will soon begin. Every citizen or resident of the United States — whether an adult or minor — who had $600 or more gross income in 1961 is required to file a return. For taxpayers 65 or over, no return is required unless gross income was at least $1,200, Harold R. All, Director of Internal Revenue Service for this district announced.

Returns should be filed as soon after January 1st as possible, but no later than April 16, 1962. Taxpayers of the 26 counties of northern Illinois should file their returns with the District Director of Internal Revenue, 22 West Madison Street, Chicago 2, Illinois.

THE INTERNAL Revenue Service will offer assistance at the local offices, by telephone, and information programs through newspapers, government publications, radio, and television.

Beginning January 29, the 23 local offices of the Chicago District will offer aid by the self-help group plan, which provides for assistance to taxpayers assembled in groups of 6 to 8, with an Internal Revenue Agent instructor to guide them in the preparation of their returns.

Help will be offered on Mondays only, as this day is designated as "Taxpayer Assistance Day," when a full staff of employees will be available to provide assistance.

Assistance will be offered through newspaper articles, regularly scheduled radio and television programs, and official U.S. Tax Guides, copies of which will be obtainable at local Internal Revenue offices.

Telephone service will begin on January 2, and will be maintained through April 16, 1962. As in past years, a staff of experts will be assigned to answer almost any Federal Tax question relating to the individual return. Taxpayers with a problem or two may call the local office for a quick answer, thus enabling them to complete the preparation of their returns.

Telephone service in Chicago may be obtained by calling DEarborn 2-4500 and asking for Tax Information. Assistance may be obtained in Room 3, U.S. Courthouse, Dearborn and Adams Streets, and at 650 Graceland ave., Des Plaines, and 107 E. Vallette st., Elmhurst. (BB

Montgomery Ward Offers Formal Wear Rentals

Montgomery Ward announced it is entering the business of renting men's formal wear through its catalogs and stores in eight mid-western states.

The new service will be handled for individual customers as well as for large group events through the nation's largest supplier of men's formal wear, Gingiss Brothers, Inc., of Chicago.

With distribution of Ward's new mail order catalog this week, the new service is being introduced to customers in Illinois, Indiana, Kentucky, Wisconsin, Iowa, Michigan, Ohio and Tennessee, the area served by Wards mail order house in Chicago and by 240 retail and catalog stores.

CHARLES W. Benjamin J. Gingiss, president of Gingiss Brothers, stated that "Each formal outfit, with all accessories, will be delivered by mail direct to the customer's home."

Each formal outfit will rent for one price, $8.95. The outfit will be fitted to the customer's measurements and will include a jacket, trousers, formal shirt, bow tie, shirt studs, cuff links, suspenders and cummerbund.

Schools, groups and organizations ordering 25 or more outfits at the same time will be allowed a 10 per cent discount on the entire order, Wood said.

Kenneth Kwiatt Completes Study

Kenneth L. Kwiatt, claim representative for State Farm Mutual Automobile Insurance Co., 16 S. Bothwell, Palatine, has returned after completing three and one half weeks of technical study at his firm's home office in Bloomington, Ill.

State Farm maintains the school on a year-round basis so representatives may be informed of the latest methods, policy contracts and procedures in claim servicing. This year some 600 men will attend classes there.

Montgomery Ward Offers Formal Wear Rentals

Montgomery Ward announced it is entering the business of renting men's formal wear through its catalogs and stores in eight mid-western states.

The new service will be handled for individual customers as well as for large group events through the nation's largest supplier of men's formal wear, Gingiss Brothers, Inc., of Chicago.

With distribution of Ward's new mail order catalog this week, the new service is being introduced to customers in Illinois, Indiana, Kentucky, Wisconsin, Iowa, Michigan, Ohio and Tennessee, the area served by Wards mail order house in Chicago and by 240 retail and catalog stores.

CHARLES W. Wood, vice president and general merchandise manager of Montgomery Ward, stated that Wards is inaugurating this new rental service because "Men's formal wear is difficult to obtain at reasonable costs in many communities. Through our mail order service, and through the catalog desks of our 240 stores in this eight-state area, we will provide customers with completely custom-fitted formal wear on a home-delivery basis in plenty of time for each special event."

Benjamin J. Gingiss, president of Gingiss Brothers, stated that "Each formal outfit, with all accessories, will be delivered by mail direct to the customer's home."

Each formal outfit will rent for one price, $8.95. The outfit will be fitted to the customer's measurements and will include a jacket, trousers, formal shirt, bow tie, shirt studs, cuff links, suspenders and cummerbund.

Schools, groups and organizations ordering 25 or more outfits at the same time will be allowed a 10 per cent discount on the entire order, Wood said.

Winners of Card Tourney Announced

Mrs. Ann Shumate and Mrs. Virginia Tyler, Mt. Prospect, compiled the highest score for north-south teams, while William Swanson and O. E. Auer, Arlington Heights, topped the east-west entries.

SECOND place awards went to Mr. and Mrs. Howard L'Hommedieu, Arlington Heights; and G. E. Mertens, Arlington Heights, and J. W. Adams, Chicago.

Suburbanite Officer of Community Theatre Group

Two area residents will direct activities of the newly-established Association of Community Theatres, founded at the downtown center of the University of Chicago.

John Lobenhofer, 108 S. Albert, Mt. Prospect, president of the Village Theatre of Arlington Heights, was elected vice-president and chairman of the program committee.

THE ORGANIZATION is under the executive secretaryship of Norbert Hruby, 618 W. Campbell, Arlington Heights, associate director of the university's downtown center.

Other officers are Bernard Klein, president, chairman of the B'nai Zion temple players in Rogers Park; Mrs. Gordon Wallmark, Geneva, president of the Playmakers of Geneva-Batavia; and Paul Burkhardt, Wilmette, president of the Wilmette Little Theatre.

Founded to provide a central organization to serve more than 75 neighborhood and community theatres in the Chicago area, ACT will base its operations at the downtown center, which will furnish a headquarters and a professional secretariat.

PRESIDENT KLEIN said that the organization hopes "to strengthen the tributary theatre movement by bringing together all the little theatres in the city and suburbs for mutual assistance."

Vice - president Lobenhofer has, for the past five years, been a featured performer with the Village Theatre's adult and children's plays. He has appeared also at the Boulder Hill Playhouse and with the Palatine Players. His daughter, Barbara, played the lead in the Village Theatre's recent production of "Grandmother Sly Boots."

An open invitation to all neighborhood and community theatres to join ACT was issued by the new officers. (Bill

Des Plaines To Feature Noted Film

Federico Fellini's "La Dolce Vita," which opens Friday, at the Des Plaines theatre for a special roadshow engagement, is a sensational and shocking motion picture which easily will turn out to be the most exciting film of the year.

The title, translated "The Sweet Life," is meant ironically, of course. With no punches pulled, the film explores the evolution or rather involution of a gossip-mongering Rome newspaperman to his decadent finish. The dozen sequences run swiftly and logically together, exploring deeper and deeper into a bored, fashionable, unmoored society.

The international cast is headed by Marcello Mastroianni, Anita Ekberg, Anouk Aimee and Yvonne Furneaux.

St. Philip Episcopal church is located on the first street north of the Village Park off Northwest highway.

LIFE'S CURRENT ISSUE

Magazine Discusses 'Splendid Outdoors'

Northeastern Illinois planners of land use who have been seeking preservation and reservation of "open space" received added ammunition in the current issue of Life magazine, devoted exclusively to "Our Splendid Outdoors."

Writing in the issue was Joseph Wood Krutch, 68, drama critic, biographer, educator and naturalist-philosopher. He asks if we are conquering nature or destroying her:

"TO WHAT EXTENT... should man, to what extent dare he, renounce Nature; take over the management of the earth he lives on; and use it exclusively for what he sometimes regards as his higher purposes?

". . . Without cities we cannot be civilized. Without Nature, without wilderness even, we are compelled to renounce an important part of our heritage . . . We need some contact with the thing we sprang from."

He quotes Aldo Leopold, forester-conservationist: "For us of the minority, the opportunity to see geese is more important than television, and the chance find a pasque-flowerisa t— to find a pasque-flower is a right as inalienable as free speech."

KRUTCH GOES ON: "Many of us who share this conviction came to it only gradually. On some summer vacation or some country weekend we realize that what we are experiencing is more than merely a relief from the pressures of city life; that we have not merely escaped from something but also into something; that we have joined the greatest of all communities, which is not that of men alone but of everything which shares with us the great adventure of being alive.

"In some ways men may seem wiser than she (Nature) is, but it is not certain that he is wiser in all ways . . . He is in danger of relying too exclusively upon his own thoughts, to the entire neglect of her instincts; upon the dead machine he creates, while disregarding the living things of whose adventure he is a part. . .

". . . But recreation, pleasure, amusement, fun and all the rest are poor substitutes for joy; and joy, I am convinced, has its roots in something from which civilization tends to cut us off." (A14

Q. Is it proper at the dinner table for one to use one's hand when reaching for a slice of bread, or is one supposed to use the fork?

A. By all means, help yourself to the bread with your fingers, being careful to touch only the slice you are taking. Never, never use your own fork or any of your own individual pieces of silver to help yourself from any common serving dish.

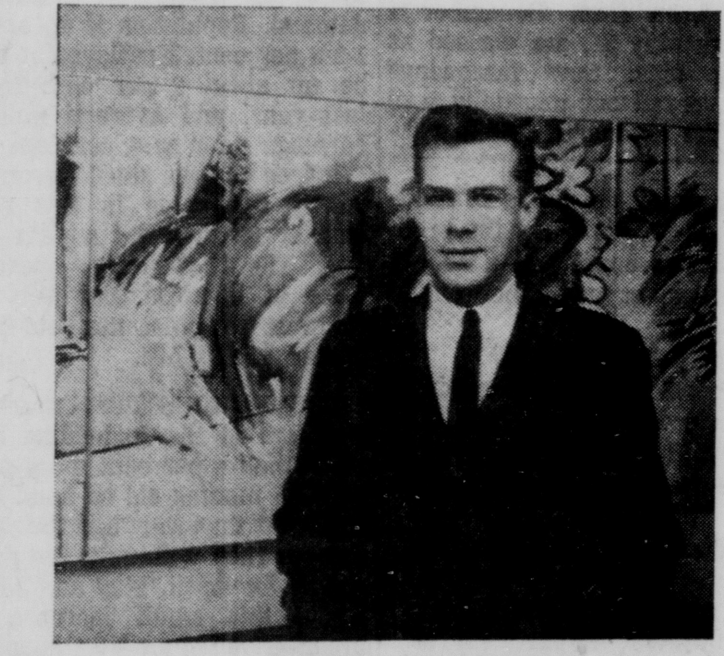
Contemporary Art Is Subject of Lecture

By LUCILE ERNST

I suppose everyone thinks about becoming a more interesting person. Everyone knows, I am sure, the way to go about becoming interesting is to become interested in the world about them.

Well, if you want a clear insight into the fascinating world we live in, an understanding of art will provide it. You will need a guide and you will have an excellent one. Tonight is the night.

On Thursday evening, January 4, Robert Anderson will give a lecture entitled, "Introduction to Contemporary Art." He will use slides to demonstrate his discussion. The lecture will be presented at Pioneer park in Arlington Heights at 8 p.m.



ROBERT ANDERSON

THE PUBLIC is not only welcome but is encouraged to attend. Even if you are not particularly interested in art now, it might be interesting to gain an understanding of why the contemporary artist expresses our times the way he does. After all, it is your feelings and your times of which he paints.

The Countryside Art Center is to be congratulated on its choice of lecturer. Mr. Anderson is a thoughtful and sincere person. His background in art history is extensive, but even more important is the depth of his understanding of the importance of art as an expression of an era.

Here is an excerpt from a paper Mr. Anderson is preparing. It will explain his ideas better than I can. It is entitled, "The Language of Painting."

"THE IDEAS of man are now not those of the Renaissance or of the Middle Ages or any other time. They are of our time. The languages chosen to express these expanding, changing ideas also must grow, expand and change with them. Man must be sensitive and receptive to new ideas and must be familiar with the language medium used if he is to accept and enjoy them and enrich his knowledge. Man cannot enjoy an idea he cannot understand."

Robert Anderson's work was exhibited, with the paintings of George Schneider, at Pioneer Park last year. In February he and Mr. Schneider will exhibit their work at the McKerr Observatory gallery at the top of the Board of Trade Building in Chicago.

ALL OF Mr. Anderson's work which will be exhibited is new and many are mixed media. He has become interested in the collage and plans to exhibit collages done in a variety of materials.

A graduate of the Art Institute of Chicago, Robert Anderson is at present a member of the faculty of the Art Institute as well as an instructor of an Adult Evening Series at the Oak Park-River Forest high school.

Mr. Anderson is vice president of the Chicago Society of Artists and a member of the Renaissance Society of the University of Chicago and the Alumni association of the school of the Art Institute of Chicago.

HE HAS exhibited in and around the Chicago area since 1953, receiving many awards including the Broadus James Clarke Award, Chicago and Vicinity Exhibition, the Art Institute of Chicago, 1958; The William H. Bartels Prize, Chicago and Vicinity Exhibition, The Art Institute of Chicago, 1960.

I sincerely hope you will spend an evening with Mr. Anderson. I can promise you it will be very much like getting a new pair of glasses. The paintings that once seemed strange will have new meaning, new understanding, and a deeper beauty. (Bill

Q. What is the proper time of day to make a call of condolence?

A. This type of call may be made at any time of the day.

Q. If all the other guests at a dinner have refused second helpings of some dish, and then you are asked, is it all right for you to accept?

A. It would probably be better for you to decline. If you were the only one to accept, naturally you would be delaying the serving of the next course — and a well-bred person is always considerate of others.

Today's Agriculture

by Robert E. Hood, Assistant Farm Adviser

Marketing orders and marketing agreements are being proposed as the answer to the Agricultural problem. Many have asked about them. You probably have read about a recent Turkey hearing or the Vegetable hearings. Here are a few points about such agreements and orders:

1. What is a marketing agreement?

A marketing agreement is voluntary. It is a contract entered into by the Secretary of Agriculture with handlers of a particular commodity. It is binding only to those handlers who sign it. A marketing agreement alone is seldom effective.

2. What is a marketing order?

A marketing order is a legal document setting the limits within which an agricultural industry can operate a program of self-regulation. It defines the terms handler and producer, the commodity to be regulated and the area to be covered. It provides for an Advisory Board to administer the order, the number of members, and terms of office. It lists the economic tools to be used and has procedures for financing provisions of the order.

3. What role does the government play in a self-help program using a marketing order?

By law, final responsibility and authority in carrying out provisions of a marketing agreement or order rests with the Secretary of Agriculture. Traditionally, however, the Secretary has followed the recommendations of the industry board and has participated in the programs to protect the interest of individuals and the general public, and to be certain the program's administration follows the declared policy of Congress.

4. Does the legislation for marketing agreements and orders regulate markets?

No. All legislation concerning marketing agreements and orders is enabling legislation only. It imposes no control over the marketing of any commodity—it doesn't even guarantee that any control will necessarily be established. It's merely the legal framework providing the farmer the basis to set up a program to stabilize his market.

5. What is the principal purpose of a marketing agreement or order?

As set forth by Congress, to establish and maintain orderly marketing conditions for commodities in interstate commerce so that the farmer can achieve parity of income with other economic groups.

6. What does such a self-help program offer the farmer?

It offers the farmer the means to strengthen his bargaining power in the national economy, and to have some of the advantages long enjoyed by industry.

7. How may a commodity group start a self-help program?

The producers get together and select representatives to ask the Secretary of Agriculture for his assistance on their problem. If he thinks the situation warrants it, he may appoint a committee, representing all segments of the industry, to study the problem and submit to him a proposed plan of operation—a supply management program, a marketing order, or any other action thought necessary.

8. What if the handlers don't accept the agreement?

As long as producer approval has been given in referendum, the Secretary is authorized to issue an order anyway, and it is binding on all handlers of the commodity. The Secretary does this when he finds it is the only practicable way to carry out the objectives of the Act.

9. Does the Secretary of Agriculture prepare the proposed marketing order?

No. A proposed order originates with, and is planned by, the commodity group concerned. However, Department of Agriculture experts may be called upon to assist in the preparation of the proposed order.

10. Can a marketing order program be stopped after it is in operation?

Yes. An order may be terminated by the Secretary of Agriculture at the end of a current marketing period whenever more than 50 per cent of the producers, who produced during a representative period more than 50 per cent of the volume of the commodity, request a termination. An order may be terminated, or suspended, by the Secretary also when he finds it obstructs or no longer tends to achieve the declared policy of the enabling legislation.

11. Who pays for administering the program?

The Secretary of Agriculture authorizes administering boards to collect assessments from handlers at a uniform rate for expenses. The boards do this by submitting an advance budget, and a proposed assessment, for the Secretary's approval.

12. Can a marketing order directly fix consumer prices for a commodity?

No. Price fixing is not permitted at any level.

13. How is a marketing order enforced?

There are three types of legal action which may be taken against a person who violates an order: Civil action to obtain an injunction; civil action for forfeitures, and criminal action.

Marketing orders may help agricultural producers in one commodity, but thorough study should be given before a proposal is made.

Cornstalk Breakage Causes Are Revealed

This year most Illinois farmers found more cornstalk breakage than they have seen in many years. Agronomists and plant pathologists found the situation serious in almost all areas of the state.

Two types of stalk breakage have been found, one due to disease and the other due to climatic factors.

MUCH OF the breakage was caused by stalk rot. Several organisms can cause this disease, but this year's villain was the gibberella fungus, which rots out the stalk at the base, weakening the plant so that it falls over easily. We see some stalk rot every year; however, it was more serious this year than it has been for a long time.

The second type of stalk breakage was due primarily to climatic factors. Corn made rapid early and midseason growth in most areas of the state and then ran into hot, dry weather in late August and September. The dry weather apparently hit the corn at the time the strong supporting fibers should have been forming in the stalks. This supporting tissue did not develop properly, and much Illinois corn was left with tall, heavy tops and big ears, all supported on weak stalks. This left them easy marks for winds. Hurricane Carla and subsequent winds did serious damage to plants weakened in this manner.

Stalk breakage of this type was especially severe where plant populations were above 20,000 per acre. Heavy nitrogen applications also helped to increase lodging.

THIS CLIMATIC condition also prevented cobs from developing correctly. Many of them split or shredded at harvest time, increasing harvest losses.

You can tell the two types of breakage apart by examining the part of the stalk where the break occurred. Stalk rot hits the plant at its base, and the stalk breakage occurred in the bottom two or three inches. On the other hand, stalks weakened by poorly developed supporting tissue broke one or two feet above the ground.

The year's stalk breakage was not the fault of particular hybrids. While some differences did show up between hybrids, all hybrids showed severe damage from stalk breakage, including many that have had past records of excellent standability. The causes of stalk breakage were primarily due to climatic and cultural rather rather than genetic factors.

Farmers' Outlook

Market Report Brings Good News To Porkers

by L. H. SIMERL

There's another good year ahead for hog producers. This forecast is based on the December Pig Crop Report compiled by the USDA from questionnaires returned by 184,000 farmers in all parts of the nation.

Here are the main facts shown in the report — and our forecasts based on those facts:

Farmers are increasing hog production very cautiously. The rate of increase is not much larger than the growth in consumer demand. The 1961 fall pig crop, now beginning to come to market, is only about 4 per cent larger than that of the year before.

REPORTS FROM farmers indicate that the 1962 spring pig crop, to be marketed in the last half of the year, may be only 2 per cent larger than that of this past year.

Now — let's dig a little deeper: In this report all pigs born in the six months from June 1 through November 30 are counted as fall pigs. All other pigs, those born from December 1 through May 31, are classed as spring pigs. Sow farrowings were spread out unusually well over the six-month fall farrowing season. Thus there should be no serious bunching of marketings.

FIRST-QUARTER market. Farmers in 10 leading hog-producing states had 5 per cent more pigs 3 to 6 months old on hand December 1 than they had the year before. Most of these pigs will be marketed in the first quarter of 1962. The 5 per cent increase will be largely offset by an increase in consumer demand. Population is up about 1-2/3 per cent. Employment will be up about 2 per cent from last year, and average weekly earnings up 3 or 4 per cent.

Prices of hogs should average nearly the same in this first quarter as they did a year before. The first-quarter average price of barrows and gilts at midwest terminal markets last winter was $17.66.

SECOND-QUARTER market. Farmers in the 10 leading hog states had 4 per cent more pigs under 3 months old on hand December 1 than they had the year before. They will make the park supply for April, May and June. Again this small increase in prospective market supplies should be about offset by stronger consumer demand. Prices should be close to those of 1961, when the second-quarter average was $16.67.

THIRD AND fourth quarters. For the U.S. as a whole, reports from farmers indicated that they expected to have 3 per cent more sows fallow spring pigs than they had last year. But the actual increase in pigs saved may be less than 3 per cent — for two reasons: (1) Farmers had unusually good luck last year, and (2) at least half of the increase in farrowings is expected in the cold winter months, when losses are often heavy.

Expected sow farrowings in the 10 states during December, January and February are 6 per cent larger than last year. Farrowings planned for March, April and May are up only 3 per cent.

Consumer demand should be a little better next summer than it was in 1961. Demand next fall should at least equal that of this past fall.

We doubt that hog prices in the third quarter of 1962 will equal the $18.13 posted in 1961, but they should be good enough to pay $1.20 a bushel for corn and make a little profit too. As for the last quarter of the year, prices may not be far from those of the past three months.

'Survival' Food Supplies Listed

When you buy or preserve foods for your stockpile, take into consideration the needs and preferences of your family. Familiar foods are most likely to be acceptable in times of need.

Stockpile foods should be in cans, jars or tightly sealed paper containers. Select foods that last for months without refrigeration and that can be eaten with little or no cooking.

Don't forget to include special kinds of milk and specially prepared foods for infants, toddlers, elderly people and others on limited diets.

WHENEVER possible, choose cans and jars in sizes that will fill your family's needs for only one meal. This is especially important for meat, poultry, fish, vegetables, evaporated milk, and other foods that deteriorate rapidly after being opened.

If you have prepared a fallout shelter, keep your reserve food supply there. If you have no shelter, keep the food in the basement at a point farthest from the entrance. Remember that radiation travels in a straight line. (FM

by Robert E. Hood, Assistant Farm Adviser

Marketing orders and marketing agreements are being proposed as the answer to the Agricultural problem. Many have asked about them. You probably have read about a recent Turkey hearing or the Vegetable hearings. Here are a few points about such agreements and orders:

1. What is a marketing agreement?

A marketing agreement is voluntary. It is a contract entered into by the Secretary of Agriculture with handlers of a particular commodity. It is binding only to those handlers who sign it. A marketing agreement alone is seldom effective.

2. What is a marketing order?

A marketing order is a legal document setting the limits within which an agricultural industry can operate a program of self-regulation. It defines the terms handler and producer, the commodity to be regulated and the area to be covered. It provides for an Advisory Board to administer the order, the number of members, and terms of office. It lists the economic tools to be used and has procedures for financing provisions of the order.

3. What role does the government play in a self-help program using a marketing order?

By law, final responsibility and authority in carrying out provisions of a marketing agreement or order rests with the Secretary of Agriculture. Traditionally, however, the Secretary has followed the recommendations of the industry board and has participated in the programs to protect the interest of individuals and the general public, and to be certain the program's administration follows the declared policy of Congress.

4. Does the legislation for marketing agreements and orders regulate markets?

No. All legislation concerning marketing agreements and orders is enabling legislation only. It imposes no control over the marketing of any commodity—it doesn't even guarantee that any control will necessarily be established. It's merely the legal framework providing the farmer the basis to set up a program to stabilize his market.

5. What is the principal purpose of a marketing agreement or order?

As set forth by Congress, to establish and maintain orderly marketing conditions for commodities in interstate commerce so that the farmer can achieve parity of income with other economic groups.

6. What does such a self-help program offer the farmer?

It offers the farmer the means to strengthen his bargaining power in the national economy, and to have some of the advantages long enjoyed by industry.

7. How may a commodity group start a self-help program?

The producers get together and select representatives to ask the Secretary of Agriculture for his assistance on their problem. If he thinks the situation warrants it, he may appoint a committee, representing all segments of the industry, to study the problem and submit to him a proposed plan of operation—a supply management program, a marketing order, or any other action thought necessary.

8. What if the handlers don't accept the agreement?

As long as producer approval has been given in referendum, the Secretary is authorized to issue an order anyway, and it is binding on all handlers of the commodity. The Secretary does this when he finds it is the only practicable way to carry out the objectives of the Act.

9. Does the Secretary of Agriculture prepare the proposed marketing order?

No. A proposed order originates with, and is planned by, the commodity group concerned. However, Department of Agriculture experts may be called upon to assist in the preparation of the proposed order.

10. Can a marketing order program be stopped after it is in operation?

Yes. An order may be terminated by the Secretary of Agriculture at the end of a current marketing period whenever more than 50 per cent of the producers, who produced during a representative period more than 50 per cent of the volume of the commodity, request a termination. An order may be terminated, or suspended, by the Secretary also when he finds it obstructs or no longer tends to achieve the declared policy of the enabling legislation.

11. Who pays for administering the program?

The Secretary of Agriculture authorizes administering boards to collect assessments from handlers at a uniform rate for expenses. The boards do this by submitting an advance budget, and a proposed assessment, for the Secretary's approval.

12. Can a marketing order directly fix consumer prices for a commodity?

No. Price fixing is not permitted at any level.

13. How is a marketing order enforced?

There are three types of legal action which may be taken against a person who violates an order: Civil action to obtain an injunction; civil action for forfeitures, and criminal action.

Marketing orders may help agricultural producers in one commodity, but thorough study should be given before a proposal is made.

Cornstalk Breakage Causes Are Revealed

This year most Illinois farmers found more cornstalk breakage than they have seen in many years. Agronomists and plant pathologists found the situation serious in almost all areas of the state.

Two types of stalk breakage have been found, one due to disease and the other due to climatic factors.

MUCH OF the breakage was caused by stalk rot. Several organisms can cause this disease, but this year's villain was the gibberella fungus, which rots out the stalk at the base, weakening the plant so that it falls over easily. We see some stalk rot every year; however, it was more serious this year than it has been for a long time.

The second type of stalk breakage was due primarily to climatic factors. Corn made rapid early and midseason growth in most areas of the state and then ran into hot, dry weather in late August and September. The dry weather apparently hit the corn at the time the strong supporting fibers should have been forming in the stalks. This supporting tissue did not develop properly, and much Illinois corn was left with tall, heavy tops and big ears, all supported on weak stalks. This left them easy marks for winds. Hurricane Carla and subsequent winds did serious damage to plants weakened in this manner.

Stalk breakage of this type was especially severe where plant populations were above 20,000 per acre. Heavy nitrogen applications also helped to increase lodging.

THIS CLIMATIC condition also prevented cobs from developing correctly. Many of them split or shredded at harvest time, increasing harvest losses.

You can tell the two types of breakage apart by examining the part of the stalk where the break occurred. Stalk rot hits the plant at its base, and the stalk breakage occurred in the bottom two or three inches. On the other hand, stalks weakened by poorly developed supporting tissue broke one or two feet above the ground.

The year's stalk breakage was not the fault of particular hybrids. While some differences did show up between hybrids, all hybrids showed severe damage from stalk breakage, including many that have had past records of excellent standability. The causes of stalk breakage were primarily due to climatic and cultural rather rather than genetic factors.

Farmers' Outlook

by L. H. SIMERL

There's another good year ahead for hog producers. This forecast is based on the December Pig Crop Report compiled by the USDA from questionnaires returned by 184,000 farmers in all parts of the nation.

Here are the main facts shown in the report — and our forecasts based on those facts:

Farmers are increasing hog production very cautiously. The rate of increase is not much larger than the growth in consumer demand. The 1961 fall pig crop, now beginning to come to market, is only about 4 per cent larger than that of the year before.

REPORTS FROM farmers indicate that the 1962 spring pig crop, to be marketed in the last half of the year, may be only 2 per cent larger than that of this past year.

IN MEMORIAM

of Mrs. Wm. Schoepke

Sad and sudden was the call
Of one so dearly loved by all
A bitter grief, a shock severe
It was to part with one so dear.
For all of us she did her best,
Oh, God, grant her eternal rest.
Our hearts still ache with loneliness
Our eyes shed many a tear,
God only knows how we miss her
As it ends the third sad year.
We have lost our soul's companion;
A life linked with our own,
And day by day we miss her more,
As we walk through life alone.

PADDOCK'S
Second Annual Hawaiian Holiday

ON THE BEACH AT WAIKIKI

We are going again!
to HAWAII

MARCH 9 through MARCH 25, 1962

Join your friends and neighbors in the most glorious, fun-filled vacation of a lifetime and come with us to the Pleasure Playland of the Pacific

These are the gentle islands of the Pacific, beloved by travelers since time began as the loveliest and most delightful haven in the world. A trip to Hawaii is a dream come true. The beauty of the islands, the year round perfection of the climate, its easy, carefree atmosphere accented by strange Polynesian pageantry, romantic music and dances, its unbelievable profusion of flowers are the background for a holiday planned with glorious Hawaiian leisureness and hospitality.

You will enjoy the 20-acre beachside estate of the luxurious Hilton Hawaiian Village with rolling surf, a private lagoon and five pools. There's swimming, surf riding, skin diving, water skiing and sailing. You'll be royally entertained by the traditional Luau fest and savor exotic Oriental foods.

No trip to Hawaii is complete without a hop over to the neighboring islands:

Kauai, the Garden Isle with its lush tropical beauty, the breath taking Waimea Canyon, "Spouting Horn," a noisy salt water geyser erupting near shore, Lalalau lookout with a breathtaking view, a 4,000 foot drop to the fertile valley bounded by razor sharp cliffs, a memorable visit to Fern Grotto, a fantastic scene with thousands of ferns growing downward from the roof of an enormous cavern.

Hawaii, the largest island of them all, the primitive island with towering active volcanoes, black sand beaches, fern grottos, palm lined shores, millions of orchids and tropical plants.

Kona, where sportsmen go for some of the most exciting deep-sea fishing in the world. You'll meet and love the unspoiled people in these neighbor islands and take back with you some of their carefree spirit, their kindness, and their deep satisfaction in life.

A Stop-over in San Francisco

Something new and exciting has been added for our second annual Hawaiian Holiday—fly jet from O'Hare in midmorning and land in San Francisco about noon. We spend the rest of the day in a grand tour of one of America's most interesting cities. Your trip includes cocktails at the famous "Top O' The Mark" and an unforgettable view of the city, a gourmet dinner at Fisherman's Wharf, and Chinatown at night. After a restful sleep at the New Hilton Inn, we board another jet the next morning and we are whisked over the Pacific to Honolulu, with the rest of the day to get settled in our twin-bedded rooms in the Village Tower of the Hawaiian Village Hotel.

Clip this coupon and write for your folder on the complete details of Paddock's Hawaiian Holiday. Christmas may not be "around the corner" yet, but start saving now for the once-in-a-lifetime vacation, a respite from the cold and the snow at just the right time. Mail to PADDOCK PUBLICATIONS, Arlington Heights, Illinois.

Please send me your folder on the Paddock's Hawaiian Holiday tour in March, 1962.

OLD FASHION FRENCH
SALAD DRESSING MIX
Good Seasons
REG. U.S. PAT. OFF.

New ideas for Old Fashion French Dressings no one can buy

. . . recipes with this favorite GOOD SEASONS MIX

Good Seasons Old Fashion French Dressing. Subtly flavored with herbs and spices, this is the kind of oil-and-vinegar dressing mixed by master chefs. Light, fresh—truly continental. Takes just seconds to mix. Easy directions are on the Good Seasons envelope. You combine your favorite oil, vinegar and a little water with the Mix. The water, or a substitute liquid, makes the blend smoother. You can use many substitutes—see recipes below for suggestions.

French Cottage Cheese Dressing. Prepare the Good Seasons Dressing but substitute two tablespoons of cottage cheese for the water. This makes the herb-spice flavor a little brighter. And the flecks of cottage cheese add a creamy contrast—nice touch in tossed salads.

Rum-Nut French Dressing. Just use light rum instead of the water in the dressing. Final touch: 2 tablespoons of chopped nuts. Delightful on all fruit salads. Or in one of mixed greens, slices of avocado and apple. This is one salad with fruit that men really like.

Good
too!

Sesame Seed French Dressing. Add two tablespoons of toasted sesame seeds to your Old Fashion French Dressing. Adds a crisp and nut-like taste to perk up all green salads. Especially fine in spinach salads.

Get the new Good Seasons cruet, with measurements marked, where you buy the 8 Mixes: Italian, Classic, Cheese-Garlic, Onion, Bleu Cheese, Exotic Herbs, Garlic, Old Fashion French.

Fathers Are Parents, Too . . . page 6

There's something new in the PTA, reports author George Fielding Eliot—MEN! Ten years ago a man at a PTA meeting was something of a curiosity; today one-third of all the 12,000,000 members are fathers who are doing something concrete about their desire to have better schooling for their children. Here are some of the results.

The Face Isn't Familiar, Either . . . page 12

If it's any comfort to hostesses, committee chairmen, or club members in good standing, famous author Philip Wylie has always had trouble remembering not only the names of people he's met before, but their faces, too. Some of these people, bemoans the author, are his neighbors. Some are childhood friends. He always recognizes his WIFE, though. It's only with her maiden name that he has difficulties.

Horsing Around With Hilary . . . page 17

Talking to horses is a lot easier than talking to little girls who talk to horses, Mrs. Kay Nelson discovered when she and her husband bought daughter Hilary, age 10, a mare of her own. This month, Mrs. Nelson recalls some of the Hilary-ous crises they went through when Hilary had horse fever—crises to everyone, that is, except Hilary and Nina, the horse, two creatures who had no trouble understanding each other.

Brimer's Primer for 1962 . . . page 18

It's time, says garden authority John Brimer, to begin thinking about annuals for next summer's flower garden. He recommends you try experimenting, this year, with up-to-date versions of old favorites—hollyhocks, sweet peas, verbenas, zinnias—offbeat prize winners in the All-America Selections.

GETTING AROUND

. . . to Our Pleasant Places and People

THE Montgomery County, Maryland, Association of Volunteer Firemen is holding its third annual tree-burning ceremony this week. More than 5,000 Christmas trees, collected by firemen and Scouts from all over the county, are expected to go up in a big, safe blaze at the football field of Montgomery Blair High School.

Tom Kent, age 11, of Shaker Heights, Ohio, called a friend of his about a future meeting, and acting in a very adult, businesslike way he began, "Is that you, Alan? Are you vacant Saturday?"

The following conversation took place between two women who happened to meet outside a Shorewood, Wisconsin, courtroom.

"How are you? Are you here on a traffic ticket?"

"Well, something like that—a red light."

"Your first time here?"

"Yes. I feel nervous."

"Don't. I've been here before."

"At least it's comfortable."

A reader who lives near Andover, Connecticut, has heard of a man who has devised what he calls the world's first realistic two-car garage. One door reads, "His," the other reads, "Hers"—but "Hers" is two feet wider than "His."

The Public Library of Freeport, says an Oaklawn, Illinois, resident, Jean Laird, has thoughtfully installed a "Booketeria" in a local supermarket. Cardholders can pick up books on display just by jotting down their number and the date the book is borrowed. The card is then collected by the check-out clerk along with the grocery money.

It is good to know that William J. Howard, of Marietta, Georgia, is going to be a doctor and Ruth M. Lutz of White Bear Lake, Minnesota, is going to be a nurse, thanks to the scholarships they have received from the National Foundation-March of Dimes. They are only two out of 500 promising young people each year who get 2,000 March of Dimes dollars to further studies that will some day help to narrow the acute shortage of qualified persons in medical fields—desperately needed, as we know, to keep up with the population explosion.

Thanks for the tip, Mrs. M. A. Frey, of Van Nuys, California. The Freys have made the Formica top of their breakfast table a message center, with appropriate reminders to each member scrawled in pencil at his or her place setting. The kids pay serious attention to their messages, says Mrs. Frey; nobody gets upset, and she no longer is the family nag. The table, incidentally, wipes off clean after each meal, with a damp cloth.

Practically everybody who can get there is heading for the hills these days, thus inspiring our cover artist. Object? Skiing, of course! Anyone in the snow country who isn't involved in going up and down the slopes is out skating or playing hockey or making snowballs or sleigh riding or just enjoying the sight of all that wonderful, wet, fluffy white stuff.

GETTING AROUND

. . . to Our Pleasant Places and People

THE Montgomery County, Maryland, Association of Volunteer Firemen is holding its third annual tree-burning ceremony this week. More than 5,000 Christmas trees, collected by firemen and Scouts from all over the county, are expected to go up in a big, safe blaze at the football field of Montgomery Blair High School.

Tom Kent, age 11, of Shaker Heights, Ohio, called a friend of his about a future meeting, and acting in a very adult, businesslike way he began, "Is that you, Alan? Are you vacant Saturday?"

The following conversation took place between two women who happened to meet outside a Shorewood, Wisconsin, courtroom.

"How are you? Are you here on a traffic ticket?"

"Well, something like that—a red light."

"Your first time here?"

"Yes. I feel nervous."

"Don't. I've been here before."

"At least it's comfortable."

A reader who lives near Andover, Connecticut, has heard of a man who has devised what he calls the world's first realistic two-car garage. One door reads, "His," the other reads, "Hers"—but "Hers" is two feet wider than "His."

The Public Library of Freeport, says an Oaklawn, Illinois, resident, Jean Laird, has thoughtfully installed a "Booketeria" in a local supermarket. Cardholders can pick up books on display just by jotting down their number and the date the book is borrowed. The card is then collected by the check-out clerk along with the grocery money.

It is good to know that William J. Howard, of Marietta, Georgia, is going to be a doctor and Ruth M. Lutz of White Bear Lake, Minnesota, is going to be a nurse, thanks to the scholarships they have received from the National Foundation-March of Dimes. They are only two out of 500 promising young people each year who get 2,000 March of Dimes dollars to further studies that will some day help to narrow the acute shortage of qualified persons in medical fields—desperately needed, as we know, to keep up with the population explosion.

Thanks for the tip, Mrs. M. A. Frey, of Van Nuys, California. The Freys have made the Formica top of their breakfast table a message center, with appropriate reminders to each member scrawled in pencil at his or her place setting. The kids pay serious attention to their messages, says Mrs. Frey; nobody gets upset, and she no longer is the family nag. The table, incidentally, wipes off clean after each meal, with a damp cloth.

"If you want to write something that will live forever," says Mary Anne Nolan, of Mineola, New York, "sign a mortgage."

A lady who lives near Perl Mack, Colorado, swears that a family composed of Papa tourist, Mama tourist, and three little tourists piled out of an out-of-state automobile and hurried into a self-service laundry, where Papa stripped the kids and bathed them in a rinse tub, while Mama put their clothes into a washer. Then, everyone had a quick shampoo, and Mama put her hair up in pin curls. She set up their electric plate to heat soup for lunch, while Pop used another outlet for his razor. Then she plugged her iron into a third outlet, slicked over the now-clean clothes on a folded blanket, and the family was on its way again—fed, clean, and shining.

For the benefit of perplexed parents in the Richardson and Irving, Texas, areas, we hear that there's a Fort Worth psychiatrist who has been lecturing to PTA groups on the subject "Alaska: How to explain it to your children."

Dr. and Mrs. Edwin Mikkelson, of Lake Oswego, Oregon, have solved their problem. With six unmarried daughters still around the house, Dr. Mikkelson, as you can well imagine, did not relish the thought of playing father of the bride half a dozen times, so he has made a deal with them. Each one will get a set of matched luggage, $100—and a ladder—if she elopes.

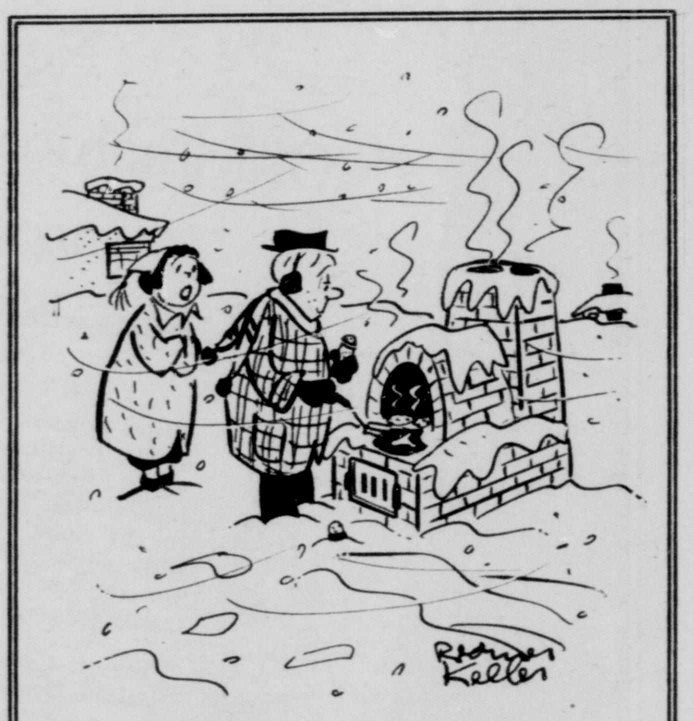
The Millburn-Short Hills Bank, in Millburn, New Jersey, is having a hard time giving money away. A few months ago bank officials put out a container of nickels for bank customers to use in the parking meters nearby. The service was meant mainly for women who might have trouble getting the money out of their giant handbags or who might not have the right change when they came to the bank. So far, complains Vice-President William B. Fiore, though the bank is doing a lot of business inside, the container stays full of nickels. Mr. Fiore is puzzled. Either Millburn-Short Hills women are better organized than most and don't forget to bring change, he says, or they're getting a lot of unnecessary tickets.

Near Leawood, Kansas, a barber who needed an upper plate made a deal with a dentist, whereby he bartered two years' worth of haircuts for the teeth. Both parties are happy with the arrangement, especially the dentist, who has had his house painted by a painter who needed dentures and has worked on the teeth of the plumber's children in exchange for some repairs.



"Let's make this the last cookout of the season, shall we?"

confronting parents, teachers, and children today

BY GEORGE FIELDING ELIOT

each year for each classroom in the school. Next year they're looking forward to having the new school building they've been working for, with a central library room that will avoid parceling out the books to individual classrooms.

PTA ladies are gratefully acknowledging that there are some things men know how to do better than they do.

In Stamford, Connecticut, four years of bickering over high-school building sites was ended when a male PTA committee of engineers, architects, constructors, and realtors tramped the countryside, photographed sites from a helicopter, and published a brochure setting forth authoritative findings. In Hialeah, Florida, where nervous mothers worried about first graders having to cross the Red Road Canal on the way to school, the men of the PTA, aided by their teen-age sons, taught the tots of each year's new first-grade class to swim during the summer before school started.

SAFETY, a highly important PTA activity, is one in which men members take notable interest. Charles Bradford, safety chairman of the Middlesex County (N.J.) Council of PTAs, says he finds the going easier than his lady predecessors did when he attends a meeting of the County Safety Committee as PTA representative.

"A man," he reports, "can discuss such heavy problems as traffic safety with other men with much more agility than a woman can."

Ladies whom this reporter has invited to comment on that statement have taken strong exception to the word "agility"—we may not be safety experts, they admit, but never underestimate a woman's agility in an argument. However, it is being widely granted that men are making a mark for themselves in matters of law and local administration where the attainment of PTA objectives requires discussion with other men in public office.

In these fields, men seem to take a somewhat different approach from women, perhaps because they are motivated by concern for community welfare and the social structure more than many women are.

"Fathers are parents, too," one male PTA president asserts stoutly, but Mother's interest is far more closely centered in the child, and she does not always take the same degree of interest in the wider problems that must be solved if the child is to flourish in the sunlight of full opportunity for self-development.

It would be rash to go so far as to say that men are invariably better fitted to deal with these affairs; perhaps what is happening in the PTA adds up to a partnership to whose objectives both men and women are dedicated and toward which they work together, each contributing as capacity and inclination permit.

The PTA magazine, the National Parent-Teacher, recently had an article on men's new role in the PTA by James R. Snowden, a former Treasurer of the NCPT who is described as an "Expert economist and analyst—and father." He has this to say:

"Were the voices of the millions of men who have worked in the ranks of the PTA united, they would say nothing of heroic importance. The achievements of the PTA are those of individual members who, having educated themselves on their own problems, have overcome some and are moving on to others. . . . The teacher shortage (for example) will not be overcome at a given moment, but the scholarships awarded, the substitute teachers found in the community, the former teachers brought back to the classroom, the students steered toward teaching all whittle away at the magnitude of the shortage; its defeat is in the making. This is Father's philosophy of action—the cosmic concern reduced to a manageable fraction and solved piecemeal, if it cannot be solved en masse."

ONE THING seems clear—Father is in the PTA to stay, and he is going to make his presence felt. More than half of all the PTA-chapter presidents in Massachusetts are men; men outnumber women as presidents in many parts of Illinois; many local units have men serving as chairmen of committees on legislation, school education, parent education, public health, safety, and citizenship. One state president in Delaware finds men "perhaps better able to work" with state legislators. A lady member in San Diego County, California, announces a discovery:

"Why, I find I can talk with the fathers just as easily as I can with the mothers!"

Another in Jefferson County, Kentucky, observes rather wistfully, "He makes a fine chairman, but he does insist so on keeping to the point!"

"The parent-teacher movement," says the Council of State Governments, "has attained remarkable strength and maturity."

That this is a fair judgment few observers will deny—thanks to millions of teachers and parents, including, lately, four million hard-working fathers.

Fathers are coming in by the thousands to cope with the man-size problems

ACROSS THE NATION, coast to coast—from Brookline to Beverly Hills, from South Miami, Florida, to Suquamish, Washington—American fathers are storming the doors of the country's 47,000 Parent-Teacher Associations.

This male invasion of a once sacrosanct feminine activity is of recent development. Ten years ago, a man attending a PTA meeting was an object of curiosity and some suspicion to the ladies and derision to his own sex. But today, with a total membership of just over 12,000,000, the National Congress of Parents and Teachers reports—with pride and joy—that 4,000,000 men have come into the fold. Also, the still-prevailing distaff majority is electing more and more men as presidents of local PTA chapters, regional councils, and state congresses.

At the national level, men hold office as second vice-president and treasurer; men fill six chairmanships of national committees. Maybe one day the gavel at a national convention will be wielded by a newly installed Mr. President instead of the Madam Presidents who've been regularly chosen ever since the birth of the PTA in 1897. Could be, the way things are going.

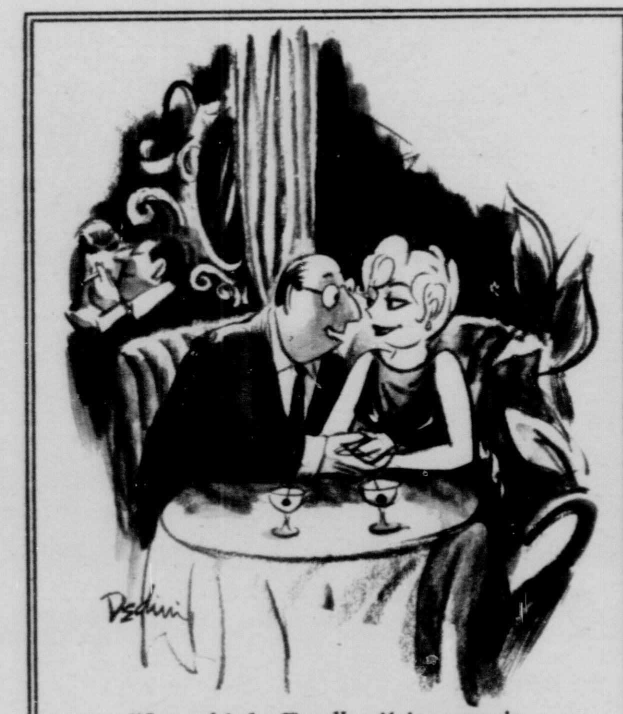
Or maybe the Camelback High School PTA outside Phoenix, Arizona, has the ideal solution—its 1,800 members, evenly divided between men and women, have voted that all offices be held not by individuals but by couples!

What has sparked Father's sudden interest in PTA goings-on when he was only too happy to leave well enough alone a few years ago? A PTA pamphlet says it's "because education is the most exciting issue of our times, and every man of courage and conscience wants to help dig for the facts and come up with solutions."

The pressures facing these men of conscience can be very simply described:

(1) 1960 was the eighth consecutive year in which the number of pupils in the elementary and secondary public schools of America has increased by more than one million.

(2) The number of qualified teachers and the available schoolroom space are not increasing in due proportion, despite Herculean efforts.



"Just think, Estelle, if it weren't for the Parent-Teacher Association, we might never have met."

SUBURBIA TODAY

The emerging demands of this situation add up to man-size problems. Education in America has become of unparalleled importance in the achievement of personal success and in the well-being and security—internal and external—of a democratic society. Conservation and development of our human resources are directly related to our progress in science, commerce, industry, and national defense. The PTAs throughout the nation are becoming forums in which fathers as well as mothers meet with teachers and school administrators to size up the needs and then find a way to do something about them by constructive cooperation—starting at the local level, but with the broadening outlook provided by the regional, state, and national organizations.

One result of the male invasion has been to shift the timing of many PTA meetings to the evening. The old afternoon-tea-and-doily affair is on the way out; you might as well hang out a sign NO MEN WANTED, as the ladies of the Somerset PTA in Prairie Village, Kansas, reported when they rescheduled all programs to evening hours.

Male influence has made itself felt in a variety of PTA social activities—an all-male executive committee in a Bessemer, Alabama, PTA got up what they called a "male-order supper" with man-style food (hamburgers, baked beans, and pie) amid the hoots and jeers of their wives, charged 50¢ a plate, and raised $90 to buy books for the school library. They promptly parlayed this accomplishment into a series of annual events that is currently providing $100 worth of new books

bringing up baby*
Hints collected
by Mrs. Dan Gerber,
Mother of 5

Everyone likes attention and a toddler is likely to get it the first few times he eats less than usual. Whether the mother tries mild coaxing or downright forcing, it doesn't take junior long to learn that refusing food is an attention-getter. (Sometimes it can be even more fun than eating.) So when your tyke eats less, do your best to ignore it and remove the food when he's had sufficient time to finish it. Toddlers, like babies, will eat enough when they're hungry enough.

Cereal cue. Some mothers feel that a toddler no longer needs specially prepared baby cereals. Not so! He still needs the iron and other important nutrients they supply. Gerber Cereals are enriched with iron (6 tablespoons provide enough to meet a toddler's daily needs), calcium and B-vitamins. Nothing like them for hearty nourishment on nippy mornings . . . and they're so easy to prepare. P.S. Has junior had Gerber High Protein Cereal lately? Toddlers love its toasted, nut-like flavor.

Milk memo. If your toddler is going through an anti-milk stage, serve extra servings of Gerber Cereals. Be surprised how much milk you can get into a toddler this way.

Bar those bribes! Bribing a child to eat is certainly not the better part of wisdom. If he can count on a reward for eating, baby may come to use the refusal of food as a bargaining device. As the Gerber nutritionist puts it: "Eating should be regarded as a privilege, not a favor."

No rewards required when you serve Gerber Junior High Meat Dinners. Toddlers usually "lick the platter" lickety-split because these delicious dishes are filled to the hilt with savory meat . . . flavor-brightened with garden-good vegetables.

New finger food for self feeders! Gerber Meat Sticks make playing "pick-up-sticks" a worthwhile pleasure. For these nutritious, delicious tiny wienies are made from ARMOUR selected Armour Beef and Pork, plus nonfat dry milk, for protein to spare and flavor galore. Serve "as is" or heat slightly.

Important: Gerber prepares over 100 baby foods: cereals, strained and junior, to meet your baby's nutritional needs. We're proud to say:

TO PREPARE AND COOK: ABOUT 6 HRS.

- 1 lb. boneless beef (chuck or rump), cut in pieces
- ¼ lb. boneless lamb shoulder, cut in pieces
- 1 beef soup bone, cracked

- ½ cup chopped parsley

1. Put the first eight ingredients into a sauce pot; cover and bring to boiling. Reduce heat and simmer about 2 hrs., skimming off foam as necessary.

2. Add corn and the next five vegetables; cover and simmer 1 hr.; remove cover and cook 1 hr. longer, stirring occasionally to prevent sticking.

3. Add the okra, tomatoes, and crushed garlic; cover and simmer 1 to 1½ hrs. longer. About 10 min. before end of cooking period, remove bones and any pieces of fat, then stir constantly for remaining time. (Stew will thicken rapidly and may scorch if not carefully watched.)

my home with my younger brothers and sisters, growing up as one of them. Fred's wife of some 20 years, Jeanne, I had known all that time—and her parents, too. The teenager was one of the three Rindge boys, also known to me for many years. I had seen this family, moreover, every year or so (and frequently several times in a year) up until two years before this moment.

Of course, they had not phoned or written that they would drop in when driving through our village. Upon ringing our doorbell and seeing me, they had expected, rightfully, to be welcomed by name and with affectionate gusto—for they knew, or at least rationally supposed—that I would be glad to see them.

Of course, once Fred gave me his surname all three were welcomed—and with true enthusiasm.

Fred had introduced himself, upon seeing my empty and probably hostile stare, because he knows me, because he is a warmhearted guy not easily miffed and, doubtless, because he was a psychology major in college and can, in consequence, detect such a syndrome as mine.

Few people are that knowing and that generous.

Some of my lifelong friends (and I have a few, believe it or not) automatically supply their names when we meet, and even a mass of biographical material, offered in proof of identity. Since I do not always fail to recognize, on sight, people with whom I have long associated, this routine sometimes vexes me. I do not require of my brother, Max Wylie, his standard and impertinent assertion (after any period of months or even weeks of separation): "I am your brother Max, Phil." It is redundant. I have never failed to recognize Max, on sight . . . yet.

Outside stood three people—all strangers. Or were they?

Again, I invariably recognize my wife—though in the early years of our marriage I sometimes could not recollect her maiden name. And on one occasion I did mistake a celebrated lady-movie star for Mrs. Wylie—a forgivable error, I feel, since many persons, on meeting my then-new-wed spouse, thought she was that same star.

Psychologists and various psychiatrists, friends of mine, have speculated about the cause of my affliction. Some have suggested that, inasmuch as I am a minister's son who was several times uprooted just as I had begun making childhood friends and taken to a new church in a new town or city where all were strangers, my brain rebelled, and I gave up even trying to learn to know and remember anybody. And everybody.

Others suggested that in view of the mountain of fiction I have written, along with the myriads of characters therein—all invented and described by me—I have grown confused about which human faces in my mind are real and which are merely characters in a novel or story.

Which came first, Gordon's or the Martini?

When Alexander Gordon introduced his gin to London in 1769, the martini had not yet been invented. So when the martini finally did arrive—around 1850—it had ready access to Gordon's remarkable dryness and flavour, and the martini's success was thus assured. Tonight, when you ask for a Gordon's martini, you'll be glad to know the gin harks back to Alexander Gordon's original formula. The Face Isn't Familiar, Either

A confession dedicated to all club members, hostesses, committee chairmen, and other normal souls author of "Generation of Vipers," "The Innocent Ambassadors," the "Crunch and Des" stories, etc.

BY PHILIP WYLIE

FEW PEOPLE will accept the cold, somber, and often appalling fact about me. I cannot remember names, and I cannot remember faces, either.

I'm an impossible, bewildered guest and the worst host anyone has ever seen in South Miami. I can and have spent an hour at a stag party earnestly discussing our new building code with a neighbor and cut the man dead on the street the next day. If I go to a club on Saturday night, I break in on total strangers and fail to dance with my dinner partner. But I don't belong to many clubs. How could I? There was one organization, it is true, in which I was active for years—a fishing outfit. I even rose to a directorship in that suburban rod-and-reel club.

But upon being told that I was then in line for president, I resigned. Presidents, after all, must at least know by sight their underofficers!

To illustrate the horror of my condition: Just a few weeks ago, as I applied myself to my metier, the chimes of the front door echoed musically through the rooms beyond the one where I worked. Dimly gathering that my wife had not answered the door (as the chimes sounded a second and third time), I regretfully set aside my manuscript, emerged from my spacious study, crossed the parlor, and opened the door.

Outside on the recessed porch stood three tall people: a hefty man of about 45, a handsome and shapely female of fewer years, and a towering, dark-haired teen-ager. All, total strangers. Yet, when I appeared, the trio wore bright, expectant smiles. The smiles ebbed only when they saw I was staring at them blankly. There was a pause—extended, deepened, weird.

Finally, the man said, "We're the Rindges."

And so they were.

The Rindges! I had known Fred Rindge, the man, from the first year of his life, known his parents. Indeed, after his father's untimely demise, his mother had become the wife of my father! Fred had spent his high-school years in Which came first, Gordon's or the Martini?

When Alexander Gordon introduced his gin to London in 1769, the martini had not yet been invented. So when the martini finally did arrive—around 1850—it had ready access to Gordon's remarkable dryness and flavour, and the martini's success was thus assured. Tonight, when you ask for a Gordon's martini, you'll be glad to know the gin harks back to Alexander Gordon's original formula. Why should we tamper with a good thing, especially when it's the world's biggest seller.

The Face Isn't Familiar, Either

A confession dedicated to all club members, hostesses, committee chairmen, and other normal souls

BY PHILIP WYLIE

author of "Generation of Vipers," "The Innocent Ambassadors," the "Crunch and Des" stories, etc.

FEW PEOPLE will accept the cold, somber, and often appalling fact about me. I cannot remember names, and I cannot remember faces, either.

I'm an impossible, bewildered guest and the worst host anyone has ever seen in South Miami. I can and have spent an hour at a stag party earnestly discussing our new building code with a neighbor and cut the man dead on the street the next day. If I go to a club on Saturday night, I break in on total strangers and fail to dance with my dinner partner. But I don't belong to many clubs. How could I? There was one organization, it is true, in which I was active for years—a fishing outfit. I even rose to a directorship in that suburban rod-and-reel club.

But upon being told that I was then in line for president, I resigned. Presidents, after all, must at least know by sight their underofficers!

To illustrate the horror of my condition: Just a few weeks ago, as I applied myself to my metier, the chimes of the front door echoed musically through the rooms beyond the one where I worked. Dimly gathering that my wife had not answered the door (as the chimes sounded a second and third time), I regretfully set aside my manuscript, emerged from my spacious study, crossed the parlor, and opened the door.

Outside on the recessed porch stood three tall people: a hefty man of about 45, a handsome and shapely female of fewer years, and a towering, dark-haired teen-ager. All, total strangers. Yet, when I appeared, the trio wore bright, expectant smiles. The smiles ebbed only when they saw I was staring at them blankly. There was a pause—extended, deepened, weird.

Finally, the man said, "We're the Rindges."

And so they were.

The Rindges! I had known Fred Rindge, the man, from the first year of his life, known his parents. Indeed, after his father's untimely demise, his mother had become the wife of my father! Fred had spent his high-school years in Hilary and Nina—friends who understand each other.

Horse Sense

BY KAY NELSON

BY THE TIME our daughter Hilary was 10 years old, she had such a severe case of horse fever that we moved to the suburbs and bought her a mare, Nina. I've always thought I had an ear for languages, but when it comes to horse talk I'm left at the post. "I been hane Nina," or "It's time to gray Nina," Hilary began to say. Sometimes she'd combine these two and refer to "hane an' graynun." Finally I asked her to explain what went on in the barn. "Why, I'm hayin' and grainin' Nina," Hilary replied.

Because of her loving care of Nina, we were naturally disconcerted when Hilary announced (or seemed to announce), "I've made up my mind. Nina's got to be shot." We were relieved only when she added, "I'm going to call Tuck (the horseshoe man). He's always shod Nina before." To this day I get an unpleasant mental picture of Nina, head held high, standing brave and still; Tuck is raising his rifle and taking careful aim.

Some time later, Nina had to be wormed. We were recovering from this operation when Hilary told us she was going to have Nina's mane roached. "Where in the world did that horse pick up roaches?" my husband asked. "Nina doesn't have roaches!" Hilary cried, indignantly. "I'm just going to have her mane clipped! Yeeps!"

Next she said she wanted to have Nina "booted." "We just had new shoes put on her—I mean, had her shod," I pleaded. "Why does she all of a sudden need boots?" Hilary explained with only a trace of condescension that to boot a horse is to shave its legs.

ONE AFTERNOON Hilary came in from the yard with her shoulders sagging, her shirttail drooping. "Nina's off her feed," she said morosely.

"Oh, dear, that's bad, isn't it?" I sympathized.

"Well, it's not as bad as the heaves, but it's bad," Hilary replied. "The thing is, I guess I'll have to drench her."

Drenching, which turned out to be a costly and painstaking procedure of purging, didn't restore Nina's appetite or vigor. Her ribs were beginning to protrude pitifully before Hilary, searching doggedly through the "horse book," finally got to the T's. "It's her teeth!" she exclaimed. "She's got malocclusion and can't chew up her food the way she's supposed to. She needs them floated!"

Hilary looked on as the veterinarian filed Nina's teeth to correct her overbite. Or, as she said, he floated them. I stayed far away.

By that time, floating myself, I had come to the conclusion that nothing would ever replace the horse—or my equilibrium.

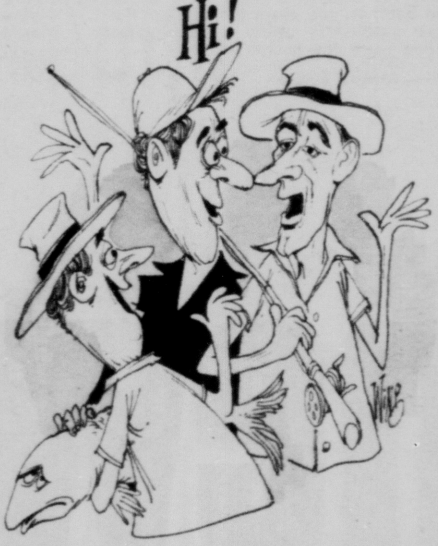
I suspect, however, that these theories were but generous attempts to soothe my anxiety. For my nonrecognition is, at times, far more dismaying than I usually care to admit.

In one unforgettable moment of crisis during the second world war, when answering Pentagon questions which were to lead to my clearance for matters of great secrecy, I made one grand but typical fumble that almost cost me the clearance. The intense and swift quizzing began simply enough:



A president should know his staff.

"Last name?"

"Wylie."

"First name?"

"Philip."

"Middle name, if any?"

Then it happened. I have a middle name. I never use it. My brother sometimes calls me by it, for no good reason. But, under pressure, I forgot my middle name. I paled. Teetered. The examining officer gazed up. "Middle name?" he repeated. "You have one?"

Only at the last permissible instant when the man was about to cast me out as a nitwit, dummy, or perhaps an enemy agent, did I manage to recall it. "Gordon," I gasped. "G-O-R-D-O-N."

I may be alone in my condition. I but suspect I have fellow-sufferers: We do not readily confess. We feel we would be totally ostracized if it became known that loved relatives, old friends, fellow commuters, our own bosses in unfamiliar clothing, often appear to us as complete strangers. We play shy. We play stupid. We play deaf. Even drunk. Wouldn't you? Ask yourself. Would you want it known that you failed to recognize as your aunt the only unidentified woman in a small room—or that you had played a whole rubber of bridge with a woman, without realizing she was your divorced first wife?

It can be that bad! Or almost. It seems that bad, anyhow.

The person with no memory for faces actually yearns for the more mild discomfort endured by the one who merely forgets names. I'd feel proud to be able to say, "Your face is familiar, but I just can't recall your name." But your face is not familiar, for me; and there's not much good supplying names, in cases like mine. No use bringing up girls at parties, with a warm, mnemonic, "You remember Susie!"

I don't remember Susie, usually. And when I do—I sometimes wish I hadn't.

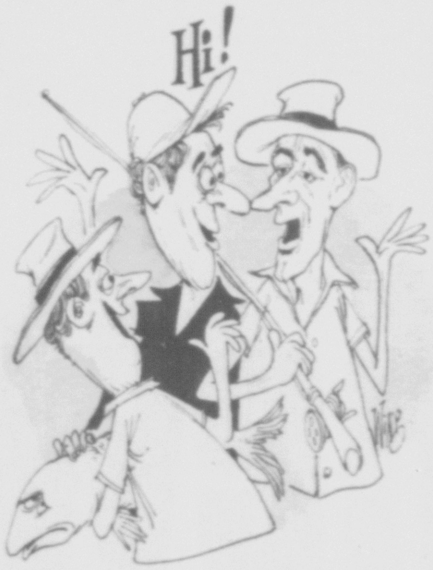
I suspect, however, that these theories were but generous attempts to soothe my anxiety. For my nonrecognition is, at times, far more dismaying than I usually care to admit.

In one unforgettable moment of crisis during the second world war, when answering Pentagon questions which were to lead to my clearance for matters of great secrecy, I made one grand but typical fumble that almost cost me the clearance. The intense and swift quizzing began simply enough:



A president should know his staff.

"Last name?"

"Wylie."

"First name?"

"Philip."

"Middle name, if any?"

Then it happened. I have a middle name. I never use it. My brother sometimes calls me by it, for no good reason. But, under pressure, I forgot my middle name. I paled. Teetered. The examining officer gazed up. "Middle name?" he repeated. "You have one?"

Only at the last permissible instant when the man was about to cast me out as a nitwit, dummy, or perhaps an enemy agent, did I manage to recall it. "Gordon," I gasped. "G-O-R-D-O-N."

I may be alone in my condition. I but suspect I have fellow-sufferers: We do not readily confess. We feel we would be totally ostracized if it became known that loved relatives, old friends, fellow commuters, our own bosses in unfamiliar clothing, often appear to us as complete strangers. We play shy. We play stupid. We play deaf. Even drunk. Wouldn't you? Ask yourself. Would you want it known that you failed to recognize as your aunt the only unidentified woman in a small room—or that you had played a whole rubber of bridge with a woman, without realizing she was your divorced first wife?

It can be that bad! Or almost. It seems that bad, anyhow.

The person with no memory for faces actually yearns for the more mild discomfort endured by the one who merely forgets names. I'd feel proud to be able to say, "Your face is familiar, but I just can't recall your name." But your face is not familiar, for me; and there's not much good supplying names, in cases like mine. GRO-PUP RIBBON

It is possible, now, to feed your dog leftovers from the table—and still be sure you're not short-changing your pet on the nutrients needed for a long and happy life.

All you have to do is mix the leftovers with Gro-Pup Ribbon—about half-and-half.

You see, Gro-Pup Ribbon is an unusual kind of dog food. It contains an extra bonus of protein, vitamins and minerals—far in excess of the minimum levels recommended by the National Research Council.

Even when fed with large amounts of "unbalanced" leftovers, Gro-Pup can safeguard against improper diet.

When you feed Gro-Pup Ribbon every day you can be confident that your dog is getting an abundance of the dietary essentials you know he needs. Why don't you start tomorrow?

"Red Man" zinnia, All-America Selection.

Offbeat Annuals—1962

Here are some surprising versions of old favorites you might want to try this year

BY JOHN BRIMER

If your garden is getting into a rut and you're anxious to try something new, come next spring, why not shop around among the almost foolproof prize winners in the All-America Selections? Two zinnias have made the 1962 list—"Red Man," a huge flowered plant with so many blooms on short stems it looks like a ball of color, and "Old Mexico," a development of the small Mexican zinnia. Then there's "Dark Opal," an ornamental basil with striking colored foliage; and Dianthus "Bravo," a new garden pink with bright, fringed flowers of good substance.

All-America annuals will grow practically anywhere because, in order to qualify, the seeds must have been grown in test gardens all over the country for a season or two prior to introduction. Knowing this, you can be fairly certain they'll flourish on your home ground.

Perhaps you'd also like to try some annuals that are not new but which are recommended for experimentation. For example, there is Bush Morning Glory "Blue Ensign." Growing only 18 inches tall, it has gay, deep-blue flowers with white throats enlivened with yellow. For a late-summer spectacle, try them with "Yellow Pigmy" marigolds in front, and use the 1960 All-America Bronze Medal winner "Toreador" marigold behind. For cut flowers in July and August, Centaurea Americana produces lilac flowers up to four inches across.

"Star of Texas" sports pale canary daisylike flowers on strong 18-inch plants which do well anywhere, even in dry spots. The easily grown Chinese forget-me-nots bloom throughout the summer on 15-inch to two-foot stems. "Firmament," an All-America Bronze Medal winner is bright indigo blue, while "Blanche Burpee" ranges
